SINCLAIR REFUSES TO TESTIFY

Campaign Gifts Probed

MAGNATE SAYS HE PREFERS TO HOLD EVIDENCE

Holder of Teapot Dome Lease Declines to Admit, However, That Answers Might Incriminate Him.

(Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, March 22.—Harry F. Sinclair, who holds the lease to Teapot Dome, refused to testify before the oil committee today on the ground that any evidence he may possess should be reserved for the courts.

In a statement made after the committee has refused unanimously to concede his plea against the authority of the investigators he declared he did not desire to plead that his replies might tend to incriminate him, because there was nothing in the facts relating to his Teapot Dome lease that was incriminating.

"I shall reserve any evidence I may be able to give," Sinclair said to the committee, "for those courts to which you and your colleagues have deliberately referred all questions of which you had any jurisdiction and shall respectfully decline to answer any questions proposed by your committee."

"There is nothing," he continued, "in any of the facts or circumstances of the lease of Teapot Dome which does or can incriminate."

The statement then recapulated the operator's previous appearances before senate committees regarding the lease, and added:

Claims Was Excuser.

"Thus it appears that I have been before your committee at five sessions and answered all questions and produced all books and papers called for, and was finally excused from further attendance."

Sinclair called attention to the fact that the resolution authorizing prosecution in the oil lease cases had been passed by the senate since his last appearance. The resolution in effect "denounces the lease between the government and the Mammoth Oil company," he said, "on the ground of fraud and corruption.

"This is an assertion that under the 'rights and equities' of the United States, the land covered by the lease of Teapot Dome belongs to the United States," the statement said.

If the examination should be directed toward "eliciting facts concerning fraud and corruption," the statement added, the committee would have constituted itself "a grand jury" on matters already submitted by the government "to the constitutional authorities."

CORLISS NEED NOT DO TIME IN JAIL

Former President of Waterloo Creamery Company Wins Decision.

(Special to The Star.)

ST. LOUIS, March 22.—The circuit court of appeals in an opinion by Judge Stone Friday reversed the case of Herbert S. Daniel, trustee, against Leroy Corliss. This case was unique in some respects. Corliss was committed to the county jail in Omaha for six months for contempt of court because of his failure to answer certain questions in the bankruptcy case of the Waterloo Creamery company, of which concern he was president.

It was contended by the trustee in bankruptcy that the case was not reviewable in the circuit court of appeals and that the decision of the district court was final. Judge Woodrough, who tried the case, refused Corliss a supersedeas bond and committed him to jail, and his attorney was obliged to apply to the circuit court for a supersedeas and an order releasing him from jail.

The circuit court holds that Judge Woodrough erred in holding Corliss guilty of contempt under the circumstances and erred in refusing to allow a supersedeas bond, and has reversed and remanded the case. Corliss was represented by T. S. Allen of Lincoln and the case for the trustee was argued by W. C. Fraser of Omaha.

Pleads Guilty to Chicken Stealing

(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., March 22.—John Moulden, 24, arrested here yesterday pleaded guilty to the charge of chicken stealing and was bound over by County Judge Messmore. Moulden was traveling through the country in an Overland car when arrested. He told the court his home was wherever his hat was off.

PLAN D. L. D. AS MEMORIAL ROAD

To Be Incorporated in National System as Remembrance of Harding.

Executive Secretary Gives Address at Chamber of Commerce Saturday.

Tentative plans for incorporating the D. L. D highway through Nebraska and Colorado as a part of the national Harding memorial highway system were outlined before a meeting of the former association at the chamber of commerce Saturday noon when L. N. Vaughn of Marion, O., executive secretary of the Harding highway association, spoke.

The highway at present is complete as far as Council Bluffs, Ia., reaching from Washington, D. C., through Marion, Ohio, Harding's home, and taking the Blue Grass Trail through Iowa, Vaughn stated.

As far as the Mississippi river the road is practically all paved, and it is the expectation of the Harding association to eventually make the road entirely paved. The D. L. D. is to be used between Omaha and Denver.

State Engineer Roy Cochrane stated that contracts for 325 miles of graveled road had either been let or would be in the near future, and that most of the ravel work would be one on the D. L. D..

The highway through Nebraska will probably be completely graveled before the end of the year, it was stated at the meeting.

Roy C. Peppers, of Hudson, Colo., and John R. Cohen, of Sterling, Colo., representing the D. L. D. in that state, spoke briefly concernnig work done on the highway in Colorado. As far as Denver, they said, the road was fully graveled.

The plan of financing the highway outside of work done in the individual communities, is through a membership, costing $5, Vaughn explained. Of this fund half goes to the national association. Each member of the association received a radiator emblem.

The idea for the highway originated in Marion, O., Vaughn said, and spread through several counties while Harding was a senator. At that time it was called the Harding highway. More recently, the road was extended across the entire state, and is paved from begining to end. Now, plans are to have a national road, starting at Washington, D. C., to the Pacific coast, ending at Hollywood, Cal.

While the route as far as Denver is reasonably complete, the route beyond the Colorado city has not been definitely decided upon, be said.

About sixty representatives attended the meeting, which lasted well into the afternoon. B. A. George, member of the executive committee, gave a short talk concerning work done on the D. L. D.

According to President Charles Roper, of the D. L. D. association, the proposition would probably receive the approval of the association, although no formal action had been taken Saturday noon.

Doesn't Mind Reformatory But Bewails Parting From His Girl

Eddie Warren, 15-year-old negro boy, doesn't mind going to the reformatory, but oh! the pangs of parting from his girl.

"Judge," he said, when arraigned on a charge of forgery before Judge J. H. Broady in district court Saturday, "Do you suppose you could arrange it so's I could see some women folks sometimes?"

"I don't mind going out to the pen but I just gotta see my girl."

Judge Broady told Eddie that so far as he was concerned he could do nothing about it. Eddie pleaded guilty and was sentenced to serve one to three years.

"You can go to school out there," Max Towle, deputy county attorney, told Eddie.

"I think I need a little more schooling and maybe I could do something with it outside of getting into trouble all the time," Eddie replied.

Eddie is said to have passed a check for $11.60, March 15, on which he forged the name "Chester Bill."

SUGHROUE WILL STAY IN RACE

IGNORES REQUESTS THAT HE WITHDRAW

Governor Comments on Dismissal of Taylor Suit—Says Has Always Been in Sympathy With Progressive Legislation.

E. L. Sughroue of Indianola will remain as a candidate for governor in the progressive party primary against Governor C. W. Bryan, in spite of the request made by the heads of railroad brotherhood organizations in Nebraska that he withdraw his name. Mr. Sughroue made his decision public Saturday through the International News Service, which wired him about the matter.

Sughroue lives in the home county of Norris and was urged by the latter's friends to give Bryan a clear field for governor, so that progressive party voters, having no major contest in their own primary, could call for republican ballots and help to renominate the senator on that ticket. He refuses, however, to get off the track for Norris' sake.

In his announcement, Sughroue denounces the federal reserve system, for which Norris voted at the time of its creation. He refers to this legislation as a "crime." He accuses Governor Bryan of playing partisan politics and urges members of the third party to "keep in the middle of the road."

Leaders of the railroad brotherhoods who asked him to withdraw are criticised by Mr. Sughroue for lending their efforts to divide the farmer-labor vote "when the prospects of a national third party are so bright." The railroad representatives recently went on record as being opposed to a third party. They are friendly to Governor Bryan.

Bryan Discusses Taylor Fiasco.

Governor Bryan commented as follows Saturday morning on the action of W. J. Taylor in dismissing his suit to keep the governor's name off the progressive ticket:

"It is easy to see why Mr. Taylor withdrew the suit after he came to Lincoln and examined the petitions on file in the secretary of state's office, signed by several hundred of the original members of the progressive party, asking for my nomination on their party ticket. He may have been misled in the first instance into

PAROLED YOUTH IS AGAIN TAKEN

Leon Hudson and Two Companions May Be Charged With Stealing Chickens.

Reformatory Inmate Who Was Given Freedom Two Months Ago Arrested Saturday.

Leon Hudson, on parole from the reformatory, was arrested Saturday morning with Lawrence Babel and Ralph Jones, all of York, and they will probably be charged with chicken stealing, according to officers.

The boys had driven from York to Lincoln with chickens said to have been taken from the Mother's Jewels orphanage and a private home there. The arrest was made by Deputy Sheriffs Ward and Longstreth, who were informed when the boys attempted to sell the chickens to a local poultry house.

Hudson said he had been sentenced to serve 1 to years from York county for breaking end entering. He served four years, he said. He was paroled January 11, last.

The three boys drove from York starting at 2:30 Saturday morning. They had about thirty chickens with them, officers said.

Improvised Torch Sets Truck Afire

(Special to The Star.)

WYMORE, Neb., March 22—A loss of $200 was suffered by the Holmes and Ray Dairy, just north of Wymore, this morning. An assistant at the dairy loaded up an automobile with bottles of milk preparatory to delivery, and discovered the radiator was frozen up when he attempted to start the car. He made a torch out of an oiled rag and a broom stick and lighted it under the car to thaw it out. The car immediately took fire and burned the top and the upholstering, and a part of the load of bottled milk was broken and destroyed. The fire was extinguished before the gas tank exploded.

COMMUNITY CHEST FUND IS GROWING

Rotary Club Workers Lead in Drive — Total Near $60,000 Mark.

Community Chest funds raised in the present drive now amount to $55,763.13. An advance of $8,755.10 was reported Saturday noon at a luncheon at the Grand hotel of solicitors for the fund.

Each of the five groups working reported from $700 to almost $3,000. Rotary club workers kept their lead and now have a total of $15,976.

At least $3,000 has not yet been formally reported, according to officials, and individuals of each group are said to have money not yet turned in, so that the total is probably about $60,000.

The amount reported by each division at the luncheon was as follows: Rotary, $2,821; Kiwanis, $2,783; Lions, $1,643.25; Pathfinders, $729.50, and Women, $778.35.

The drive will continue next week until the total of $125,000 has been raised.

Doctor's Office Broken Into and Morphine Stolen

Morphine valued at $52 and a quantity of novocain and several hypodemric syringes were stolen from the office of C. E. Frye, 1339 O street some-time between 10 p. m. Friday and 10 a. m. Saturday, according to police information.

A lock on the door was picked, and entrance gained in that manner, according to Detective N. F. Schneible. The drugs were in various parts of the office, which was well searched by the thieves, according to Schneible. Nothing else was taken.

Police believe that the work was that of drug addict, and not of an amateur.

Harry F. Sinclair Scores Roosevelts

WASHINGTON, March 22 — Assistant Secretary of the Navy Theodore Roosevelt and his brother, Archie Roosevelt, were bitterly assailed this afternoon by Henry F. Sinclair, in a formal statement.

Commenting on the testimony of Archie Roosevelt before the senate public lands committee concerning alleged checks for $68,000 payable to the ranch foreman of ex-Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall and supposed to have been in the possession of G. D. Wahlberg, Sinclair said:

"I have read the testimony of Wahlberg and I think the evidence clearly shows that Wahlberg, to use a common expression, was framed by the Roosevelts."

Thomas McShane, Lincoln Pioneer, Dies in Seattle

Word was received in Lincoln this morning of the death in Seattle, Wash., of Thomas McShane. Mr. McShane was a pioneer of Lincoln and lived here until five years ago. MISS STINSON STRIKES BACK AT DAUGHERTY Divorced Wife of Jess Smith Asserts Attorney General's Charges Against Her Are False.

(Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, March 22.—Roxie Stinson, divorced wife of Jess W. Smith, "bumper and friend" of Attorney General Daugherty, resumed the witness stand today before the Daugherty investigating committee and brought her letters to support her story of last week.

Before Miss Stinson began, Senator Wheeler, declared Mr. Daugherty had done a "dirty, cowardly trick" in making charges of blackmail against her in his statement. Miss Stinson's eyes poured tears during the senator's statements.

Chairman Brookhart read last night's statement by Attorney General Daugherty and emphasized his comment upon the committee leaving unnoticed the department's record of liquidation prosecutions.

"I got the record from the department last night after the statement was issued," Chairman Brookhart said.

"Has Mr. Daugherty seen fit to explain what official position Jess W. Smith had in the department of justice?" asked Senator Ashurst, democrat, Arizona.

"He has not," Chairman Brookhart responded.

"We ought to let that be explaned by the attorney general, who has not yet come to the stand," Senator Jones, Washingtoin, said.

Former Senator Chamberlain of counsel for Daugherty, complained that counsel has not been allowed to cros examine witnesses, particularly Roxie Stinson and Gaston B. Means.

"Miss Stinson is here, you'll have your opportunity today," said Senator Wheeler.

Chamberlain Protests.

Senator Chamberlain protested the attorney general was being placed in an unfair position.

"We have the whole power of the department directed against us and this hearing," Senator Wheeler asserted, "with its agencies intimidating our witnesses by threats of prosecution if they appear. I criticise the president of the United States for keeping this man in his place of power while this proceeding goes on."

Miss Stinson began by taking up Mr. Daugherty's charges in detail. First, she denied that she was a "disappointed woman," and declared Smith had never led her to believe she was to be his sole heir.

"Just utterly false," she said of the attorney general's charge that she had attempted to "capitalize her silence."

A young man named Lyle Johnson, Miss Stinson said, who represented himself as coming from Washington, offered her $1,000 for a lead on where

RULES ON AUTO OWNERS' RIGHTS

Supreme Court Holds Policy Holder Entitled to Insurance Payment Where Car is First Stolen and Afterward Burned.

SCALES JUDGMENT IN DOUGLAS CASE

Sustains Verdict of $700 Awarded Torrence E. Bacon for Personal Injuries—$6,000 Alienation Judgment Affirmed.

Two decisions involving the rights of motor vehicle owners in case of loss or personal injury by fire were handed down by the Nebraska supreme court Saturday. One of them holds the owner of a machine entitled to payment on an insurance policy covering fire and theft, where the car was first stolen and afterward burned, but reduces the amount of insurance below what the jury allowed. The other affirms judgment against a filling station company for injuries sustained by a green driver when an employe of the defendant undertook to fill the gasoline tank while the old-fashioned presto light on the front end was burning.

In the former case, Sophia C. Gibson sued the Glens Falls Insurance Co. in Douglas county, and the jury awarded her $837. The charred remnants of the stolen car was found, a few days after its disappearance, about twelve miles distant from where it had been taken. The policy had been in force nearly a year when those events took place. It fixed the maximum insurance at $900, with a clause providing that payment for loss should be limited to the depreciated value of the vehicle. There was no question as to its being a total loss, but the insurance company claimed the actual worth of the car was much below the amount fixed by the jury. This view is taken by the supreme court, which scales the amount to $576, including interest.

A $700 verdict for personal injuries sustained by Torrence E. Bacon against the A. B. A. Independent Oil & Gasoline Co. of Lincoln is affirmed by the high bench, on appeal from the district court here. Bacon drove his motorcycle into the filling station in the evening and asked to have some gasoline

EUNICE BABBIT DIES SUDDENLY

Well Known Lincoln School Teacher Passes Away After Brief Illness.

The sudden death of Miss Eunice Babbitt, well known Lincoln teacher, which occurred at 7 a. m., Saturday at her home, 2425 Vine street, after an illness of less than 48 hours, came as a shock to her many friends. She had taught in Lincoln for many years at the Clinton school and Whittier Junior high school.

Miss Babbitt's home was at North Platte, Neb., where she leaves a widowed mother, Mrs. Sophia Babbitt; two sisters, Mrs. O. F. Farmer and Mrs. J. H. Mathiesen; three brothers, James and Edwin of North Platte and Alfred E., of Los Angeles.

For many years Miss Babbitt taught in the Clinton school, but at the time of her death she was at the new Whittier junior high school.

She had been a leader in the educational interests of the city, where she was the first president of the Lincoln Teachers' association.

At North Platte she was a member of the Eastern Star. In Lincoln she had been active in P. E. O. circles, serving as president of Chapter K. She was a devoted member of Grace Methodist church where for several years she had been the teacher of the ladies guild. Her death leaves a place hard to fill in the schools, in her church and in the hearts of her friends.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m., Sunday at the Grace Methodist church, Twenty-seventh and R streets. Rev. F. F. Travis will officiate. The body will be taken to her old hime at North Platte for interment.

Early Settler of Saline County Dies

WILBER, Neb., March 22. — Word received here today announces the death of Mrs. Jake B. Huffman, a resident of Wilber for twenty-five years, until ten years ago, when the family removed to a farm near Oak Hill, Kansas. She was seventy-one years old, and died suddenly in the yard. The aged husband and a son at Oak Hill survive. Other children are Mrs. John Todd, of Plattsmouth; Mrs. Steve Sticka, of Wilber, and Henry and August Huffman, dray men of Wilber.

HAYS FLATLY DENIES STORY OF OIL STOCK

Former Postoffice Head Says Millionaire's Republican Campaign Contributions Around $75,000.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—Will H. Hays flatly denied before the oil committee today that Harry F. Sinclair had given any stock to wipe out a $1,600,000 deficit of the republican national committee after the 1920 campaign.

Questioning Mr. Hays, Senator Walsh asked:

"Do you know the witness (Sinclair) who just left the stand?

"Yes, sir, for eight or ten years," replied Hays.

"It has been testified to before another committee," went on the senator, "that Mr. Sinclair gave certain stock to wipe out a deficit of the republican national committee. Tell us about it."

"I can't tell you about it," returned Hays. "It is not true.

"You saw a statement in the New York Times that you would testify to such a donation?"

"Yes," but that story is untrue. It is false."

Hays said he had no idea as to the source of the Times statement.

"Would it surprise you to know that information came from your office?" asked Senator Walsh.

"It could not have come from there," was the reply, "as it is not a fact.

Joe O'Neil Identified.

Hays identified Joe O'Neil, a former newspaper man, as an employe of his office. Asked if O'Neil had not give the statement to the Times, Hays said he could not have done so, as there was no basis for the story.

"Please tell us what Mr. Sinclair had to do with making up the deficit," said Senator Walsh.

"I assume it is not the purpose of the committee to go into campaign contributions," Hays returned. "I assume the committee considers that irrelevant as I do. Besides, I am not the source of information now."

The witness began a long statement about the general subject of campaign contributors. Senator Stanfield, republican, Oregon, objected, saying "this question is immaterial and irrelevant." Senator Walsh insisted that the question he bad put was relevant and there was a long wrangle.

Senator Stanfield's motion finally was voted down, 6 to 4.

Reiterates Story False.

Senator Stanfield then called Hays' attention to the law of contempt to indicate to him that he did not have to answer irrelevant questions. He did not desire to decline to answer any question: that he would state again that the story about Sinclair giving 75,000 shares of stock was false.

"I could only give my best judgment," Hays said, as to Sinclair's contribution. "My judgment is that it did not exceed $75,000."

Asked about the testimony of G. D. Wahlberg, former private secretary to Sinclair, that he had given $25,000 in Liberty bonds to a "Mr. Hays," the witness said he had no facts on the subject. He added that the reference might be to Hinkle Hays of Sullivan, Ind., his brother, who had a "purely personal" transaction with Sinclair.

"You are welcome to go over my books," Hays said.

The law firm of Hays and Hays of Sullivan, of which Hays and his brother are members, represents Sinclair interests, the witness said, adding that Sinclair has large interests in Indiana.

Hays declared he had severed his relations with the law firm when he entered the cabinet.

Questioned by Senator Dill, democrat, Washington, Hays said that the naval oil leases never were discussed at any cabinet meeting he attended.

"Was any stock besides Sinclair Consolidated used in connection with the deficit of the republican national committee?" asked Senator Dill.

"No stock of his company or any other stock was used."

The witness was excused and the committee went into executive session.

Three Dead In Irish Clashes

DUBLIN, March 22—Three persons have been killed and nearly sixty wounded in fighting at Queenstown and Cork in the past twenty-four hours.

Two men were killed outright. An English soldier was wounded at Queenstown and died this afternoon.

Free state troops are scouring the Queenstown district for the men responsible for the attack. Free state officials claim the attacks at Queenstown and Cork were "isolated incidents," but it is generally believed those cities will be the chief danger spots if the mutiny in the free state army grows into open rebellion.

Iowa Democrats Hold Conventions

DES MOINES, Ia., March 22. — Iowa democrats meet in county conventions today to select delegates to the state convention which will be held April 3 at Davenport.

The county convention delegates are expected to take action on the contest being waged by Cylde L. Herring of Des Moines, and Wilbur Marsh of Waterloo, for national committeeman from Iowa.

Leaders here expressed doubt that many of the county conventions would pass resolutions favoring the candidacy of any of the candidates seeking the democratic nomination for president.

MAGNATE SAYS HE PREFERS TO HOLD EVIDENCE

(Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, March 22.—Harry F. Sinclair, who holds the lease to Teapot Dome, refused to testify before the oil committee today on the ground that any evidence he may possess should be reserved for the courts.

In a statement made after the committee has refused unanimously to concede his plea against the authority of the investigators, he declared he did not desire to plead that his replies might tend to incriminate him, because there was nothing in the facts relating to his Teapot Dome lease that was incriminating.

"I shall reserve any evidence I may be able to give," Sinclair said to the committee, "for those courts to which you and your colleagues have deliberately referred all questions of which you had any jurisdiction and shall respectfully decline to answer any questions proposed by your committee."

"There is nothing," he continued, "in any of the facts or circumstances of the lease of Teapot Dome which does or can incriminate."

The statement then recapulated the operator's previous appearances before senate committees regarding the lease, and added:

Claims Was Excused.

"Thus it appears that I have been before your committee at five sessions and answered all questions and produced all books and papers called for, and was finally excused from further attendance."

Sinclair called attention to the fact that the resolution authorizing prosecution in the oil lease cases had been passed by the senate since his last appearance. The resolution in effect "denounces the lease between the government and the Mammoth Oil company," he said, "on the ground of fraud and corruption.

"This is an assertion that under the 'rights and equities' of the United States, the land covered by the lease of Teapot Dome belongs to the United States," the statement said.

If the examination should be directed toward "eliciting facts concerning fraud and corruption," the statement added, the committee would have constituted itself "a grand jury" on matters already submitted by the government "to the constitutional authorities."

CORLISS NEED NOT DO TIME IN JAIL

Former President of Waterloo Creamery Company Wins Decision.

(Special to The Star.)

ST. LOUIS, March 22.—The circuit court of appeals in an opinion by Judge Stone Friday reversed the case of Herbert S. Daniel, trustee, against Leroy Corliss. This case was unique in some respects. Corliss was committed to the county jail in Omaha for six months for contempt of court because of his failure to answer certain questions in the bankruptcy case of the Waterloo Creamery company, of which concern he was president.

It was contended by the trustee in bankruptcy that the case was not reviewable in the circuit court of appeals and that the decision of the district court was final. Judge Woodrough, who tried the case, refused Corliss a supersedeas bond and committed him to jail, and his attorney was obliged to apply to the circuit court for a supersedeas and an order releasing him from jail.

The circuit court holds that Judge Woodrough erred in holding Corliss guilty of contempt under the circumstances and erred in refusing to allow a supersedeas bond, and has reversed and remanded the case. Corliss was represented by T. S. Allen of Lincoln and the case for the trustee was argued by W. C. Fraser of Omaha.

Pleads Guilty to Chicken Stealing

(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., March 22.—John Moulden, 24, arrested here yesterday pleaded guilty to the charge of chicken stealing and was bound over by County Judge Messmore. Moulden was traveling through the country in an Overland car when arrested. He told the court his home was wherever his hat was off.

Doesn't Mind Reformatory But Bewails Parting From His Girl

Eddie Warren, 18-year-old negro boy, doesn't mind going to the reformatory, but oh! the pangs of parting from his girl.

"Judge," he said, when arraigned on a charge of forgery before Judge J. H. Broady in district court Saturday, "Do you suppose you could arrange it so's I could see some women folks sometimes?"

"I don't mind going out to the pen but I just gotta see my girl."

Judge Broady told Eddie that so far as he was concerned he could do nothing about it. Eddie pleaded guilty and was sentenced to serve one to three years.

"You can go to school out there," Max Towle, deputy county attorney, told Eddie.

"I think I need a little more schooling, and maybe I could do something with it outside of getting into trouble all the time," Eddie replied.

Eddie is said to have passed a check for $11.60, March 15, on which he forged the name "Chester Bill."

SUGHROUE WILL STAY IN RACE

IGNORES REQUESTS THAT HE WITHDRAW

Governor Comments on Dismissal of Taylor Suit—Says Has Always Been in Sympathy With Progressive Legislation.

E. L. Sughroue of Indianola will remain as a candidate for governor in the progressive party primary against Governor C. W. Bryan, in spite of the request made by the heads of railroad brotherhood organizations in Nebraska that he withdraw his name. Mr. Sughroue made his decision public Saturday through the International News Service, which wired him about the matter.

Sughroue lives in the home county of Norris and was urged by the latter's friends to give Bryan a clear field for governor, so that progressive party voters, having no major contest in their own primary, could call for republican ballots and help to renominate the senator on that ticket. He refuses, however, to get off the track for Norris' sake.

In his announcement, Sughroue denounces the federal reserve system, for which Norris voted at the time of its creation. He refers to this legislation as a "crime." He accuses Governor Bryan of playing partisan politics and urges members of the third party to "keep in the middle of the road."

Leaders of the railroad brotherhoods who asked him to withdraw are criticised by Mr. Sughroue for lending their efforts to divide the farmer-labor vote "when the prospects of a national third party are so bright." The railroad representatives recently went on record as being opposed to a third party. They are friendly to Governor Bryan.

Bryan Discusses Taylor Fiasco.

Governor Bryan commented as follows Saturday morning on the action of W. J. Taylor in dismissing his suit to keep the governor's name off the progressive ticket:

"It is easy to see why Mr. Taylor withdrew the suit after he came to Lincoln and examined the petitions on file in the secretary of state's office, signed by several hundred of the original members of the progressive party, asking for my nomination on their party ticket. He may have been misled in the first instance into

PAROLED YOUTH IS AGAIN TAKEN

Leon Hudson and Two Companions May Be Charged With Stealing Chickens.

Reformatory Inmate Who Was Given Freedom Two Months Ago Arrested Saturday.

Leon Hudson, on parole from the reformatory, was arrested Saturday morning with Lawrence Babel and Ralph Jones, all of York, and they will probably be charged with chicken stealing, according to officers.

The boys had driven from York to Lincoln with chickens said to have been taken from the Mother's Jewels orphanage and a private home there. The arrest was made by Deputy Sheriffs Ward and Longstreth, who were informed when the boys attempted to sell the chickens to a local poultry house.

Hudson said he had been sentenced to serve 1 to years from York county for breaking end entering. He served four years, he said. He was paroled January 11, last.

The three boys drove from York starting at 2:30 Saturday morning. They had about thirty chickens with them, officers said.

Improvised Torch Sets Truck Afire

(Special to The Star.)

WYMORE, Neb., March 22—A loss of $200 was suffered by the Holmes and Ray Dairy, just north of Wymore, this morning. An assistant at the dairy loaded up an automobile with bottles of milk preparatory to delivery, and discovered the radiator was frozen up when he attempted to start the car. He made a torch out of an oiled rag and a broom stick and lighted it under the car to thaw it out. The car immediately took fire and burned the top and the upholstering, and a part of the load of bottled milk was broken and destroyed. The fire was extinguished before the gas tank exploded.

COMMUNITY CHEST FUND IS GROWING

Rotary Club Workers Lead in Drive — Total Near $60,000 Mark.

Community Chest funds raised in the present drive now amount to $55,763.13. An advance of $8,755.10 was reported Saturday noon at a luncheon at the Grand hotel of solicitors for the fund.

Each of the five groups working reported from $700 to almost $3,000. Rotary club workers kept their lead and now have a total of $16,976.

At least $3,000 has not yet been formally reported, according to officials, and individuals of each group are said to have money not yet turned in, so that the total is probably about $60,000.

The amount reported by each division at the luncheon was as follows: Rotary, $2,821; Kiwanis, $2,783; Lions, $1,643.25; Pathfinders, $729.50, and Women, $778.35.

The drive will continue next week until the total of $125,000 has been raised.

Doctor's Office Broken Into and Morphine Stolen

Morphine valued at $52 and a quantity of novocain and several hypodemric syringes were stolen from the office of C. E. Frye, 1339 O street some-time between 10 p. m. Friday and 10 a. m. Saturday, according to police information.

A lock on the door was picked, and entrance gained in that manner, according to Detective N. F. Schneible. The drugs were in various parts of the office, which was well searched by the thieves, according to Schneible. Nothing else was taken.

Police believe that the work was that of drug addict, and not of an amateur.

Harry F. Sinclair Scores Roosevelts

WASHINGTON, March 22. — Assistant Secretary of the Navy Theodore Roosevelt and his brother, Archie Roosevelt, were bitterly assailed this afternoon by Henry F. Sinclair, in a formal statement.

Commenting on the testimony of Archie Roosevelt before the senate public lands committee concerning alleged checks for $68,000 payable to the ranch foreman of ex-Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall and supposed to have been in the possession of G. D. Wahlberg, Sinclair said:

"I have read the testimony of Wahlberg and I think the evidence clearly shows that Wahlberg, to use a common expression, was framed by the Roosevelts."

MISS STINSON STRIKES BACK AT DAUGHERTY

Divorced Wife of Jess Smith Asserts Attorney General's Charges Against Her Are False.

(Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, March 22.—Roxie Stinson, divorced wife of Jess W. Smith, "bumper and friend" of Attorney General Daugherty, resumed the witness stand today before the Daugherty investigating committee and brought her letters to support her story of last week.

Before Miss Stinson began, Senator Wheeler, declared Mr. Daugherty had done a "dirty, cowardly trick" in making charges of blackmail against her in his statement. Miss Stinson's eyes poured tears during the senator's statements.

Chairman Brookhart read last night's statement by Attorney General Daugherty and emphasized his comment upon the committee leaving unnoticed the department's record of liquidation prosecutions.

"I got the record from the department last night after the statement was issued," Chairman Brookhart said.

"Has Mr. Daugherty seen fit to explain what official position Jess W. Smith had in the department of justice?" asked Senator Ashurst, democrat, Arizona.

"He has not," Chairman Brookhart responded.

"We ought to let that be explaned by the attorney general, who has not yet come to the stand," Senator Jones, Washingtoin, said.

Former Senator Chamberlain of counsel for Daugherty, complained that counsel has not been allowed to cros examine witnesses, particularly Roxie Stinson and Gaston B. Means.

"Miss Stinson is here, you'll have your opportunity today," said Senator Wheeler.

Chamberlain Protests.

Senator Chamberlain protested the attorney general was being placed in an unfair position.

"We have the whole power of the department directed against us and this hearing," Senator Wheeler asserted, "with its agencies intimidating our witnesses by threats of prosecution if they appear. I criticise the president of the United States for keeping this man in his place of power while this proceeding goes on."

Miss Stinson began by taking up Mr. Daugherty's charges in detail. First, she denied that she was a "disappointed woman," and declared Smith had never led her to believe she was to be his sole heir.

"Just utterly false," she said of the attorney general's charge that she had attempted to "capitalize her silence."

A young man named Lyle Johnson, Miss Stinson said, who represented himself as coming from Washington, offered her $1,000 for a lead on where

RULES ON AUTO OWNERS' RIGHTS

SCALES JUDGMENT IN DOUGLAS CASE

Two decisions involving the rights of motor vehicle owners in case of loss or personal injury by fire were handed down by the Nebraska supreme court Saturday. One of them holds the owner of a machine entitled to payment on an insurance policy covering fire and theft, where the car was first stolen and afterward burned, but reduces the amount of insurance below what the jury allowed. The other affirms judgment against a filling station company for injuries sustained by a green driver when an employe of the defendant undertook to fill the gasoline tank while the old-fashioned presto light on the front end was burning.

In the former case, Sophia C. Gibson sued the Glens Falls Insurance Co., in Douglas county, and the jury awarded her $837. The charred remnants of the stolen car was found, a few days after its disappearance, about twelve miles distant from where it had been taken. The policy had been in force nearly a year when those events took place. It fixed the maximum insurance at $900, with a clause providing that payment for loss should be limited to the depreciated value of the vehicle. There was no question as to its being a total loss, but the insurance company claimed the actual worth of the car was much below the amount fixed by the jury. This view is taken bv the supreme court, which scales the amount to $576, including interest.

A $700 verdict for personal injuries sustained by Torrence E. Bacon against the A. B. A. Independent Oil & Gasoline Co. of Lincoln is affirmed by the high bench, on appeal from the district court here. Bacon drove his motorcycle into the filling station in the evening and asked to have some gasoline

Well Known Lincoln School Teacher Passes Away After Brief Illness.

The sudden death of Miss Eunice Babbitt, well known Lincoln teacher, which occurred at 7 a. m., Saturday at her home, 2425 Vine street, after an illness of less than 48 hours, came as a shock to her many friends. She had taught in Lincoln for many years at the Clinton school and Whittier Junior high school.

Miss Babbitt's home was at North Platte, Neb., where she leaves a widowed mother, Mrs. Sophia Babbitt; two sisters, Mrs. O. F. Farmer and Mrs. J. H. Mathiesen; three brothers, James and Edwin of North Platte and Alfred E., of Los Angeles.

For many years Miss Babbitt taught in the Clinton school, but at the time of her death she was at the new Whittier junior high school.

She had been a leader in the educational interests of the city, where she was the first president of the Lincoln Teachers' association.

At North Platte she was a member of the Eastern Star. In Lincoln she had been active in P. E. O. circles, serving as president of Chapter K. She was a devoted member of Grace Methodist church where for several years she had been the teacher of the ladies guild. Her death leaves a place hard to fill in the schools, in her church and in the hearts of her friends.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m., Sunday at the Grace Methodist church, Twenty-seventh and R streets. Rev. F. F. Travis will officiate. The body will be taken to her old hime at North Platte for interment.

Early Settler of Saline County Dies

WILBER, Neb., March 22. — Word received here today announces the death of Mrs. Jake B. Huffman, a resident of Wilber for twenty-five years, until ten years ago, when the family removed to a farm near Oak Hill, Kansas. She was seventy-one years old, and died suddenly in the yard. The aged husband and a son at Oak Hill survive. Other children are Mrs. John Todd, of Plattsmouth; Mrs. Steve Sticka, of Wilber, and Henry and August Huffman, draymen of Wilber.

HAYS FLATLY DENIES STORY OF OIL STOCK

WASHINGTON, March 22.—Will H. Hays flatly denied before the oil committee today that Harry F. Sinclair had given any stock to wipe out a $1,600,000 deficit of the republican national committee after the 1920 campaign.

Questioning Mr. Hays, Senator Walsh asked:

"Do you know the witness (Sinclair) who just left the stand?

"Yes, sir, for eight or ten years," replied Hays.

"It has been testified to before another committee," went on the senator, "that Mr. Sinclair gave certain stock to wipe out a deficit of the republican national committee. Tell us about it."

"I can't tell you about it," returned Hays. "It is not true.

"You saw a statement in the New York Times that you would testify to such a donation?"

"Yes," but that story is untrue. It is false."

Hays said he had no idea as to the source of the Times statement.

"Would it surprise you to know that information came from your office?" asked Senator Walsh.

"It could not have come from there," was the reply, "as it is not a fact.

Joe O'Neil Identified.

Hays identified Joe O'Neil, a former newspaper man, as an employe of his office. Asked if O'Neil had not give the statement to the Times, Hays said he could not have done so as there was no basis for the story.

"Please tell us what Mr. Sinclair had to do with making up the deficit," said Senator Walsh.

"I assume it is not the purpose of the committee to go into campaign contributions," Hays returned. "I assume the committee considers that irrelevant as I do. Besides, I am not the source of information now."

The witness began a long statement about the general subject of campaign contributors. Senator Stanfield, republican, Oregon, objected, saying "this question is immaterial and irrelevant." Senator Walsh insisted that the question he had put was relevant and there was a long wrangle.

Senator Stanfield's motion finally was voted down, 6 to 4.

Reiterates Story False.

Senator Stanfield then called Hays' attention to the law of contempt to indicate to him that he did not have to answer irrelevant questions. He did not desire to decline to answer any question; that he would state again that the story about Sinclair giving 75,000 shares of stock was false.

"I could only give my best judgment," Hays said, as to Sinclair's contribution. "My judgment is that it did not exceed $75,000."

Asked about the testimony of G. D. Wahlberg, former private secretary to Sinclair, that he had given $25,000 in Liberty bonds to a "Mr. Hays," the witness said he had no facts on the subject. He added that the reference might be to Hinkle Hays of Sullivan, Ind., his brother, who had a "purely personal" transaction with Sinclair.

"You are welcome to go over my books," Hays said.

The law firm of Hays and Hays of Sullivan, of which Hays and his brother are members, represents Sinclair interests, the witness said, adding that Sinclair has large interests in Indiana.

Hays declared he had severed his relations with the law firm when he entered the cabinet.

Questioned by Senator Dill, democrat, Washington, Hays said that the naval oil leases never were discussed at any cabinet meeting he attended.

"Was any stock besides Sinclair Consolidated used in connection with the deficit of the republican national committee?" asked Senator Dill.

"No stock of his company or any other stock was used."

The witness was excused and the committee went into executive session.

Three Dead In Irish Clashes

DUBLIN, March 22.—Three persons have been killed and nearly sixty wounded in fighting at Queenstown and Cork in the past twenty-four hours.

Two men were killed outright. An English soldier was wounded at Queenstown and died this afternoon.

Free state troops are scouring the Queenstown district for the men responsible for the attack. Free state officials claim the attacks at Queenstown and Cork were "isolated incidents," but it is generally believed those cities will be the chief danger spots if the mutiny in the free state army grows into open rebellion.

Iowa Democrats Hold Conventions

DES MOINES, Ia., March 22. — Iowa democrats meet in county conventions today to select delegates to th estate convention which will be held April 3 at Davenport.

The county convention delegates are expected to take action on the contest being waged by Cylde L. Herring of Des Moines, and Wilbur Marsh of Waterloo, for national committeeman from Iowa.

Leaders here expressed doubt that many of the county conventions would pass resolutions favoring the candidacy of any of the candidates seeking the democratic nomination for president.

FORMER BANDIT HAS OIL STORY

Al Jennings Says Will Rock the Country With His Testimony.

(Associated Press.)

LOS ANGELES, March 22.Al Jennings, erstwhile train robber and lately active in the fields of religion, real estate and politics, was ready to depart today for Washington to testify before the senate oil investigating committee. Before leaving, Jennings predicted that when the light of his testimony concerning an alleged $1,000,000 price paid for the republican presidential nomination in 1920 comes in contact with the inflammable atmosphere of the senate oil investigation an explosion will result that will "rock the country."

As a close friend of the late Jake Hamon, republican leader in Oklahome, Jennings explained he learned the details of Hamon's negotiations to swing the 1920 presidential nomination and "knew what HaHmon expected to get out of it."

He declared that the "master mind who controlled the 1920 republican national convention and practically engineered the nomination of Warren G. Harding for president upon payment of $1,000,000, is an easterner, an ex-senator, prominent in national republican circles.

"I will tell his name to the senate committee at Washington," the former bandit added.

A subpoena ordering him to appear before the investigating committee was handed Jennings at the United States marshal's office here yesterday.

HOLD SEVEN AS COUNTERFEITERS

Men Taken Alleged to Have Spread Million in Spurious Bills.

(Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 22.—Seven men, said by secret service men to be connected with a gang of counterfeiters who have spread $1,000,000 in spurious $10 bills the last six months, were arrested last night in a saloon, believed to be their headquarters.

The arrests resulted from the operations of Bert Brown, secret service agent, who joined the band, officers state. The investigation started six months ago, when bogus $10 bills appeared simultaneously in Denver, Detroit, Cleveland and Chicago. All the bills were of the same type, the Jackson series, D-333, with serial numbers G-56637746 A, G-56637764 A, or G-56637774 A.

GENERAL PERSHING WILL RETURN SOON

Completes Writing History of America's Part in World Conflict.

(Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, March 22.—General Pershing will return to the United States soon. During his seclusion in Paris he has completed writing an account of the world war from the events leading up to America's entry into the great conflict to the armistice. The post war chapters of his bok will be concluded after his return to this country.

The general left for France incognito last October with his sister to seek privacy which it was impossible for him to find in the United States. His return trip will be marked by the same precautions against publicity that signalized his departure.

For more than six weeks after his arrival in France, however, he was occupied with engagements that could not be avoided and finally he was compelled to conceal his whereabouts and plans from the public.

LITTLE PROGRESS ON REVENUE BILL

Coolidge Urges Leaders to Speed Up Consideration of Tax Measure.

Chief Executive Still Opposes Soldier Bonus and Supports Mellon Schedule.

(Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, March 22.—President Coolidge yesterday urged the senate leaders to speed up consideration of the revenue bill when informed by Chairman Smoot and Senator Curtis, republican, Kansas, of the finance committee, that its passage before June 1, now seemed unlikely.

Although the soldier bonus bill was not discussed at the white house conference, Mr. Smoot said it was probable this measure would be given priority over the tax reduction bill by the committee for immediate action and predicted that little time would be required for its disposal.

In this connection, however, it was again made plain at the white house that President Coolidge oppose tax rates rejected by the house.

Coolidge Non-Committal.

Regarding the paid up insurance bonus bill passed by the house and the revised revenue measure sent by that body to the senate, it was reiterated at the same time that the president would not declare in advance of receiving, either measure whether he will veto or sign it.

Senators Smoot and Curtis went to the white house after a conference with republican members of the finance committee, at which the program for fiscal bills were discussed. It was understood members favored taking up immediately the bonus bill and then rounding out the revenue measure which has been before the committee for more than two weeks. The tax rate schedules were not discussed at either conference, it was said. Outside of the committee meetings, its members took occasion to place on each other the responsibility for the delay.

Much Talk and No Work.

Chairman Smoot declared "excessive talk, for reasons best known to the speakers, has been indulged in at the committee meetings with the result we have not yet taken up a major section of the bill." He again threatened night sessions for next week if the work was not speeded up.

Senator Harrison of Mississippi, a democratic member of the committee, also complained of delay in consideration of the bill and remarked that "only two of the nine republican members of the committee were present today."

Democratic leaders generally indicated they would seek to have the bill kept to the front in committee.

Mr. Smoot predicted that if the revenue measure were not passed before June 1, when congress plans to adjourn for the national party contions, only a recess would be taken at that time.

NEW INQUIRY MAY BE STARTED SOON

Propose to Investigate Alleged Corruption Among Engraving Bureau Officials.

(Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, March 22.—Another congressional investigation aimed at prohibition enforcement was proposed yesterday in the house, which has two inquiries under way and is expected shortly to authorize two more.

Representative Kindred, democrat, New York, called for the appointment of a special committee to look into the administration of the prohibition bureau in a resolution in which he declared that the great majority of American citizens believe allegations that there is corruption "on the part of certain officials" in the bureau.

The resolution was referred to the rules committee which earlier in the day had recommended that an investigation be authorized of charges that a huge quantity of government bonds have been duplicated at the bureau of engraving and printing.

Chairman Snell was instructed to bring up in the house at an early date the resolution offered by Representative King, republican, Illinois, for the bureau of engraving inquiry. He also has been directed to bring to a vote a resolution by Representative Nelson, republican, insurgent leader of Wisconsin, for an investigation of the aircraft inquiry.

House action on the Nelson resolution has been delayed by a difference of opinion among republican leaders as to whether the inquiry should be conducted by the patents committee or a special committee. Mr. Nelson, who originally held out for an investigation by the patents committee, has agreed to have it handled by a committee of five other house members. This, leaders say, insures adoption of the resolution. They also declared there would be no formidable opposition to approval of Mr. King's resolution.

BONEY ESTATE IS VALUED AT $50,000

Widow is Made Sole Beneficiary Under Terms of Will.

The inventory of the estate of William H. Boney, prominent Lincoln candy manufacturer, was filed in probate court with Judge Robin R. Reid Friday. The estate was valued at about $50,000, all of which goes to the widow, Lora Boney under the terms of the will. Stock in banks amounting to $19,460, and real estate mortgages amounting to $14,300 were listed. Other items included the home property and personal property.

MANY STRANDED BY A BLIZZARD

Over Hundred Tourists Await Opening of Kansas Highways.

(Associated Press.)

TOPEKA, Kas., March 22. — Stranded at Kendall, Kas., by blizzards and heavy snows that have swept western Kansas for the past week, 130 automobile tourists, many ill from exposure and without medical aid, today awaited relief promised by state officials.

The plight of the tourists, among whom are many women and children, became known last night when a telegram asking assistance reached the office of Governor Davis. Hamilton county officials immediately were instructed to aid the marooned tourists and the county highway engineer and his staff were ordered to open up the impassable roads.

Kendall, a village of less than 100 population on the Santa Fe trial, thirty miles east of the Colorado line, is proving a poor host to the refugees, according to the message signed by W. G. Garrett.

The village is without a doctor or a drugstore. Some are sleeping in school houses, barns and cars, and those receiving better accommodations, are over charged, the message said, adding that no effort was made to open the roads.

ELLIOTT UPHOLDS INDICTMENT OF FORMER BANKERS

Hearing on Demurrer Filed by Howey and Dunn Set for April 21.

Federal Judge J. D. Elliott of Sioux Falls, S D. holding court in Omaha during the absence of Judge Woodrough, refused Friday to quash the indictment against Loyal B. Howey and Lee J. Dunn, former officers of the City National bank, of Lincoln charged with misapplication of the bank's funds, according to word received here by Assistant U. S. District Attorney Don Stewart. Attorneys for the defendants are Albert W. Jefferis and George Tunison.

A demurrer, filed by the defendants, will be heard April 21. If this demurrer is also overruled the case will be tried in federal court here about April 28 it is thought.

The defendants sought to quash the indictment on the grounds that the evidence presented to the grand jury was incompetent, being only hearsay evidence given by the government's accountant.

Judge Elliott refused to go into the question of the soundness of the evidence. Judge Elliott will hear the case if it is brought to trial here in April.

The two men are alleged to have misappropriated the funds of the bank in 1921 in payment of overdraft checks and discounting notes for the Nebraska Aircraft corporation.

DANCING PROGRAM GIVEN BY W. A. A.

Seventy-Five Girls Take Part in Fete Dansant at Temple Theater.

The Women's Athletic association of the state university presented its annual "Fete Dansant" at the Temple theater Friday night. The program was composed and directed by Donna Gustin and was given in three parts, seventy-five pretty co-eds of the university taking part.

Part one, "The Gentlemanly Dancing Master," in which a girl falls in love with her dancing master, was given by nine girls. In spite of the disapproval of the girl's father, the act ends happily for all. The part of the dancing master was played by Ruth Elsworth.

A basketball game in dancing lineup in part two, was especially entertaining.

The third part consisted of "A Greek Revel," danced in ten different acts by sixty-three girls, attired in many gorgeous costumes. The dancing of the Satyds, led by Miss Ruth Kittell proved the feature of the evening and the girls were applauded again and again. The dancing Satyrs were Ruth Kittell, Vivian Quinn, Louise Branstad, Olene Olson, Margaret Fisher, Martha Randkin, Myra McCaffree, Grace Montross and Gladys Foster.

The dancing of Bernice Ballance was another outstanding feature of the program and she was applauded many times.

The opening numbers were furnished by the University orchestra under the direction of William T. Quick.

Following were the patrons and patronesses:

Miss Louise Pound, Dr. and Mrs. R. G. Clapp, Miss Della Marie Clark, Mrs. Lonam Stott, Prof. and Mrs. R. D. Scott, Miss Winifred Hyde, Miss Lulu Mann, Miss Amanda Heppner, Prof. and Mrs. Paul Grumman, Miss Hazel O'Connor, Chancellor and Mrs. Samuel Avery and Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Westover.

Death of Famous Comedian Results From Pneumonia

NEW YORK, March 22.—(A. P.)—Barney Bernard, famous comedian and well known as creator of "Abe Potash in "Potash and Permutter," died last night of pneumonia.

Bernard had appeared in nearly fifty productions and was well known in the profession as a Hebrew comedian before 1913, when he became prominent in "Potash and Perlmutter." His success in the character of a cloak and suit dealer, revealed that he had fled to the stage to escape the efforts of his parents to force him into the clothing business.

SWEEPING CHARGE OF GRAFT IN THE REVENUE BUREAU

Mellon Companies Mentioned Before Senate Body and On Floor Upper House.

(Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, March 22—Sweeping but unspecific charges of graft in the internal revenue bureau by former employes before the senate investigating committee vied for attention Friday with allegations on the senate floor of "unfair" methods of making tax refunds, the name of "Mellon companies" coming in for particular attention in both places.

The committee witnesses, both engineers formerly assigned to field work in connection with war plant amortization allowances, had been dismissed from the bureau, the testimony declared. One of them, J. F. Adams of Washington, declared that "there are some of the worst cases being put through in that department (the bureau) I ever heard of."

Demands Specific Cases.

Pressed by Senator Watson, republican, Indiana, committee chairman, to say whether he had personal knowledge of any specific case of graft by bureau officials, Adams answered that he had not, adding, "but if you will take my evidence there is no doubt under the sun."

Senator King, democrat, Utah, a member of the investigating committee brought the tax refund question up in the senate after consulting his committee colleagues and being advised by Senator Watson that he must use his own judgment.

The Utah senator attacked an item of $105,000,000 for tax refunds submitted in the deficiency bill pending in the senate. On the ground that the finance committee had been advised that only $25,000,000 in pending refund claims had been decided, Senator King said that the hundred million dollar item was just "a guess as to probable refunds," his motion to cut the item to $30,000,000 was defeated.

Says U. S. Heavy Loser.

Evidence before the finance and investigating committees, Senator King declared, was sufficient to prove that present methods of determining refunds were "unscientific and unfair to the government," which lost heavily. It was safe to assume also, he added, that taxpayers had been unjustly loaded with additional assessments.

Before the investigating committee, Adams named companies which, he said, had been involved in amortization allowance disputes with the bureau, adding that investigation would show that these had been solved to the advantage of the companies as compared with treatment given "ordinary companies, like the Ford company.' Among the companies he named were the Standard Steel Car company, the Aluminum Company of America, the United Steel corporation, Brown and Sharp manufacturing company, the Colorado Fuel and Iron company and the Great Lakes Shipping company.

Adams assented to the statement the first two named were "Mellon companies." He urged that the committee undertake a comparative examination of amortization allowances to these concerns.

"And if you don't wake up, I'm a liar,' he said.

Tells Of a Letter.

Adams told of having seen in the bureau a letter regarding special treatment to be given what he described as a "Mellon company," but could not recall who wrote it. Senator Couzens, republican, Michigan, who brought about the investigation, indicated that he would seek to obtain this letter.

J. P. Moore, a former associate of Adams, as a bureau engineer on field work, described the cases of the Berwind-White Coal company of Philadelphia and the E. P. Smith company of Pittsburgh, a dental supply house. Original claims of allowances by these companies had been disapproved by the field engineers but later reassigned for more liberal treatment by other engineers, he testified, stating that in the Smith company case, the reassignment followed a letter to Secretary Mellon from the company. Moore did not appear to know what had become of these cases.

Senator McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, asked Senator King to call committee's attention to the list of tax refunds for 1921 and 1922 he had previously placed in the record.

"The Gulf Refining company, in which Secretary Mellon is heavily interested, received a refund of $3,300,000," Senator McKellar said.

Senator King said he understood this included refunds to the fourteen subsidiaries. He urged that a special tax adjustment tribunal be set up to which taxpayers could carry additional assessments protests without delay.

LESLIE KETELHUT REFUSED DAMAGES

Loses Suit in Which He Charged Conspiracy to Ruin His Business.

Leslie Ketelhut was refused any damages against the A. B. A. Oil company, Ray and Sam Sandlovitch and Jack Thompson by a jury in district court Friday which returned a verdict for the defendant. Ketelhut claimed the defendants had entered into a conspiracy to ruin his business and in furtherance of this conspiracy had obtained a writ of attachment against his property at the Wardrobe shop, operated by Ketelhut.

The defendants claimed that they had reason to believe that Ketelhut intended to abscond and leave his creditors. Ketelhut denied this, but evidence was introduced to show that he owed them several unpaid bills.

Ketelhut asked $5,000 damages for the loss of his business. He claimed that he had bought the shop in April when it was making $4 a day and built up the business to about $20 a day.'

Funeral Services for Van Gordens Held

GREENFIELD, Ia., March 22. —(A. P.) Funeral services were held Friday afternoon for Mr. and Mrs. Fred Van Gordon, and their son, Arthur, the victims of a shooting tragedy at Casper, Wyo., last week.

Van Gordon, a Casper real estate agent, and former Nebraskan, was shot to death early Sunday morning in a Douglas, Wyo., hotel by officers attempting to arrest him for the slaying of his wife and son whose bodies had been found floating in a creek two miles from Casper. Friends and relatives of the slain man have attributed his acts to temporary insanity caused by financial difficulty.

Water Hearings to Be Held Soon

WASHINGTON, March 22.—(A. P.) The commission recently appointed to formulate a compact between the states of Colorado, Nebraska and Wyoming and the United States for the use and disposition of the waters of the North Platte river was organized at a meeting at the department of commerce today, with Stephen B. Davis, solicitor of the department, as chaiman. Hearings will be held later in the three states.

FORMER BANDIT HAS OIL STORY

Al Jennings Says Will Rock the Country With His Testimony.

(Associated Press.)

LOS ANGELES, March 22.Al Jennings, erstwhile train robber and lately active in the fields of religion, real estate and politics, was ready to depart today for Washington to testify before the senate oil investigating committee. Before leaving, Jennings predicted that when the light of his testimony concerning an alleged $1,000,000 price paid for the republican presidential nomination in 1920 comes in contact with the inflammable atmosphere of the senate oil investigation an explosion will result that will "rock the country."

As a close friend of the late Jake Hamon, republican leader in Oklahome, Jennings explained he learned the details of Hamon's negotiations to swing the 1920 presidential nomination and "knew what HaHmon expected to get out of it."

He declared that the "master mind who controlled the 1920 republican national convention and practically engineered the nomination of Warren G. Harding for president upon payment of $1,000,000, is an easterner, an ex-senator, prominent in national republican circles.

"I will tell his name to the senate committee at Washington," the former bandit added.

A subpoena ordering him to appear before the investigating committee was handed Jennings at the United States marshal's office here yesterday.

HOLD SEVEN AS COUNTERFEITERS

Men Taken Alleged to Have Spread Million in Spurious Bills.

(Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 22.—Seven men, said by secret service men to be connected with a gang of counterfeiters who have spread $1,000,000 in spurious $10 bills the last six months, were arrested last night in a saloon, believed to be their headquarters.

The arrests resulted from the operations of Bert Brown, secret service agent, who joined the band, officers state. The investigation started six months ago, when bogus $10 bills appeared simultaneously in Denver, Detroit, Cleveland and Chicago. All the bills were of the same type, the Jackson series, D-333, with serial numbers G-56637746 A, G-56637764 A, or G-56637774 A.

GENERAL PERSHING WILL RETURN SOON

Completes Writing History of America's Part in World Conflict.

(Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, March 22.—General Pershing will return to the United States soon. During his seclusion in Paris he has completed writing an account of the world war from the events leading up to America's entry into the great conflict to the armistice. The post war chapters of his bok will be concluded after his return to this country.

The general left for France incognito last October with his sister to seek privacy which it was impossible for him to find in the United States. His return trip will be marked by the same precautions against publicity that signalized his departure.

For more than six weeks after his arrival in France, however, he was occupied with engagements that could not be avoided and finally he was compelled to conceal his whereabouts and plans from the public.

Chief Executive Still Opposes Soldier Bonus and Supports Mellon Schedule.

(Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, March 22.—President Coolidge yesterday urged the senate leaders to speed up consideration of the revenue bill when informed by Chairman Smoot and Senator Curtis, republican, Kansas, of the finance committee, that its passage before June 1, now seemed unlikely.

Although the soldier bonus bill was not discussed at the white house conference, Mr. Smoot said it was probable this measure would be given priority over the tax reduction bill by the committee for immediate action and predicted that little time would be required for its disposal.

In this connection, however, it was again made plain at the white house that President Coolidge oppose tax rates rejected by the house.

Coolidge Non-Committal.

Regarding the paid up insurance bonus bill passed by the house and the revised revenue measure sent by that body to the senate, it was reiterated at the same time that the president would not declare in advance of receiving either measure whether he will veto or sign it.

Senators Smoot and Curtis went to the white house after a conference with republican members of the finance committee, at which the program for fiscal bills were discussed. It was understood members favored taking up immediately the bonus bill and then rounding out the revenue measure which has been before the committee for more than two weeks. The tax rate schedules were not discussed at either conference, it was said. Outside of the committee meetings, its members took occasion to place on each other the responsibility for the delay.

Much Talk and No Work.

Chairman Smoot declared "excessive talk, for reasons best known to the speakers, has been indulged in at the committee meetings with the result we have not yet taken up a major section of the bill." He again threatened night sessions for next week if the work was not speeded up.

Senator Harrison of Mississippi, a democratic member of the committee, also complained of delay in consideration of the bill and remarked that "only two of the nine republican members of the committee were present today."

Democratic leaders generally indicated they would seek to have the bill kept to the front in committee.

Mr. Smoot predicted that if the revenue measure were not passed before June 1, when congress plans to adjourn for the national party contions, only a recess would be taken at that time.

NEW INQUIRY MAY BE STARTED SOON

Propose to Investigate Alleged Corruption Among Engraving Bureau Officials.

(Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, March 22.—Another congressional investigation aimed at prohibition enforcement was proposed yesterday in the house, which has two inquiries under way and is expected shortly to authorize two more.

Representative Kindred, democrat, New York, called for the appointment of a special committee to look into the administration of the prohibition bureau in a resolution in which he declared that the great majority of American citizens believe allegations that there is corruption "on the part of certain officials" in the bureau.

The resolution was referred to the rules committee which earlier in the day had recommended that an investigation be authorized of charges that a huge quantity of government bonds have been duplicated at the bureau of engraving and printing.

Chairman Snell was instructed to bring up in the house at an early date the resolution offered by Representative King, republican, Illinois, for the bureau of engraving inquiry. He also has been directed to bring to a vote a resolution by Representative Nelson, republican, insurgent leader of Wisconsin, for an investigation of the aircraft inquiry.

House action on the Nelson resolution has been delayed by a difference of opinion among republican leaders as to whether the inquiry should be conducted by the patents committee or a special committee. Mr. Nelson, who originally held out for an investigation by the patents committee, has agreed to have it handled by a committee of five other house members. This, leaders say, insures adoption of the resolution. They also declared there would be no formidable opposition to approval of Mr. King's resolution.

MANY STRANDED BY A BLIZZARD

Over Hundred Tourists Await Opening of Kansas Highways.

(Associated Press.)

TOPEKA, Kas., March 22. — Stranded at Kendall, Kas., by blizzards and heavy snows that have swept western Kansas for the past week, 130 automobile tourists, many ill from exposure and without medical aid, today awaited relief promised by state officials.

The plight of the tourists, among whom are many women and children, became known last night when a telegram asking assistance reached the office of Governor Davis. Hamilton county officials immediately were instructed to aid the marooned tourists and the county highway engineer and his staff were ordered to open up the impassable roads.

Kendall, a village of less than 100 population on the Santa Fe trial, thirty miles east of the Colorado line, is proving a poor host to the refugees, according to the message signed by W. G. Garrett.

The village is without a doctor or a drugstore. Some are sleeping in school houses, barns and cars, and those receiving better accommodations, are over charged, the message said, adding that no effort was made to open the roads.

ELLIOTT UPHOLDS INDICTMENT OF FORMER BANKERS

Hearing on Demurrer Filed by Howey and Dunn Set for April 21.

Federal Judge J. D. Elliott of Sioux Falls, S. D. holding court in Omaha during the absence of Judge Woodrough, refused Friday to quash the indictment against Loyal B. Howey and Lee J. Dunn, former officers of the City National bank, of Lincoln charged with misapplication of the bank's funds, according to word received here by Assistant U. S. District Attorney Don Stewart. Attorneys for the defendants are Albert W. Jefferis and George Tunison.

A demurrer, filed by the defendants, will be heard April 21. If this demurrer is also overruled the case will be tried in federal court here about April 28 it is thought.

The defendants sought to quash the indictment on the grounds that the evidence presented to the grand jury was incompetent, being only hearsay evidence given by the government's accountant.

Judge Elliott refused to go into the question of the soundness of the evidence. Judge Elliott will hear the case if it is brought to trial here in April.

The two men are alleged to have misappropriated the funds of the bank in 1921 in payment of overdraft checks and discounting notes for the Nebraska Aircraft corporation.

DANCING PROGRAM GIVEN BY W. A. A.

Seventy-Five Girls Take Part in Fete Dansant at Temple Theater.

The Women's Athletic association of the state university presented its annual "Fete Dansant" at the Temple theater Friday night. The program was composed and directed by Donna Gustin and was given in three parts, seventy-five pretty co-eds of the university taking part.

Part one, "The Gentlemanly Dancing Master," in which a girl falls in love with her dancing master, was given by nine girls. In spite of the disapproval of the girl's father, the act ends happily for all. The part of the dancing master was played by Ruth Elsworth.

A basketball game in dancing lineup in part two, was especially entertaining.

The third part consisted of "A Greek Revel," danced in ten different acts by sixty-three girls, attired in many gorgeous costumes. The dancing of the Satyds, led by Miss Ruth Kittell proved the feature of the evening and the girls were applauded again and again. The dancing Satyrs were Ruth Kittell, Vivian Quinn, Louise Branstad, Olene Olson, Margaret Fisher, Martha Randkin, Myra McCaffree, Grace Montross and Gladys Foster.

The dancing of Bernice Ballance was another outstanding feature of the program and she was applauded many times.

The opening numbers were furnished by the University orchestra under the direction of William T. Quick.

Following were the patrons and patronesses:

Miss Louise Pound, Dr. and Mrs. R. G. Clapp, Miss Della Marie Clark, Mrs. Lonam Stott, Prof. and Mrs. R. D. Scott, Miss Winifred Hyde, Miss Lulu Mann, Miss Amanda Heppner, Prof. and Mrs. Paul Grumman, Miss Hazel O'Connor, Chancellor and Mrs. Samuel Avery and Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Westover.

Death of Famous Comedian Results From Pneumonia

NEW YORK, March 22.—(A. P.)—Barney Bernard, famous comedian and well known as creator of "Abe Potash in "Potash and Permutter," died last night of pneumonia.

Bernard had appeared in nearly fifty productions and was well known in the profession as a Hebrew comedian before 1913, when he became prominent in "Potash and Perlmutter." His success in the character of a cloak and suit dealer, revealed that he had fled to the stage to escape the efforts of his parents to force him into the clothing business.

SWEEPING CHARGE OF GRAFT IN THE REVENUE BUREAU

(Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, March 22.—Sweeping but unspecific charges of graft in the internal revenue bureau by former employes before the senate investigating committee vied for attention Friday with allegations on the senate floor of "unfair" methods of making tax refunds, the name of "Mellon companies" coming in for particular attention in both places.

The ccommittee witnesses, both engineers formerly assigned to field work in connection with war plant amortization allowances, had been dismissed from the bureau, the testimony declared. One of them, J. F. Adams of Washington, declared that "there are some of the worst cases being put through in that department (the bureau) I ever heard of."

Demands Specific Cases.

Pressed by Senator Watson, republican, Indiana, committee chairman, to say whether he had personal knowledge of any specific case of graft by bureau officials, Adams answered that he had not, adding, "but if you will take my evidence there is no doubt under the sun."

Senator King, democrat, Utah, a member of the investigating committee brought the tax refund question up in the senate after consulting his committee colleagues and being advised by Senator Watson that he must use his own judgment.

The Utah senator attacked an item of $105,000,000 for tax refunds submitted in the deficiency bill pending in the senate. On the ground that the finance committee had been advised that only $25,000,000 in pending refund claims had been decided, Senator King said that the hundred million dollar item was just "a guess as to probable refunds," his motion to cut the item to $30,000,000 was defeated.

Says U. S. Heavy Loser.

Evidence before the finance and investigating committees, Senator King declared, was sufficient to prove that present methods of determining refunds were "unscientific and unfair to the government," which lost heavily. It was safe to assume also, he added, that taxpayers had been unjustly loaded with additional assessments.

Before the investigating committee, Adams named companies which, he said, had been involved in amortization allowance disputes with the bureau, adding that investigation would show that these had been solved to the advantage of the companies as compared with treatment given "ordinary companies, like the Ford company.' Among the companies he named were the Standard Steel Car company, the Aluminum Company of America, the United Steel corporation, Brown and Sharp manufacturing company, the Colorado Fuel and Iron company and the Great Lakes Shipping company.

Adams assented to the statement the first two named were "Mellon companies." He urged that the committee undertake a comparative examination of amortization allowances to these concerns.

"And if you don't wake up, I'm a liar,' he said.

Tells Of a Letter.

Adams told of having seen in the bureau a letter regarding special treatment to be given what he described as a "Mellon company," but could not recall who wrote it. Senator Couzens, republican, Michigan, who brought about the investigation, indicated that he would seek to obtain this letter.

J. P. Moore, a former associate of Adams, as a bureau engineer on field work, described the cases of the Berwind-White Coal company of Philadelphia and the E. P. Smith company of Pittsburgh, a dental supply house. Original claims of allowances by these companies had been disapproved by the field engineers but later reassigned for more liberal treatment by other engineers, he testified, stating that in the Smith company case, the reassignment followed a letter to Secretary Mellon from the company. Moore did not appear to know what had become of these cases.

Senator McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, asked Senator King to call committee's attention to the list of tax refunds for 1921 and 1922 he had previously placed in the record.

"The Gulf Refining company, in which Secretary Mellon is heavily interested, received a refund of $3,300,000," Senator McKellar said.

Senator King said he understood this included refunds to the fourteen subsidiaries. He urged that a special tax adjustment tribunal be set up to which taxpayers could carry additional assessments protests without delay.

LESLIE KETELHUT REFUSED DAMAGES

Loses Suit in Which He Charged Conspiracy to Ruin His Business.

Leslie Ketelhut was refused any damages against the A. B. A. Oil company, Ray and Sam Sandlovitch and Jack Thompson by a jury in district court Friday which returned a verdict for the defendant. Ketelhut claimed the defendants had entered into a conspiracy to ruin his business and in furtherance of this conspiracy had obtained a writ of attachment against his property at the Wardrobe shop, operated by Ketelhut.

The defendants claimed that they had reason to believe that Ketelhut intended to abscond and leave his creditors. Ketelhut denied this, but evidence was introduced to show that he owed them several unpaid bills.

Ketelhut asked $5,000 damages for the loss of his business. He claimed that he had bought the shop in April when it was making $4 a day and built up the business to about $20 a day.

INVITED TO RIDE; SUES AUTO OWNER

Mrs. Owens, Injured in Accident, Brings Suit for Damages.

(Special to The Star.)

TECUMSEH, Neb., March 22.—Mrs. Henrietta Owens of Omaha has brought suit in district court for $20,000 damages against the county of Johnson and Charles S. Phelps, who lives at Graf. Mrs. Owens bases her claim on personal injuries received when Mr. Phelps' automobile was overturned, on the evening of January 11, 1923.

Mrs. Owens is an organizer for a fraternal society and was in Beatrice and desired to reach Graf that evening, the train having left. Mr. and Mrs. Phelps had driven to Beatrice in their car and asked Mrs. Owens to accompany them home. When the car got near the town of Crab Orchard, in the western part of the county, it was overturned and Mrs. Owens and Mrs. Phelps were seriously injured and taken back to a hospital at Beatrice at once.

Mrs. Owens, in her petition, states that her injuries included a compound fracture of the right arm, with bone protruding, also severe lacerations of the flesh and nerves of the arm; of injury to her spine and great shock. She complains that she was obliged to remain in a hospital for a number of weeks, where she underwent surgical operations, with great suffering, and she was incapacitated from her usual work for many weeks.

Mrs. Phelps' injuries were not as severe, though she was in a hospital for some time. The members of the board of commissioners state that the road referred to was in good shape, being the Goldenrod highway and having met the approval of the state engineer. Mrs. Owens avers neglect on the part of the county and Mr. Phelps.

Half Century of Married Life in Antelope County

(Special to The Star.)

NELIGH, Neb., March 22.—Thursday was the fiftieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Reynolds of this city and the event was celebrated quietly at their home. Children and grandchildren and a few intimate friends gathered at the home for dinner and in the evening the members of the Methodist Ladies Aid society, of which Mrs. Reynolds is a member, came and gave them an old-fashioned charivari.

Of the family present at dinner were Mrs. Ed Olmsted and four children, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Remig and two children, Mrs. Minnie Brittell, Effie Rapp and Thelma Holt, a grandchild and Mrs. Ella Romig, a girlhood friend of Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds.

Mary Allen and Troubadore F. Reynolds were married fifty years ago by Judge D. F. Coe of this city. Of those present on that occasion only the bride and groom, Judge Coe, Charles West and Mrs. James Fields are now living. Judge Coe was expected to be present at this celebration but was unable to do so on account of sickness.

Arthur Denney in Role of Governor

(Special to The Star.)

FAIRBURY, Neb., March 22.—The Kiwanis club entertained the Rotary club Thursday evening at luncheon. Practically the entire membership of both clubs were present. Supper was served at 6:30 and a two hour interesting program was given. Mayor Frank Rain for the Kiwanis welcomed the visitors.

Governor Charles Bryan was billed for speaker of the evening. Arthur Denney, costumed and made up to look very much like Bryan appeared from a side door and for thirty minutes impersonated the governor in relating the wonderful things he had accomplished since becoming chief executive of Nebraska and recommending himself highly for a second term. This part of the program furnished much merriment.

Other speakers were Frank Moon, Si Fitch, R. C. Harris, Dr. Heath, J. H. LeRoy and Cliff Crooks.

GIRL WHO WOULD WED IS DETAINED

Parents Say She is Only Fifteen and Prevent the Ceremony.

(Special to The Star.)

NELIGH, Neb., March 22.—Sheriff Sutton of this city and his wife went to Burke, S. D., Friday, to bring back Miss Letha Short of Elgin.

The girl, according to her parents is only 15 years old, left Elgin in company with Ed Leibel, jr., going to Burke with the intention of being married, but the authorities there were notified and the wedding was stopped and the young lady detained.

It is understood the parental objection to the wedding is on account of the youth of the prospective bride.

Jones Funeral is Held at Beatrice

(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb, March 22 — A military funeral was held this afternoon at the Scott-Harman chapel for Major Lawrence Jones, who died at Hastings the first of the week. Members of the Masonic lodge Company C and American Legion, met the body at the Burlington station and escorted it to the chapel where Rev. W. A. Mulligan read the sermon. The body was then escorted to Evergreen Home cemetery where the Masons were in charge. A squad from Company C fired three salutes over the grave and taps were sounded by Bugler Collier.

Major Jones spent his boyhood in Beatrice and before locating at Hastings, Neb., served as captain of Company C. He was also with the American troops in France during the world war.

FACE CHARGES AS RESULT OF FIGHT

Autoists Said to Have Engaged in Free-For-All After Collision.

Four men appeared in police court Saturday morning on charges growing out of a free-for-all battle near Ninth and Q streets Friday afternoon, which followed when a municipal coal truck driven by L. Cauley collided with a Ford sedan driven by Babe Cooper. The cases were all continued until Tuesday morning.

Cooper was charged with intoxication, fighting and driving a car while intoxicated. F. J. Jacobson, city fireman, was charged with fighting. S. D. Thompson, and L. Cauley were charged with fighting. Jacobson was with Cooper and Thompson with Cauley, police said.

The truck was on the wrong side of the street at the time of the accident, it is claimed, but it was privileged to be there because of loading tracks.

ALL OF LONDON WALKS TO WORK

Subway Workers Meet Monday to Consider Sympathetic Walkout.

LONDON, March 22.—Street traffic was disorganized here today by a strike of 40,000 street railway and automblie bus employes.

Practically all Londoners were compelled to walk to work. Twenty-two hundred street cars and three thousand busses which normally carry six million passengers daily were idle.

About 300 independent "pirate" busses were operating, but were unable to carry more than a small fraction of the traffic. Taxicabs were at a premium. Subways and steam suburban trains were jammed. Every form of vehicle was utilized. Thousands rode bicycles to work.

Violence was threatened, when "pirate" bus drivers threatened the strikers' pickets. A crowd of angry commuters and police took control of the South London steam subway station.

The strikers are demanding a wage increase, but Lord Ashfield, head of the transportation companies, says it is impossible to grant it.

A government inquiry into the men's grievances is under way. The subway workers will meet Monday to consider a sympathy strike.

NEW CHURCH FOR GRACE LUTHERAN

Structure Costing $100,000 Planned—Committee Appointed to Push Project.

A $100,000 church building is being planned by the Grace English Lutheran church, and at a meeting Tuesday evening, a committree was appointed to have charge of the enterprise.

Miss Helen Kreuger was chosen treasurer, and the following are members of the survey committee: Gustave Prestegaard, Harold Hinkle, H. C. Luckey, Mrs. George Kurk and Mrs. Sturtevant.

Preliminary discussion of the plans showed that an auditorium with a seating capacity of 1,000 will probably be arranged for. Since the present pastor, Rev. Charles S. Bream, came last September, there has been a big increase in adult membership and in the activities of the church.

Announce Subjects to Be Discussed by Dr. Sullivan

Announcement of subjects to be discussed by Dr. William Laurence Sullivan, of New York, mission preacher of the Unitarian Laymen's league, in the series of seven evening meetings beginning Sunday at All Soul's church, Twelfth and H streets, was made today.

Opening with the subject "Jesus: His Person and His Gospel," Dr. Sullivan will take up in the order given the Unitarian interpretation of the following subjects:

"Sin, Redemption, and the Meaning of Character."

"The Church of Christ: Who Are Christians?"

"The Existence of God."

"Is Death the End?"

"The Bible in Relation to Reason and to Faith."

"The Question of Questions: Religion or Irreligion?"

Dr. Sullivan will conduct the regular morning services on this and next Sunday, taking as his subjects "From Lowest to Highest in Religion," and "Religion as Experienced."

Because of the interest manifested in the forthcoming series of meetings and to correct any misunderstanding of its purpose Newton E. Lincoln, mission secretary of the league, explained that all meetings of the series are open to anyone who desires to attend them.

"In this mission enterprise we are concerned chiefly with the so-called non-church members of the community," said Mr. Lincoln. "But, for better understanding of our position we invite adherents of other churches to attend these meetings."

"In the words of Dr. Sullivan—'If you go away a better Catholic, a better Baptist, or a better Methodist—whatever your affiliation with organized religion may be, more confirmed in the affiliation—we rejoice, because that is by no means the least of our purposes."

Chappell Speaks to Square and Compass Club of University

Two hundred and fifty members and guests of the Square and Compass club of the state university met at an annual banquet of that organization at the Grand hotel Friday evening.

Grand Master Charles A. Chappell was the principal speaker. Others were Prof. R. E. Cochran and Chancellor Samuel Avery. Frank M. Johnson, president of the club, was toastmaster.

Masonry will help every man concerned with it if approached in the right spirit, said Mr. Chappell. It plays a pivotal part in many lives. The educational program taken up by the Masonic service association, organized during the war, was explained by the grand master.

The growth of the Square and Compass club since it was started five years ago was the topic on Professor Cochran spoke.

A strong foothold in a lodge, church or similar organization is of greatest benefit to young men, Samuel Avery told the members, because it acts as a steadying influence in their lives.

Music was furnished by Charles Wiles and Dwight Merriam.

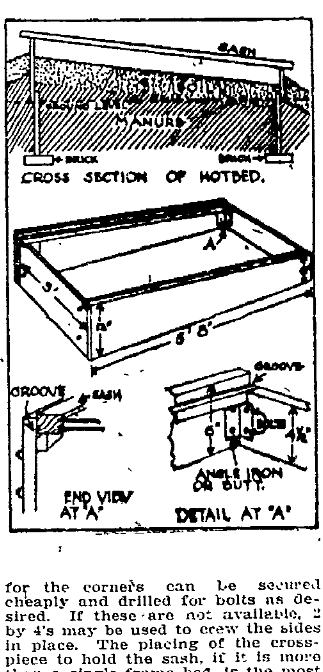
B. J. TIERNEY CALLED.

(Special to The Star.)

BROKEN BOW, Neb., March 22.—The body of B. J. Tierney, prominent rancher and business man of Ansley, was brought home from Rochester, Minn., and funeral services held Friday forenoon. Mr. Tierney, who was accompanied by his brother, C. F. Tierney of Broken Bow, died following an operation for kidney trouble.

The Home Garden

How to Make a Hotbed



Hotbeds, a necessity with experienced gardeners and those with gardens of such extent that the small box in the window of the dwelling is impractical, are rapidly approaching the luxury class because of the difficulty of securing a supply of fresh horse manure. If a supply can be located it now costs a pretty penny. Every one who has an assured supply available should make the most of the hotbed and if he has never used one should build one this spring.

The first move in constructing a hotbed is to secure a supply of manure to have ready to furnish the heat. For those who have water or steam heat in their dwellings, an artificially heated hotbed is available and experiments are being conducted as to the best methods of constructing the apparatus in conjunction with the dwelling house furnace. Other plans are based on incubator lamps to furnish the heat.

But the easiest way is with fresh horse manure properly treated. From 12 to 30 inches of manure is necessary, depending upon the earliness in starting the bed and the temperature of the section in which it is located. An average of 18 inches to 2 feet is usually used. Pile the manure in a flat topped pile four to six feet high. The maure should be strawy. Manure mixed with shavings is not practical.

If the weather is cold and fermentation is slow a little warm water, sufficient to moisten without soaking, will hasten the process. It will be apparent from the steam arising from the pile. It will heat unevenly at first and must be turned from time to time to distribute the heating portions and get a uniform fermentation, which will be indicated by uniform steaming. At this stage it is ready to put in the bed, laying first a stratum of straw or dry leaves to soften the contact of the heating manure and the cold earth.

The frame itself should be of the standard dimensions of 6 by 3 feet or in multiples of three in length as the standard sash is made in this size. The height of the frame is dependent upon whether the bed is to be made in a pit or upon the surface of the soil. In the northern states it is best to dig a pit and sink it, the pit extending at least six inches outside of the frame on all sides.

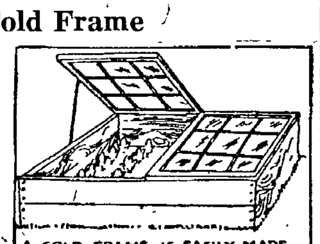
Inch lumber usually is used, although if the hotbed is to be permanent, two inch lumber is sometimes used. Half inch is easiest to handle but likely to warp. The back is usually twelce inches high and the front six inches. The frams should always face south.

The frame is best made to knock down unless it is desired to use it the year round, putting it together with screws and bolts. Angle irons for the corners can be secured cheaply and drilled for bolts as desired. If these are not available, 2 by 4's may be used to crew the sides in place. The placing of the crosspiece to hold the sash, if it is more than a single frame bed, is the most troublesome job. The edges should be channeled to carry off water seeping in around the edges instead of permitting it to drip into the bed and make it too wet.

Double glass sash is advisable for the hotbed as it obviates the necessity of covering the frame with mats or carpets during zero snaps. The layer of nonconducting air between the sashes serves the purpose excellently. These sashes are heavy, however, and some of the newer types are hinged in the middle so that half can be raised at a time.

The maure is placed in the pit and tramped down firmly. Sift the soil, if possible, placing the coarser material upon the manure in a thin layer. Over this spread the sifted soil to a depth of four or five inches. Place the sashes upon the frame and place a thermometer in the bed. It should be thrust through the earth down to the manure. It will heat very vogorously for a few days and then begin to subside. As it passes below 90 seed such as tomatoes, peppers and other tropical plants may be put in and the rest after it passes below 80.

Uses of a Cold Frame



A COLD FRAME IS EASILY MADE AND IDEAL FOR GETTING AN EARLY START WITH CABBAGE, CAULIFLOWER.

In a horseless community every gardener should have a cold frame. In fact they are almost as necessary as hotbeds. The chief function of the cold frame is to save a month on the season without any artificial heat while the hotbed savs two. It is merely an unheated hotbed. In addition, the cold frame is a twelve months in the year utility for its value in wintering hardy plants such as chrysanthemums, wall flowers, fox gloves and Canterbury bells which, while hardy, are likely to be rotted by winter wet and is worth its cost every year. In addition it permits blooming pansies and violets through the greater part of the year, fresh parsley, spinach and head lettuces until well into the winter.

The process on vegetables may be repeated again in the spring with lettuce, finer heads better than can be grown in the garden being ready in the cold frame before those outdoors are half grown.

But aside from these uses, the cold frame is indispensable for seed sowers at all times of the year. It is safe in all except the more northerly state to start sowing hardy annual flowers and vegetables by April 1 at the latest. Cool grown asters, snapdragons and similar plants are stocky and of the finest quality.

An extra start may be secured with tomatoes, eggplants and peppers which usually may be planted by April 15 with safety. The cold frame with its protecting glass, particularly if it is double glass sash, wards off freezing as low as 20 degrees, according to some estimates. It is heated by imprisoning the heat of the sun.

It, like the hotbed, gives better control of moisture, turnishing a moist atmosphere as well as even moisture for the roots. It is very valuable for starting seeds of perennials of slow germination such as larkspurs, the globe flowers and others which come up in March if planted the previous fall. For summer seed sowing it should face north.

Tender roses also may be wintered safely in a cold frame.

Muskmelons may be planted in April and allowed to mature in the frames, putting on the sash on cold days during the spring and again in the fall when the nights become too cold. A cold frame is the most useful all-around garden adjunct that can be employed.

What Seed to Sow in Hotbed

Plants that must be sown early to gain the full benefit of their crop-producing capacity should be sown in the hotbed in March in the middle states. In the northern states it is better to wait until the middle of the month and in the more southerly sections February is the usual time.

Plants to be sown are tomatoes peppers, eggplants, lettuce to be transplanted, particularly the heading varieties, onions for "Bermuda" types, cabbages, cauliflowers, celery, brussels sprouts, parsley, cucumbers and melons. There are two methods of using hotbeds, dependent upon the plants. One is to sow directly in the earth and the other to sow in flats, shallow boxes or pots and set them in the hotbed. The last method is best for the cucumbers and melons and their tribe as they can be lifted and transplanted with the least difficulty in this manner. In general it is best to sow directly in the soil. The rows should be run north and south and should be six inches apart for the more robust growing plants such as tomatoes and three inches for seedling onions.

Flower seeds that should be sown in the hotbed for early bloom are ageratum, asters, celosias, dahlias from seed, coleus, helitrope, castor beans, lobelias for edging, marigolds, pansies, petunias, slavias, salpiglossis, schizanthus, ten weeks' stocks, snapdragons, verbenas, zinnias and marigolds.

Sow the seed thinly unless there is ample room for transplanting before it is time to set them in the open ground. Otherwise the rows will need thinning as the plants increase in size. Seeds of large size such as castor beans, zinnias and dahlias may be spaced readily so that they can grow undisturbed until ready to remove to permanent quarters.

NAMES JEFFERSON MEMORIAL GROUP

Drive in April to Raise Funds for Purchase of Monticello.

In compliance with a suggestion by Stewart Gibbony, of Washington, president of the Jefferson Memorial Foundation, Mayor Frank C. Zehrung Saturday morning announced the appointment of a committee for Lincoln to take charge of the memorial drive here beginning April 6 and closing April 13, the birthday of Thomas Jefferson.

The purpose of the campaign is to raise funds with which to purchase Monticello, the home of Thomas Jefferson as a memorial to him and to call to mind the great American principles upon which the republic is founded.

The committee named by Mayor Zehrung is composed of J. J. Ledwith, chairman; G. C. Chambers, secretary; W. E. Barkley, treasurer; and C. J. Guenzel, H. E. Gooch, and H. T. Dobbins.

It was announced by the mayor that the memorial campaign is a non-partisan project and is being fostered alike by democrats and republicans of the nation. He thought the committee would arrange for a number of entertainments to be held during memorial week.

Big Schooner Goes Aground But All of Crew Make Shore

NORFOLK, Va., March 22. — The four masted schooner Dorothea M. Brinkman of Baltimore, went aground nine miles south of Oregon Inlet, N. C., early today in a raging sea and the crew of nine men was rescued in a breeches buoy and taken ashore. The schooner, high on the beach, is in bad condition and is pound-to pieces in the heavy surf.

PLAN INVESTIGATION.

NEW YORK, March 22.—An investigation with a view to possible contempt proceedings in the federal court was ordered today by District Attorney Banton after a report from Chicago yesterday that many records of E. W. Wagner and company, stock brokers who failed for $12,000,000 in 1921, has been sold for waste paper to a junk dealer in Chicago.

CHARGE HOFFHINE TOOK BANK MONEY

(Special to The Star.)

WASHINGTON, Kas., March 22.—By alleged falsification of records and manipulation of figures in his daily reports, William Hoffnine, a young assistant in the First National bank of this city is said to have swindled the bank out of money aggregating $6,000, during the past year, according to a thorough check by bank officials and the state bank examiner this week. Hoffnine was arrested on a warrant issued in the federal court at Topeka, and was released on bond Friday.

He is twenty-four years old, has lived in Washington county all his life, and has heretofore borne an excellent reputation. Recently he purchased a spacious home here, bought an expensive automobile, and was married to a Washington young lady.

At first a check of the bank records failed to locate him as responsible for any misdeed, but it was later discovered that he had manipulated deposit slip records, and the loose leaf sheet statements of depositors balances, and also that he had changed the figures in an incomplete statement being prepared by a bank examiner, and which was left in the adding machine at the bank while the examiner went to lunch.

The young man had been employed in the First National bank for the past four years, and was also formerly employed for a short time in the Morrowville State bank, south of here. He was under bond by a surety company, which took the case to the federal court after the arrest was made. It is understood that the First National bank levied against the home here and is reimbursed by the Surety company in the amount of $3,100, which will cover the loss. J. B. Lower, veteran banker of Washington, is president of the First National bank.

SKILES EXPLAINS COMMISSION WORK

Says Body in Charge of Guaranty Fund Has Saved Money to Bankers.

C. M. Skiles, general counsel of the state guaranty fund commission, explained to members of the Democratic Noon Luncheon club at the Grand hotel Saturday the workings of the commission, and how it has saved money since its establishment by the last legislature.

With sixty-three insolvent banks in the state now, whose reqquirements to pay depositors and for liquidation were about $8,000,000, there has been a heavy strain, but most of this money has been provided, and the rest can easily be found in the guaranty fund, said Mr. Skiles. Difficulty might have been encountered, however, had it not been for the commission, because in the last two years, so many financial houses have gone into the hands of receivers that sufficient funds to meet these drafts have cost many banks a good share of their profits.

This same condition has been felt in other states, and in Oklahoma, payments from the guaranty fund could not be made. A commission, such as Nebraska has, to eliminate the expenses of receiverships might have saved the fund there. Kansas seems to have been the only state, said Mr. Skiles, which has gone through these two years successfuly. Money from the funde there is paid under a different system than in this state and, though depositors are as certain of getting their money, they must wait longer for it.

Munich Court Acquits Two

MUNICH, March 22.—(A. P.)—The Munich district court today acquitted two young men charged with conspiring with Dr. Von Kahr, former Bavarian military dictator, but sentenced a third to one year's imprisonment.

Acquittals also were voted for two national socialists accused of conspiring against von-Kahr's life.

INVITED TO RIDE; SUES AUTO OWNER

Mrs. Owens, Injured in Accident, Brings Suit for Damages.

(Special to The Star.)

TECUMSEH, Neb., March 22.—Mrs. Henrietta Owens of Omaha has brought suit in district court for $20,000 damages against the county of Johnson and Charles S. Phelps, who lives at Graf. Mrs. Owens bases her claim on personal injuries received when Mr. Phelps' automobile was overturned, on the evening of January 11, 1923.

Mrs. Owens is an organizer for a fraternal society and was in Beatrice and desired to reach Graf that evening, the train having left. Mr. and Mrs. Phelps had driven to Beatrice in their car and asked Mrs. Owens to accompany them home. When the car got near the town of Crab Orchard, in the western part of the county, it was overturned and Mrs. Owens and Mrs. Phelps were seriously injured and taken back to a hospital at Beatrice at once.

Mrs. Owens, in her petition, states that her jniuries included a compound fracture of the right arm, with bone protruding, also severe lacerations of the flesh and nerves of the arm; of injury to her spine and great shock. She complains that she was obliged to remain in a hospital for a number of weeks, where she underwent surgical operations, with great suffering, and she was incapacitated from her usual work for many weeks.

Mrs. Phelps' injuries were not as severe, though she was in a hospital for some time. The members of the board of commissioners state that the road referred to was in good shape, being the Goldenrod highway and having met the approval of the state engineer. Mrs. Owens avers neglect on the part of the county and Mr. Phelps.

Half Century of Married Life in Antelope County

(Special to The Star.)

NELIGH, Neb., March 22.—Thursday was the fiftieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Reynolds of this city and the event was celebrated quietly at their home. Children and grandchildren and a few intimate friends gathered at the home for dinner and in the evening the members of the Methodist Ladies Aid society, of which Mrs. Reynolds is a member, came and gave them an old-fashioned charivari.

Of the family present at dinner were Mrs. Ed Olmsted and four children, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Remig and two children, Mrs. Minnie Brittell, Effie Rapp and Thelma Holt, a grandchild and Mrs. Ella Romig, a girlhood friend of Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds.

Mary Allen and Troubadore F. Reynolds were married fifty years ago by Judge D. F. Coe of this city. Of those present on that occasion only the bride and groom, Judge Coe, Charles West and Mrs. James Fields are now living. Judge Coe was expected to be present at this celebration but was unable to do so on account of sickness.

Arthur Denney in Role of Governor

(Special to The Star.)

FAIRBURY, Neb., March 22.—The Kiwanis club entertained the Rotary club Thursday evening at luncheon. Practically the entire membership of both clubs were present. Supper was served at 6:30 and a two hour interesting program was given. Mayor Frank Rain for the Kiwanis welcomed the visitors.

Governor Charles Bryan was billed for speaker of the evening. Arthur Denney, costumed and made up to look very much like Bryan appeared from a side door and for thirty minutes impersonated the governor in relating the wonderful things he had accomplished since becoming chief executive of Nebraska and recommending himself highly for a second term. This part of the program furnished much merriment.

Other speakers were Frank Moon, Si Fitch, R. C. Harris, Dr. Heath, J. H. LeRoy and Cliff Crooks.

BROKEN BOW, Neb., March 22.—Mrs. Anna M. Iszard, widow of the late John E. Iszard, for many years engaged in the hotel business in Broken Bow, passed away at the home of her sister in May's Landing, New Jersey, at the age of eighty-two years. Mr. and Mrs. Iszard were former residents of Omaha.

GIRL WHO WOULD WED IS DETAINED

Parents Say She is Only Fifteen and Prevent the Ceremony.

(Special to The Star.)

NELIGH, Neb., March 22.—Sheriff Sutton of this city and his wife went to Burke, S. D., Friday, to bring back Miss Letha Short of Elgin.

The girl, according to her parents is only 15 years old, left Elgin in company with Ed Leibel, jr., going to Barke with the intention of being married, but the authorities there were notified and the wedding was stopped and the young lady detained.

It is understood the parental objection to the wedding is on account of the youth of the prospective bride.

Jones Funeral is Held at Beatrice

(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., March 22. — A military funeral was held this afternoon at the Scott-Harman chapel for Major Lawrence Jones, who died at Hastings the first of the week. Members of the Masonic lodge Company C and American Legion, met the body at the Burlington station and escorted it to the chapel where Rev. W. A. Mulligan read the sermon. The body was then escorted to Evergreen Home cemetery where the Masons were in charge. A squad from Company C fired three salutes over the grave and taps were sounded by Bugler Collier.

Major Jones spent his boyhood in Beatrice and before locating at Hastings, Neb., served as captain of Company C. He was also with the American troops in France during the world war.

Power Saw Clips Off Two Fingers

(Special to The Star)

DEWITT, Neb., March 22.—Dick Barrett, young farmer living south of here, in Gage county, lost two fingers of his right hand in a power say he was operating on his farm Friday afternoon. The saw blade was running hot. He placed his right hand upon the log that was being sawed up, leaving it rest there while he stooped down to gather up some snow to put on the saw blade. The log moved into the swiftly revolving saw teeth and before Barrett realized it, two of his fingers were clipped neatly off and a third was badly mutilated. He was rushed to a Beatrice hospital on a freight train.

FACE CHARGES AS RESULT OF FIGHT

Autoists Said to Have Engaged in Free-For-All After Collision.

Four men appeared in police court Saturday morning on charges growing out of a free-for-all battle near Ninth and Q streets Friday afternoon, which followed when a municipal coal truck driven by L. Cauley collided with a Ford sedan driven by Babe Cooper. The cases were all continued until Tuesday morning.

Cooper was charged with intoxication, fighting and driving a car while intoxicated. F. J. Jacobson, city fireman, was charged with fighting. S. D. Thompson, and L. Cauley were charged with fighting. Jacobson was with Cooper and Thompson with Cauley, police said.

The truck was on the wrong side of the street at the time of the accident, it is claimed, but it was privileged to be there because of loading tracks.

ALL OF LONDON WALKS TO WORK

Subway Workers Meet Monday to Consider Sympathetic Walkout.

LONDON, March 22.—Street traffic was disorganized here today by a strike of 40,000 street railway and automblle bus employes.

Practically all Londoners were compelled to walk to work. Twenty-two hundred street cars and three thousand busses which normally carry six million passengers daily were idle.

About 300 independent "pirate" busses were operating, but were unable to carry more than a small fraction of the traffic. Taxicabs were at a premium. Subways and steam suburban trains were jammed. Every form of vehicle was utilized. Thousands rode bicycles to work.

Violence was threatened when "pirate" bus drivers threatened the strikers' pickets. A crowd of angry commuters and police took control of the South London steam subway station.

The strikers are demanding a wage increase, but Lord Ashfield, head of the transportation companies, says it is impossible to grant it.

A government inquiry into the men's grievances is under way. The subway workers will meet Monday to consider a sympathy strike.

NEW CHURCH FOR GRACE LUTHERAN

Structure Costing $100,000 Planned—Committee Appointed to Push Project.

A $100,000 church building is being planned by the Grace English Lutheran church, and at a meeting Tuesday evening, a committree was appointed to have charge of the enterprise.

Miss Helen Kreuger was chosen treasurer, and the following are members of the survey committee: Gustave Prestegaard, Harold Hinkle, H. C. Luckey, Mrs. George Kurk and Mrs. Sturtevant.

Preliminary discussion of the plans showed that an auditorium with a seating capacity of 1,000 will probably be arranged for. Since the present pastor, Rev. Charles S. Bream, came last September, there has been a big increase in adult membership and in the activities of the church.

Announce Subjects to Be Discussed by Dr. Sullivan

Announcement of subjects to be discussed by Dr. William Laurence Sullivan, of New York, mission preacher of the Unitarian Laymen's league, in the series of seven evening meetings beginning Sunday at All Soul's church, Twelfth and H streets, was made today.

Opening with the subject "Jesus: His Person and His Gospel," Dr. Sullivan will take up in the order given the Unitarian interpretation of the following subjects:

"Sin, Redemption, and the Meaning of Character."

"The Church of Christ: Who Are Christians?"

"The Existence of God."

"Is Death the End?"

"The Bible in Relation to Reason and to Faith."

"The Question of Questions: Religion or Irreligion?"

Dr. Sullivan will conduct the regular morning services on this and next Sunday, taking as his subjects "From Lowest to Highest in Religion," and "Religion as Experienced."

Because of the interest manifested in the forthcoming series of meetings and to correct any misunderstanding of its purpose Newton E. Lincoln, mission secretary of the league, explained that all meetings of the series are open to anyone who desires to attend them.

"In this mission enterprise we are concerned chiefly with the so-called non-church members of the community," said Mr. Lincoln. "But, for better understanding of our position we invite adherents of other churches to attend these meetings."

"In the words of Dr. Sullivan—'If you go away a better Catholic, a better Baptist, or a better Methodist—whatever your affiliation with organized religion may be, more confirmed in the affiliation—we rejoice, because that is by no means the least of our purposes."

Chappell Speaks to Square and Compass Club of University

Two hundred and fifty members and guests of the Square and Compass club of the state university met at an annual banquet of that organization at the Grand hotel Friday evening.

Grand Master Charles A. Chappell was the principal speaker. Others were Prof. R. E. Cochran and Chancellor Samuel Avery. Frank M. Johnson, president of the club, was toastmaster.

Masonry will help every man concerned with it if approached in the right spirit, said Mr. Chappell. It plays a pivotal part in many lives. The educational program taken up by the Masonic service association, organized during the war, was explained by the grand master.

The growth of the Square and Compass club since it was started five years ago was the topic on Professor Cochran spoke.

A strong foothold in a lodge. church or similar organization is of greatest benefit to young men, Samuel Avery told the members, because it acts as a steadying influence in their lives.

Music was furnished by Charles Wiles and Dwight Merriam.

B. J. TIERNEY CALLED.

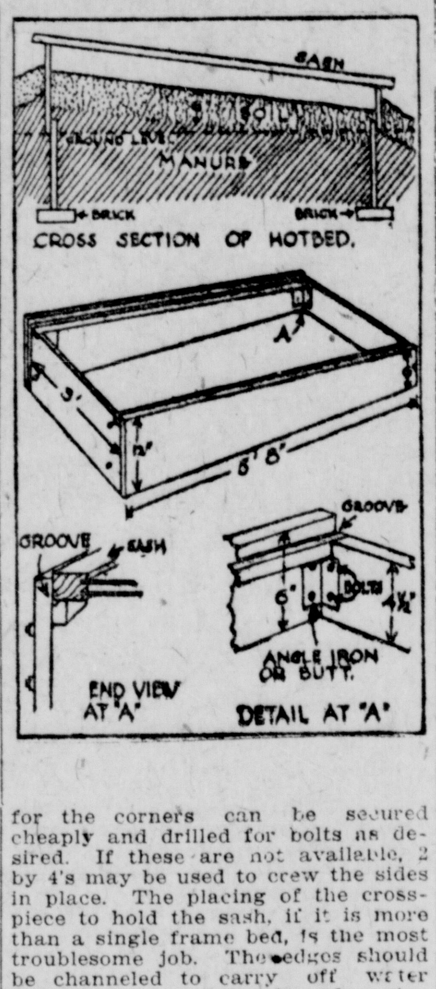
(Special to The Star.)

BROKEN BOW, Neb., March 22.—The body of B. J. Tierney, prominent rancher and business man of Ansley, was brought home from Rochester, Minn., and funeral services held Friday forenoon. Mr. Tierney, who was accompanied by his brother, C. F. Tierney of Broken Bow, died following an operation for kidney trouble.

The Home Garden

How to Make a Hotbed

Hotbeds, a necessity with experienced gardeners and those with gardens of such extent that the small box in the window of the dwelling is impractical, are rapidly approaching the luxury class because of the difficulty of securing a supply of fresh horse manure. If a supply can be located it now costs a pretty penny. Every one who has an assured supply available should make the most of the hotbed and if he has never used one should build one this spring.



The first move in constructing a hotbed is to secure a supply of manure to have ready to furnish the heat. For those who have water or steam heat in their dwellings, an artificially heated hotbed is available and experiments are being conducted as to the best methods of constructing the apparatus in conjunction with the dwelling house furnace. Other plans are based on incubator lamps to furnish the heat.

But the easiest way is with fresh horse manure properly treated. From 12 to 30 inches of manure is necessary, depending upon the earliness in starting the bed and the temperature of the section in which it is located. An average of 18 inches to 2 feet is usually used. Pile the manure in a flat topped pile four to six feet high. The maure should be strawy. Manure mixed with shavings is not practical.

If the weather is cold and fermentation is slow a little warm water, sufficient to moisten without soaking, will hasten the process. It will be apparent from the steam arising from the pile. It will heat unevenly at first and must be turned from time to time to distribute the heating portions and get a uniform fermentation, which will be indicated by uniform steaming. At this stage it is ready to put in the bed, laying first a stratum of straw or dry leaves to soften the contact of the heating manure and the cold earth.

The frame itself should be of the standard dimensions of 6 by 3 feet or in multiples of three in length as the standard sash is made in this size. The height of the frame is dependent upon whether the bed is to be made in a pit or upon the surface of the soil. In the northern states it is best to dig a pit and sink it, the pit extending at least six inches outside of the frame on all sides.

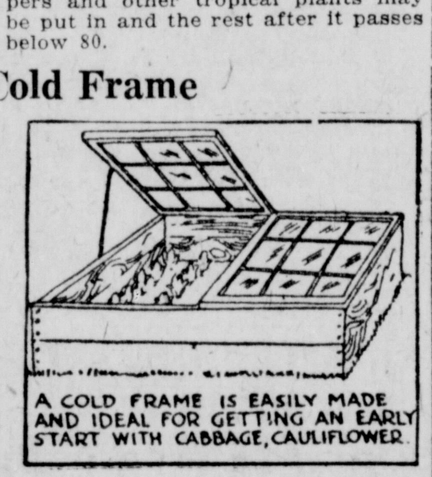
Inch lumber usually is used, although if the hotbed is to be permanent, two inch lumber is sometimes used. Half inch is easiest to handle but likely to warp. The back is usually twelce inches high and the front six inches. The frams should always face south.

The frame is best made to knock down unless it is desired to use it the year round, putting it together with screws and bolts. Angle irons for the corners can be secured cheaply and drilled for bolts as desired. If these are not available, 2 by 4's may be used to crew the sides in place. The placing of the cross-piece to hold the sash, if it is more than a single frame bed, is the most troublesome job. The edges should be channeled to carry off water seeping in around the edges instead of permitting it to drip into the bed and make it too wet.

Double glass sash is advisable for the hotbed as it obviates the necessity of covering the frame with mats or carpets during zero snaps. The layer of nonconducting air between the sashes serves the purpose excellently. These sashes are heavy, however, and some of the newer types are hinged in the middle so that half can be raised at a time.

The maure is placed in the pit and tramped down firmly. Sift the soil, if possible, placing the coarser material upon the manure in a thin layer. Over this spread the sifted soil to a depth of four or five inches. Place the sashes upon the frame and place a thermometer in the bed. It should be thrust through the earth down to the manure. It will heat very vogorously for a few days and then begin to subside. As it passes below 90 seed such as tomatoes, peppers and other tropical plants may be put in and the rest after it passes below 80.

Uses of a Cold Frame



A COLD FRAME IS EASILY MADE AND IDEAL FOR GETTING AN EARLY START WITH CABBAGE, CAULIFLOWER

In a horseless community every gardener should have a cold frame. In fact they are almost as necessary as hotbeds. The chief function of the cold frame is to save a month on the season without any artificial heat while the hotbed savs two. It is merely an unheated hotbed. In addition, the cold frame is a twelve months in the year utility for its value in wintering hardy plants such as chrysanthemums, wall flowers, fox gloves and Canterbury bells which, while hardy, are likely to be rotted by winter wet and is worth its cost every year. In addition it permits blooming pansies and violets through the greater part of the year,, fresh parsley, spinach and head lettuces until well into the winter.

The process on vegetables may be repeated again in the spring with lettuce, finer heads better than can be grown in the garden being ready in the cold frame before those outdoors are half grown.

But aside from these uses, the cold frame is indispensable for seed sowers at all times of the year. It is safe in all except the more northerly state to start sowing hardy annual flowers and vegetables by April 1 at the latest. Cool grown asters, snapdragons and similar plants are stocky and of the finest quality.

An extra start may be secured with tomatoes, eggplants and peppers which usually may be planted by April 15 with safety. The cold frame with its protecting glass, particularly if it is double glass sash, wards off freezing as low as 20 degrees, according to some estimates. It is heated by imprisoning the heat of the sun.

It, like the hotbed, gives better control of moisture, furnishing a moist atmosphere as well as even moisture for the roots. It is very valuable for starting seeds of perennials of slow germination such as larkspurs, the globe flowers and others which come up in March if planted the previous fall. For summer seed sowing it should face north.

Tender roses also may be wintered safely in a cold frame.

Muskmelons may be planted in April and allowed to mature in the frames, putting on the sash on cold days during the spring and again in the fall when the nights become too cold. A cold frame is the most useful all-around garden adjunct that can be employed.

What Seed to Sow in Hotbed

Plants that must be sown early to gain the full benefit of their crop-producing capacity should be sown in the hotbed in March in the middle states. In the northern states it is better to wait until the middle of the month and in the more southerly sections February is the usual time.

Plants to be sown are tomatoes peppers, eggplants, lettuce to be transplanted, particularly the heading varieties, onions for "Bermuda" types, cabbages, cauliflowers, celery, brussels sprouts, parsley, cucumbers and melons. There are two methods of using hotbeds, dependent upon the plants. One is to sow directly in the earth and the other to sow in flats, shallow boxes or pots and set them in the hotbed. The last method is best for the cucumbers and melons and their tribe as they can be lifted and transplanted with the least difficulty in this manner. In general it is best to sow directly in the soil. The rows should be run north and south and should be six inches apart for the more robust growing plants such as tomatoes and three inches for seedling onions.

Flower seeds that should be sown in the hotbed for early bloom are ageratum, asters, celosias, dahlias from seed, coleus, helitrope, castor beans, lobelias for edging, marigolds, pansies, petunias, slavias, salpiglossis, schizanthus, ten weeks' stocks, snapdragons, verbenas, zinnias and marigolds.

Sow the seed thinly unless there is ample room for transplanting before it is time to set them in the open ground. Otherwise the rows will need thinning as the plants increase in size. Seeds of large size such as castor beans, zinnias and dahlias may be spaced readily so that they can grow undisturbed until ready to remove to permanent quarters.

NAMES JEFFERSON MEMORIAL GROUP

Drive in April to Raise Funds for Purchase of Monticello.

In compliance with a suggestion by Stewart Gibbony, of Washington, president of the Jefferson Memorial Foundation, Mayor Frank C. Zehrung Saturday morning announced the appointment of a committee for Lincoln to take charge of the memorial drive here beginning April 6 and closing April 13, the birthday of Thomas Jefferson.

The purpose of the campaign is to raise funds with which to purchase Monticello, the home of Thomas Jefferson as a memorial to him and to call to mind the great American principles upon which the republic is founded.

The committee named by Mayor Zehrung is composed of J. J. Ledwith, chairman; G. C. Chambers, secretary; W. E. Barkley, treasurer; and C. J. Guenzel, H. E. Gooch, and H. T. Dobbins.

It was announced by the mayor that the memorial campaign is a non-partisan project and is being fostered alike by democrats and republicans of the nation. He thought the committee would arrange for a number of entertainments to be held during memorial week.

CHARGE HOFFHINE TOOK BANK MONEY

(Special to The Star.)

WASHINGTON, Kas., March 22.—By alleged falsification of records and manipulation of figures in his daily reports, William Hoffnine, a young assistant in the First National bank of this city is said to have swindled the bank out of money aggregating $6,000, during the past year, according to a thorough check by bank officials and the state bank examiner this week. Hoffhine was arrested on a warrant issued in the federal court at Topeka, and was released on bond Friday.

He is twenty-four years old, has lived in Washington county all his life, and has heretofore borne an excellent reputation. Recently he purchased a spacious home here, bought an expensive automobile, and was married to a Washington young lady.

At first a check of the bank records failed to locate him as responsible for any misdeed, but it was later discovered that he had manipulated deposit slip records, and the loose leaf sheet statements of depositors balances, and also that he had changed the figures in an incomplete statement being prepared by a bank examiner, and which was left in the adding machine at the bank while the examiner went to lunch.

The young man had been employed in the First National bank for the past four years, and was also formerly employed for a short time in the Morrowville State bank, south of here. He was under bond by a surety company, which took the case to the federal court after the arrest was made. It is understood that the First National bank levied against the home here and is reimbursed by the Surety company in the amount of $3,100, which will cover the loss. J. B. Lower, veteran banker of Washington, is president of the First National bank.

SKILES EXPLAINS COMMISSION WORK

Says Body in Charge of Guaranty Fund Has Saved Money to Bankers.

C. M. Skiles, general counsel of the state guaranty fund commission, explained to members of the Democratic Noon Luncheon club at the Grand hotel Saturday the workings of the commission, and how it has saved money since its establishment by the last legislature.

With sixty-three insolvent banks in the state now, whose reqquirements to pay depositors and for liquidation were about $8,000,000, there has been a heavy strain, but most of this money has been provided, and the rest can easily be found in the guaranty fund, said Mr. Skiles. Difficulty might have been encountered, however, had it not been for the commission, because in the last two years, so many financial houses have gone into the hands of receivers that sufficient funds to meet these drafts have cost many banks a good share of their profits.

This same condition has been felt in other states, and in Oklahoma, payments from the guaranty fund could not be made. A commission, such as Nebraska has, to eliminate the expenses of receiverships, might have saved the fund there. Kansas seems to have been the only state, said Mr. Skiles, which has gone through these two years successfuly. Money from the funde there is paid under a different system than in this state and, though depositors are as certain of getting their money, they must wait longer for it.

Munich Court Acquits Two

MUNICH, March 22.—(A. P.)—The Munich district court today acquitted two young men charged with conspiring with Dr. Von Kahr, former Bavarian military dictator, but sentenced a third to one year's imprisonment.

Acquittals also were voted for two national socialists accused of conspiring against von Kahr's life.

FAIR PLAY FOR TEACHERS

A taxpayer, writing in the forum department of this newspaper Friday, suggests certain economies which should be adopted in the administration of the Lincoln public schools.

Some of the suggestions are timely and decidedly to the point while others are ill-advised and will only serve to further confuse the school situation. Reduction in the amount of supervision, which is now being carried on in the Lincoln schools is not only feasible but is highly desirable in the opinion of a great many patrons of the district. At this time, when the demand for economy is so great, the tendency to enlarge upon the school activities is most unfortunate. Instead of increasing the curriculum, and adding to the courses of instruction and training which are now being given, the disposition should be to reduce.

Apparently the Lincoln school board, and Superintendent Lefler are unmindful of the demand. The scope of the medical and hygiene clinics, the sphere of vocational training, and the extent of supervision are being constantly enlarged. If Superintendent Lefler has achieved any practical results in eliminating some of the supervision which crept into the school system a few years ago, they have not appeared on the surface. In fact, Mr. Lefler seems as strongly committed to the program of supervision of the teaching forces as his predecessors in office. In the last few months, the work of the visiting nurse has been greatly elaborated. Medical and hygienic clinics are costing the taxpayers of this city a pretty penny, despite all showings to the contrary, and they are responsibilities which the public schools do not have to assume. While the cry for economy is so strong, certainly these activities may be very well eliminated.

That is as far as the taxpayers should go.

Lincoln is justly proud of her fine schools and her splendid system of education. She is determined that they shall stand in the front rank of cities in the United States. Whatever is needed for the development of the schools along sane and sensible lines will be provided cheerfully.

Two suggestions which the correspondent, who signs herself taxpayer, has incorporated in her letter, cannot receive favorable consideration.

The propsal to conduct school six days in the week, thus shortening the term by six weeks, is nonsense. To expect the boys and girls, of from 8 to 15 years, to diligently apply themselves for the same period that adults engage in work, is unreasonable. Experience has amply demonstrated that the present school program is most advantageous. The suggestion to dispense with kindergartens does not merit consideration.

No doubt the appeal for a reduction in the salaries which are now being paid the teachers will meet with some response. If the time ever comes when the board of education should attempt to restore the old basis of teachers' salaries, it will be a sorry day for the public schools of this city. For years the teachers have been notoriously under paid. They have been compelled to scrimp and slave to eke out a bare living, without a possible chance for savings, devoting the best years of their life to training the young people for useful citizenship. They have provided the morale for the American system of education, admittedly the best in the world.

When one considers the new responsibilities, which have in recent years been placed upon the shoulders of those who assume the duty of training the boys and girls of this country, this demand for a slash in wages seems ridiculous. The boys and girls are being thrown upon the schools for not only education, but for moral and spiritual training to a greater degree than ever before. With the breakdown in home life, the teachers are being compelled to assume a greater guidance of the children which come under their care than ever before.

There should be no reduction in teachers' pay. They are not now receiving more than a living wage commensurate with their duties. Cut out some of the innovations in education but leave the teachers alone.

HELPING OURSELVES BY HELPING EUROPE.

Steady improvement in the foreign exchange situation continues with the upward movement of the French franc, started ten days ago by the announcement of a $100,000,000 American loan to the Poincare government. Belgian currency, which had fallen to an even lower depth than that of France, is showing good recovery, while British and Italian exchange have also advanced a little.

Of course, the fact that $100,000,000 is being placed at the disposal of France by American financiers would not in itself relieve the situation. That amount of money could easily be poured into the European financial chasm and disappear without leaving a trace, just as other huge sums have been swallowed up before.

But the conditions which France has agreed to in connection with the loan are the vital element which has already restored 180 points to the value of the badly depreciated franc and promises to bring it farther back on the road toward its normal status. These are, briefly stated, as follows:

1—Relentless pruning of national expenditures, accompanied by increased taxation, to insure that the government's revenues hereafter shall be at least equal to the disbursements.

2.—Easing up of restrictions in the Rhineland and the Ruhr complained of by the Germans and the restoration of civil authority in those regions.

3.—More cordial co-operation by French authorities with those of allied and associated countries, and abandonment of plans for enforcing payment of reparations by military methods.

By becoming more reasonable and willing to heed the counsel of its friends in the United States and Great Britain, the French government has laid the foundation for a renewal of the amicable relations which formerly existed. By adopting a business policy of living within its income, it has regained the confidence of the world in its purpose and ability to maintain the integrity of its own currency.

Day by day, in every way, to quote the formula of Poincare's famous countryman, the money situation for France is getting better and better. And as conditions improve for France, they also improve for Belgium, Great Britain and Italy. The financial fortunes of these four nations appear to be as closely linked with one another as were military interests during the world war. What helps one helps all. This is amply proven by the foreign exchange quotations of the last few days.

If the quartet of European allied powers can continue to work together they will certainly be able, with a helping hand from the United States, to pull themselves out of the fiscal slough of despond. The much desired concert of action seems about to be realized through the work of the Dawes commission investigating Germany's capacity to pay reparations. Indications are that the report of that body will be accepted by all the countries named and that Europe will at last get down to brass tacks in reorganizing its affairs for the post-war era.

The skies are certainly much brighter than they were a few weeks ago. Whatever this country can do to help along the international concord and establish conditions of peace and tranquility on the trans-Atlantic continent will, in the end, advance its own material interests by enabling the people of those countries to buy our products and pay the debts they owe us.

SAVINGS ON GRAIN SHIPMENTS.

In one of a series of recent articles appearing in a farm publication in this state, the Nebraska Farmer, Frank D. Tomson presents some interesting figures relative to the savings on grain shipments handled by the barge line operating between St. Louis and New Orleans.

By its use, Mr. Tomson says, the shippers of the corn belt, or to be more exact, the Missouri Valley, saved in 1923, over $900,000 in freight charges. The counties in the second congressional district in Nebraska, were represented with a tonnage shipment over the barge line of 55,791, on which there was a saving of $72,529 over what the charges would have been had the grain been shipped by rail. In the month of August, last year, grain shipments aggregating 1,354,707 bushels were handled by the barge line upon which there was a saving in freight rates of $53,223.

This single barge line handled freight and made a handsome profit on the basis of a charge of 3½ mills per ton mile. The average rail rate throughout the United States is given at 10.78 mills per ton mile.

One of the most urgent needs of the great agricultural seection is cheaper freight rates. With the railroads facing high labor costs, and other similar items, a very material reduction in rates is not to be expected. But if the rates were slashed in two, the rail charges would still be in excess of the expense of transporting the grain raised in Nebraska and in neighboring states by water. Water transportation will always be cheaper than by rail. The savings resulting from shipments of grain over the barge line, however, constitute a very forceful argument for the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence project. No single step to be taken by the government, which might prove of value to the middle western states, is of greater importance. By providing a means of cheap transportation for grain it would save the farmers of Nebraska and adjoining states millions of dollars annually.

BIDS ON LIGHTING MATERIAL OPENED

Equipment for Use in Ornamental System in Antelope Park Drives.

City Engineer D. L. Erickson and City Clerk Berg, Saturday morning opened bids for the furnishing of new electric light poles and equipment for the extension of the ornamental lighting system in Antelope park.

The bid of Harry Shaben of Lincoln was the liwest at $1,010. With the exception of one bid all were below the estimated $1,250.

Other bids were as follows:

Korsmeyer Co., Lincoln.....	$1,187.62
McGraw Elec. Co., Omaha..	1,187.63
Western Elec. Co., Omaha..	1,390.33
Central Elec. Co., Chicago..	1,263.07
Central Elec. Co., Chicago..	1,390.00

The extension of the ornamental lighting will include both sides of Antelope park pavilion, and south to the entrance of Memorial drive.

The bids opened Saturday were the second group which has been submitted. The first bids were rejected because of a misunderstanding on some of the specifications.

It is thought by the city engineer that he will have a recommendation to make to the council at the Monday meeting on letting the contract.

Vessels Collide In Hudson River

NEW YORK, March 22 — The White Star liner Olympic, bound for England, today collided with the steamer Fort St George, of the Furness-Bermuda line, in the Hudson river. The Fort St. George, which had about forty-five feet of rail on sun deck smashed, returned to her dock

Sinclair Facing Contempt Action in Upper House

WASHINGTON, March 22.—By unanimous vote the oil committee voted today to certify Harry F. Sinclair to the senate for contempt as a result of his refusal to testify.

The decision as to the exact procelure will be held in obeyance until the return of Atlee Pomerene and Owen J. Roberts, special government counsel in the oil lease cases.

Senators said two courses were open—contempt proceedings before the senate itself or certification of the case to the district attorney of the District of Columbia for grand jury proceedings.

Taylor Believed Action Was Begun Little Too Late

MERNA, Neb., March 22.—W. J. Taylor, reutrned home today after dismissing his injunction suit to restrain the secretary of state from certifying Governor Bryan's name as a candidate for thep rogressive cubernatorial nomination.

"We were afraid the judges might say we were a little too slow in filing the suit," Taylor said. "And we could withdraw the case now without prejudice and try it after the election. The basis of our suit will be just as good after the election as now. If a republican gets on a democratic ballot through any kind of fraud he is taken off. The same can be done for Bryan."

Spotting Fakes.

The public health education division of the New York Health Department has issued a list "indicating the wide realm from which quacks are drawn, and the seriocomic titles assumed by some." Here it is as originally set forth:

"Aero-therapy," "astral healers," "autothermy," "beautifier establishments," "biodynamo-chromatic therapy," "blood specialists," "bone setters," "cancer cures," "chromo-therapy," "christos (blood washers)), "drugless healers," "electro-therapy," "electrotonic methods," "electric light diagnosis," "electroyonic methods," "electro-homeopathy," "electronapro-therapy," "geo-therapy," "hypnotist," "hydro-theraphy," "herbalist," "helio-therapy," "irido-therapy diagnosticians," "Kneipp cure," "Leonic healers," "mental and spiritual healing," "medical gymnast," "mechano-therapy," "naturologist," "natureopath," "naprapath," "optical institutes," "obesity curers," "psycho-analyst," "patent medicine men," "photo-therapy," physical culture," "physio-therapy," "physio-therpay," "practo-therapy," "quartz-therapy," "spondylo-therapy," "sanipractor," "spectrocrome," "special food faddist," "special drug faddist," "spectro-therapy," "tropho-therapy," "telathermy," "vacuum and serum cures," "votopath," "zodiac-therapy," "zonet-therapy."

While they were at it, they might have added "duly-licensed doctors of medicine," for there are quacks in the medical profession just as there are in the fields of physical culture, optical institutes, Christian Science, hydro-therapy, and so on.

The important thing was left out: That is, how shall a sick person distinguish between a person competent to treat disease and a plausible but incompetent fake? There are so many high-sounding titles these days that the ordinary citizen is liable to be confused (and confusing the ordinary citizen is largely the reason why fakes deliberately adopt astounding titles if they can't by hook or crook gain the titles held by honorable persons.)

One very good way to steer clear of crooks is to call on a well-known, reputable, family physician and ask him what he thinks; just as you call on a reputable banker to find out if a certain bond or stock is legitimate or a fake. The physician knows the honest, legitimate adjuncts to the medical profession in his community and—most important of all—he is competent to diagnose your case and tell you whether you need to go to a good physical culture gymnasium, a mental healer, or a beautifying establishment.

Questions and Answers.

Your questions on health topics will be answered by Dr Dorothy Bocker if you address her in care of this newspaper.

Mrs. R. C. H.—I expect to have a baby in about five months. Would there be any danger in having the denist go over my teeth at this time?

Answer—By all means have your teeth put in good shape. I would have no serious dental operation done (like pulling several teeth) without first consulting a physician. But it is both safe and highly desirable to have the teeth in the best possible condition.

It seems a foolish thing to say, but since the country went dry it has floated a great many more bond issues.

At times there seems to be some relationship between the degree of a husband's jealousy and the degree of his baldness.

Gus Beschorner of Lincoln, gave three addresses in Grand Island Friday. He spoke to the student body of Grand Island college at convocation and later addressed the economics class of the same school. At noon he spoke before the Kiwanis club, describing conditions in Russia as he found them during 1922, when he served as a relief worker in the Volga district.

Miller and Paine Window Is Broken

A corner of a plate glass window in the Miller and Paine department store, was smashed Saturday morning when a wax figure being removed from the window accidentally fell against it.

An Alleged Beer Runner Found Dead

CHICAGO, March 22. — (A. P.) — Mystery surrounding the death last night of Joseph W. Coleman, alleged beer runner, was partly dispelled today when surgeons determined a small hole in his head had been made by a fall instead of a bullet as at first supposed.

SEVERAL INJURED.

ILLNESS OF BOTH WAS VERY SUDDEN

Mrs. Marshall Discovered Unconscious On the Following Morning.

Lew Marshall, though still very seriously ill following a mastoid operation only a week ago, today is doing as well as can be expected in view of the shock of Mrs. Marshall's death and the long difficult trip from Lauderdale, Fla. He is at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Dorgan and under the care of Dr. E. E. Foster of New Bedford, Miss., also a winter resident of Fort Lauderdale. Dr. Foster made the trip from the south with Mr. Marshall.

Mr. Marshall first became ill on Monday of last week when playing a game of golf with Mr. Dorgan. Acute inflammation of the ear quickly developed causing inflammation of the mastoid. Following a consultation of doctors it was deemed necessary to operate. The operation was performed by Dr. Foster in the local hospital of Fort Lauderdale. Mrs. Marshall had apparently been in splendid health and with Mrs. Dorgan was calling on friends while the men were playing golf. Tuesday morning she was discovered in a semi-conscious condition by Mr. and Mrs. Dorgan. Bronchial pneumonia developed and she died the following Sunday at 3 o'clock. Her condition was not regarded serious at first and her death was a great shock to her group of friends in the south as well as her Lincoln friends. Her physicians were Dr. Scott Edwards and Dr. Maxwell of Fort Lauderdale and she was given every care and attention. It was not until Monday that Mr. Marshall could be told of his wife's death.

The death of Mrs. Marshall and the serious illness of Mr. Marshall is a sad ending to a particularly happy winter in the south which Mr. and Mrs. Marshall and Mr. and Mrs. Dorgan had spent in Fort Lauderdale with the same little group of winter [illegible] who have met there for several years. The friendship with [illegible] and Mrs. Foster, who remained in Fort Lauderdale, dates back to three years ago when they met in Florida and have continued to meet there for each of the succeeding winters. Dr. Foster was a specialist in New Bedford for a number of years, but has now retired from active practice and divided the time between the south and his eastern home. He will remain here until Mr. Marshall is well on the road to recovery.

"Mr. Marshall suffered a relapse yesterday and had a bad night, but his condition this morning is improved and no complications have developed," Dr. Foster stated Saturday.

City Briefs

Approves Sewage Plan.— The sanitary division o fthe state health bureau has approved plans submitted by the village of Howells for a sewage disposal plant somewhat similar to the one constructed and now in operation by the Lincoln sanitary district, though on a considerably smaller scale. There are to be sedimentation and digestion tanks, a sludge bed, and provision for discharging the liquid sewage after it has been treater. Sprinkling filters may be installed at a later time.

Submits Estimate. — The Lincoln City hospital board of directors has filed with the city clerk for approval by the council the fourth estimate for work done on the new building. The estimate is for electric wiring done by the Schricker Electrical Co., and is for $1,598. It has been approved by the city engineer and the architect.

Attends Dinner At Omaha.—City Commissioner A. P. Cowgill left Saturday morning for Omaha where he will attend a dinner at 6 o'clock at the quarters of Brigadier General Dorey at Fort Omaha. The dinner will be one of many held in every section of the United States by graduates of West Point. Mr. Cowgill said that the largest dinner would be held at the Hotel Astor in New York.

Want Alley Paved—A petition was filed Saturday asking that the alley between A and B streets from Nineteenth to Twentieth streets be paved.

SEVEN WOUNDED.

SEVILLE, Spain, March 22. — Seven Spanish soldier were wounded in an explosion here today.

LARSON IS FORCED OUT BY NEW RULE

Could Have Retained Job If He Had No Primary Opponent.

After starting work in February as a dairy inspector for the state and continuing on its payroll for several weeks at $120 a month and traveling expenses, L. A. Larson of Wellfleet has resigned and is no longer connected with Nebraska's administrative machinery. His retirement is due to a rule promulgated by Governor Bryan some time ago that no state employe in a department under his control who becomes a candidate for office and who has opposition in the primary shall continue to hold his position.

Mr. Larson has filed for the democratic nomination for land commissioner, and has accepted a nominating petition also for the progressive primary. He has a democratic oppoent, Warren Riggs of Arcadia.

The governor's rule which compelled Mr. Larson to quit his state job was intended to prevent those in the state's employ having any advantage over other persons running against them in the primaries. An inspector travels constantly and meets a great many people, which would naturally help his candidacy as against someone who holds no public position and has to pay his own way when he goes out on a campaign trip.

Agriculture Secretary Shumway talked with Governor Bryan about Larson's case and the conclusion was reached that he should resign, under the existing circumstanees. If he had had no primary antagonist, it would have been different. Larson is the second man in the agriculture department to give up his place in order to run for an elective office. Herman Diers of Gresham tendered his resignation a couple of months ago, before filing for congress in the Fourth district.

The position vacated by Larson will not be filled at this time, Secretary Shumway says, but the department will get along with the inspectors it now has. There is one other man doing dairy inspection work.

SUGGESTS SAFETY PLAN TO COUNCIL

Asks City to Take First Action at Twenty-Seventh and Randolph Crossing.

In a communication to Mayor F. C. Zehrung and the members of the city council, J. H. Markel, president of the Automobile club, Saturday suggested to the city administration that a boulevard stop be established for all traffic at Twenty-seventh and Randolph streets. Mr. Markel said that if the city would take the steps necessary to create a boulevard at the crossing, which is considered one of the most dangerous in the city, the Automobile club would pay the expense of placing the necessary signs.

Commenting on Mr. Markel's letter, Mayor Zehrung said he was heartily in favor of taking some action as suggested by the auto club president. He pointed out that one way of handling the situation would be to paint a white stripe across each street with the word "stop" in letters, also in white, so placed that autoists could see it easily in the day time and at night.

The mayor pointed out, however, that the suggestion is a question that concerns the street department, but added that he did not think there would be any trouble about a satisfactory understanding being reached.

The mayor said the members of the council have been considering establishing boulevard stops at dangerous intersections for some time.

Let Contract for Printing Report of Railway Commission

Four hundred cloth-bound and 400 paper bound copies of the Nebraska railway commission's annual report for 1923, making a book of approximately 600 pages, will be printed by the York Blank Book Co. at the price of $1.89 a page, under a contract awarded to it Saturday by State Purchasing Agent Farris, as the lowest among seven bidders on the work.

Should additional copies be desired the company will furnish them at 55 cents apiece for cloth binding and 35 cents for paper.

The next lowest bid was that of the Nebraska Farmer, Lincoln, at $1.95 a page. The Hammond Printing Co., Fremont, submitted the highest figure, which was $3.30. Other firms which filed propositions with the purchasing agent were the Kline Publishing Co., and the American Printing Co., both of Lincoln; Claflin Printing Co., University Place; and Burr Publishing Co., Aurora.

Tecumseh in Need of More Teachers

(Special to The Star)

TECUMSEH, Neb., March 22. — There are a number of vacancies on the teaching force of the Tecumseh schools for next year. Recently the board re-elected the entire teaching force of this year for the coming year. Six already have declined and others may. The six to decline are Miss Margaret Carman, home economics; Miss Helen Fuller, music, of Tecumseh. Miss Daisy Graves, Lincoln, kindergarten; Miss Idella Bock, David City, fourth grade; Miss Beth Mickel, Crete, science; Miss Bula Cook, Fontenelle, normal training.

CHAPTER XLVI.

Donald Muir loved her! That was the statement Winifred Scott repeated to herself so often that the sentence ceased to have meaning.

He had told her he loved her. That in itself was wonderful. It was her last conscious thought that night and it was in her mind every hour of the following day.

Yet, after all, she reflected, this fact could not work any immediate revolution in her life. As she had thrilled at his declaration of affection, she had fancied that a new existence wa sopeningfi before her—that she returned his affection. Now in the light of the prosaic day she was not sure that she did love him enough to wish to marry him. To be engaged was one thing. That would mean attentions from him,—lots of good times with him, and a sense of being grown-up. But settling down in marriage did not appeal to her. She had not yet seen life. And, unless she was certain that she loved him, Donald would not consent to a bethrothal.

He was a queer man. She could not doubt that he cared deeply for her, yet he was quite willing to leave her perfectly free until she knew her own mind. Now, if it had been Richard!——

She smiled as she appreciated the difference between the two men. Richard, were he her lover would be fearful lest she might care for some one else. He would probably write poetry, or say things so beautiful that they would move her heart to affection. No, it would not be a difficult matter to fall in love with Richard. Yet, of course, she cared more for her guardian than for the young reformer.

She assured herself of this again when Rankin's name was announced that evening. She had not heard from Donald today. It was like him to refrain from thrusting himself upon her thoughts after last evenin's revelations. He would preefr that she take time to think over their conversation, untrammeled by his influence.

It had been a rather stupid day. The thrill produced by Donald's declaration had subsided. It had left her with a desire for a new sensation. She was relieved when Richard arrived.

"I am delighted to see you!" she exclaimed as she shook hands with him. "I have been bored. I am glad you came."

"So am I," he smiled. Yet she fancied a slight constraint in his manner. She supposed it was because of their chance encounter of last evening. She must explain that episode. Yesterday morning she had resented the idea of doing this. Now in Richard's magnetic presence it seemed noly just that she should make some explanation to him.

"Let us sit here by the window," she suggested. Then as he took a chair near hers, she said:

"I am sure you were surprised at seeming me among the giddy crowd last night, weren't you?"

He flushed. "Why, yes—and no! You have been so kind and gracious in your interest in the side of life in which I am interested that I have sometimes forgotten that you yourself are a part of the other side. Yet when I saw you last night I realized suddenly that you were just where you belonged."

"One may belong there and yet be interested in the other half," she declared.

"Yes," he admitted. "But few are."

"You are mistaken, Richard," she urged. "And I have something to tell you that will prove it."

"Ah?"

He was loking at her eagerly, yet with a certain air of anxiety. It was as if he were desirous to hear what she was was about to tell him, but, at the same time, apprehensive as to its purport.

She smiled at him whimsically. She would enjoy to the full the anticipation of imparting good news.

"When I explain, will you acknowledge that you have misjudged one well-to-do person?" she queried teasingly.

"Yes, if I have," he said.

"I hope you do not count me among the 'well-to-do' people just because I would with one of them last night," she laughed.

"You may be one of the well-to do," he said. "That does not mean that you are as heartless as successful business men are. But—what were you going to tell me that would change my mind about rich folk."

"Just this," leaning towards him and watching his face. "You need wait no longer before starting your magazine—or whatever it is you are longing to do for your poor men. For you can count on a loan of five thousand dollars immediately."

(To Be Continued Monday.)

Gypsy Smith Tells Young Folks Story of Early Boyhood

"This sermon is served up for young people," said Gypsy Simon Smith, Friday night, to the largest evening audience he has so far addressed.

"It is just a series of stories," but behind them is my sermon." The story of his very early boyhood, when, at nine years of age, he ran away from his forest home to the great city of London was full of thrilling incidents and had a satisfying ending as he told of the kindness of the man who picked him up in the street where he had been knocked down by a wagon, and returned him to his home. That disobedience must be punished was impressed upon him his first day of school when he did not fulfill to the letter the command of his teacher to release a field mouse which he had taken with him as a companion. The lesson learned that day was never forgotten.

"Don't forget the first commandment, young folks. 'Honor thy father and mother.' I promised my dying father that I would help my mother take care of my younger brothers, so instead of learning to read and write, I had to get out and learn how to earn bread for us to eat. But the greatest joy in this life is what you get through serving others. We are suffering today from too much drug store complexion and not enough home connection." He pleaded with the parents to themselves be careful how they spend their time and energies if they would have their children grow up pure and wholesome.

"Life is made up of three stages, hatching, matching and snatching," said the speaker, and we can all be careful about the second. Why say, 'A boy must sow his wild oats,' or why have two standards of morality? No man has a right to marry a pure girl unless he has a clean record."

By request, one of the solos sung Sunday, "He Never Has Broken a Promise, Not One," was repeated at the close of the sermon. Dr. Aitken announced that there would be no service Saturday night

'Jack Straw' Put On With Success by High School Junior Class

"Jack Straw," by W. S. Maughan, as presented by the junior class of Lincoln high Friday evening, was hailed by a large audience as one of the most successful comedies ever seen there.

Not only was the character work by students taking leading parts brilliantly done, but the action by those in minor roles and the general completeness in details of scenery showed careful direction.

Lois Harris, as a virago in the role of Mrs. Parker-Jennings, won applause, and Alfred Poska, as the brow-beaten husband, played that part with finesse. The leading role, Jack Straw, was taken by Dan Smith, who carried the dignity and ease which that character demanded with well calculated poise.

Kirschenbaum is Struck by Car But Not Badly Injured

Mike Kirschenbaum, 1705 S street, was struck by an automobile driven by R. L. Ducharme, 2123 South Seventeenth street, while cutting across N street between Fifteenth and Sixteenth Saturday morning, according to police information.

FAIR PLAY FOR TEACHERS

A taxpayer, writing in the forum department of this newspaper Friday, suggests certain economies which should be adopted in the administration of the Lincoln public schools.

Some of the suggestions are timely and decidedly to the point while others are ill-advised and will only serve to further confuse the school situation. Reduction in the amount of supervision, which is now being carried on in the Lincoln schools is not only feasible but is highly desirable in the opinion of a great many patrons of the district. At this time, when the demand for economy is so great, the tendency to enlarge upon the school activities is most unfortunate. Instead of increasing the curriculum, and adding to the courses of instruction and training which are now being given, the disposition should be to reduce.

Apparently the Lincoln school board, and Superintendent Lefler are unmindful of the demand. The scope of the medical and hygiene clinics, the sphere of vocational training, and the extent of supervision are being constantly enlarged. If Superintendent Lefler has achieved any practical results in eliminating some of the supervision which crept into the school system a few years ago, they have not appeared on the surface. In fact, Mr. Lefler seems as strongly committed to the program of supervision of the teaching forces as his predecessors in office. In the last few months, the work of the visiting nurse has been greatly elaborated. Medical and hygienic clinics are costing the taxpayers of this city a pretty penny, despite all showings to the contrary, and they are responsibilities which the public schools do not have to assume. While the cry for economy is so strong, certainly these activities may be very well eliminated.

That is as far as the taxpayers should go.

Lincoln is justly proud of her fine schools and her splendid system of education. She is determined that they shall stand in the front rank of cities in the United States. Whatever is needed for the development of the schools along sane and sensible lines will be provided cheerfully.

Two suggestions which the correspondent, who signs herself taxpayer, has incorporated in her letter, cannot receive favorable consideration.

The propsal to conduct school six days in the week, thus shortening the term by six weeks, is nonsense. To expect the boys and girls, of from 8 to 15 years, to diligently apply themselves for the same period that adults engage in work, is unreasonable. Experience has amply demonstrated that the present school program is most advantageous. The suggestion to dispense with kindergartens does not merit consideration.

No doubt the appeal for a reduction in the salaries which are now being paid the teachers will meet with some response. If the time ever comes when the board of education should attempt to restore the old basis of teachers' salaries, it will be a sorry day for the public schools of this city. For years the teachers have been notoriously under paid. They have been compelled to scrimp and slave to eke out a bare living, without a possible chance for savings, devoting the best years of their life to training the young people for useful citizenship. They have provided the morale for the American system of education, admittedly the best in the world.

When one considers the new responsibilities, which have in recent years been placed upon the shoulders of those who assume the duty of training the boys and girls of this country, this demand for a slash in wages seems ridiculous. The boys and girls are being thrown upon the schools for not only education, but for moral and spiritual training to a greater degree than ever before. With the breakdown in home life, the teachers are being compelled to assume a greater guidance of the children which come under their care than ever before.

There should be no reduction in teachers' pay. They are not now receiving more than a living wage commensurate with their duties. Cut out some of the innovations in education but leave the teachers alone.

HELPING OURSELVES BY HELPING EUROPE.

Steady improvement in the foreign exchange situation continues with the upward movement of the French franc, started ten days ago by the announcement of a $100,000,000 American loan to the Poincare government. Belgian currency, which had fallen to an even lower depth than that of France, is showing good recovery, while British and Italian exchange have also advanced a little.

Of course, the fact that $100,000,000 is being placed at the disposal of France by American financiers would not in itself relieve the situation. That amount of money could easily be poured into the European financial chasm and disappear without leaving a trace, just as other huge sums have been swallowed up before.

But the conditions which France has agreed to in connection with the loan are the vital element which has already restored 180 points to the value of the badly depreciated franc and promises to bring it farther back on the road toward its normal status. These are, briefly stated, as follows:

1—Relentless pruning of national expenditures, accompanied by increased taxation, to insure that the government's revenues hereafter shall be at least equal to the disbursements.

2.—Easing up of restrictions in the Rhineland and the Ruhr complained of by the Germans ,and the restoration of civil authority in those regions.

3.—More cordial co-operation by French authorities with those of allied and associated countries, and abandonment of plans for enforcing payment of reparations by military methods.

By becoming more reasonable and willing to heed the counsel of its friends in the United States and Great Britain, the French government has laid the foundation for a renewal of the amicable relations which formerly existed. By adopting a business policy of living within its income, it has regained the confidence of the world in its purpose and ability to maintain the integrity of its own currency.

Day by day, in every way, to quote the formula of Poincare's famous countryman, the money situation for France is getting better and better. And as conditions improve for France, they also improve for Belgium, Great Britain and Italy. The financial fortunes of these four nations appear to be as closely linked with one another as were military interests during the world war. What helps one helps all. This is amply proven by the foreign exchange quotations of the last few days.

If the quartet of European allied powers can continue to work together they will certainly be able, with a helping hand from the United States, to pull themselves out of the fiscal slough of despond. The much desired concert of action seems about to be realized through the work of the Dawes commission investigating Germany's capacity to pay reparations. Indications are that the report of that body will be accepted by all the countries named and that Europe will at last get down to brass tacks in reorganizing its affairs for the post-war era.

The skies are certainly much brighter than they were a few weeks ago. Whatever this country can do to help along the international concord and establish conditions of peace and tranquility on the trans-Atlantic continent will, in the end, advance its own material interests by enabling the people of those countries to buy our products and pay the debts they owe us.

SAVINGS ON GRAIN SHIPMENTS.

In one of a series of recent articles appearing in a farm publication in this state, the Nebraska Farmer, Frank D. Tomson presents some interesting figures relative to the savings on grain shipments handled by the barge line operating between St. Louis and New Orleans.

By its use, Mr. Tomson says, the shippers of the corn belt, or to be more exact, the Missouri Valley, saved in 1923, over $900,000 in freight charges. The counties in the second congressional district in Nebraska, were represented with a tonnage shipment over the barge line of 55,791, on which there was a saving of $72,529 over what the charges would have been had the grain been shipped by rail. In the month of August, last year, grain shipments aggregating 1,354,707 bushels were handled by the barge line upon which there was a saving in freight rates of $53,223.

This single barge line handled freight and made a handsome profit on the basis of a charge of 3½ mills per ton mile. The average rail rate throughout the United States is given at 10.78 mills per ton mile.

One of the most urgent needs of the great agricultural secetion is cheaper freight rates. With the railroads facing high labor costs, and other similar items, a very material reduction in rates is not to be expected. But if the rates were slashed in two, the rail charges would still be in excess of the expense of transporting the grain raised in Nebraska and in neighboring states by water. Water transportation will always be cheaper than by rail. The savings resulting from shipments of grain over the barge line, however, constitute a very forceful argument for the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence project. No single step to be taken by the government, which might prove of value to the middle western states, is of greater importance. By providing a means of cheap transportation for grain it would save the farmers of Nebraska and adjoining states millions of dollars annually.

BIDS ON LIGHTING MATERIAL OPENED

City Engineer D. L. Erickson and City Clerk Berg, Saturday morning opened bids for the furnishing of new electric light poles and equipment for the extension of the ornamental lighting system in Antelope park.

The bid of Harry Shaben of Lincoln was the liwest at $1,010. With the exception of one bid all were below the estimated $1,250.

Other bids were as follows:

Korsmeyer Co., Lincoln	$1,187.62
McGraw Elec. Co., Omaha	1,187.63
Western Elec. Co., Omaha	1,390.33
Central Elec. Co., Chicago	1,263.07
Central Elec. Co., Chicago	1,390.00

The extension of the ornamental lighting will include both sides of Antelope park pavilion, and south to the entrance of Memorial drive.

The bids opened Saturday were the second group which has been submitted. The first bids were rejected because of a misunderstanding on some of the specifications.

It is thought by the city engineer that he will have a recommendation to make to the council at the Monday meeting on letting the contract.

Vessels Collide In Hudson River

NEW YORK, March 22. — The White Star liner Olympic, bound for England, today collided with the steamer Fort St. George, of the Furness-Bermuda line, in the Hudson river. The Fort St. George, which had about forty-five feet of rail on sun deck smashed, returned to her dock.

Sinclair Facing Contempt Action in Upper House

WASHINGTON, March 22.—By unanimous vote the oil committee voted today to certify Harry F. Sinclair to the senate for contempt as a result of his refusal to testify.

The decision as to the exact procelure will be held in obeyance until the return of Atlee Pomerene and Owen J. Roberts, special government counsel in the oil lease cases.

Senators said two courses were open—contempt proceedings before the senate itself or certification of the case to the district attorney of the District of Columbia for grand jury proceedings.

Taylor Believed Action Was Begun Little Too Late

MERNA, Neb., March 22.—W. J. Taylor, reutrned home today after dismissing his injunction suit to restrain the secretary of state from certifying Governor Bryan's name as a candidate for thep rogressive gubernatorial nomination.

"We were afraid the judges might say we were a little too slow in filing the suit," Taylor said. "And we could withdraw the case now without prejudice and try it after the election. The basis of our suit will be just as good after the election as now. If a republican gets on a democratic ballot through any kind of fraud he is taken off. The same can be done for Bryan."

Spotting Fakes.

The public health education division of the New York Health Department has issued a list "indicating the wide realm from which quacks are drawn, and the seriocomic titles assumed by some." Here it is as originally set forth:

"Aero-therapy," "astral healers," "autothermy," "beautifier establishments," "biodynamo-chromatic therapy," "blood specialists," "bone setters," "cancer cures," "chromo-therapy," "christos (blood washers)), "drugless healers," "electro-therapy," "electrotonic methods," "electric light diagnosis," "electroyonic methods, "electro-homeopathy," "electronapro-therapy," "geo-therapy," "hypnotist," "hydro-theraphy," "herbalist," "helio-therapy," "irido-therapy diagnosticians," "Kneipp cure," "Leonic healers," "mental and spiritual healing," "medical gymnast," "mechano-therapy," "naturologist," "natureopath," "naprapath," "optical institutes," "obesity curers," "psycho-analyst," "patent medicine men," "photo-therapy," physical culture," "physio-therapy," physiotherpay," "practo-therapy," "quartz-therapy," "spondylo-therapy," "sanipractor," "spectrocrome," "special food faddist," "special drug faddist," "spectro-therapy," "tropho-therapy," "telathermy," "vacuum and serum cures," "votopath," "zodiac-therapy," "zonet-therapy."

While they were at it, they might have added "duly-licensed doctors of medicine," for there are quacks in the medical profession just as there are in the fields of physical culture, optical institutes, Christian Science, hydro-therapy, and so on.

The important thing was left out: That is, how shall a sick person distinguish between a person competent to treat disease and a plausible but incompetent fake? There are so many high-sounding titles these days that the ordinary citizen is liable to be confused (and confusing the ordinary citizen is largely the reason why fakes deliberately adopt astounding titles if they can't by hook or crook gain the titles held by honorable persons.)

One very good way to steer clear of crooks is to call on a well-known, reputable, family physician and ask him what he thinks; just as you call on a reputable banker to find out if a certain bond or stock is legitimate or a fake. The physician knows the honest, legitimate adjuncts to the medical profession in his community and—most important of all—he is competent to diagnose your case and tell you whether you need to go to a good physical culture gymnasium, a mental healer, or a beautifying establishment.

Questions and Answers.

Your questions on health topics will be answered by Dr Dorothy Bocker if you address her in care of this newspaper.

Mrs. R. C. H.—I expect to have a baby in about five months. Would there be any danger in having the denist go over my teeth at this time?

Answer—By all means have your teeth put in good shape. I would have no serious dental operation done (like pulling several teeth) without first consulting a physician. But it is both safe and highly desirable to have the teeth in the best possible condition.

Doctors seem useless when everything is all-right, but wait until Willie refuses a second helping.

The honeymoon isn't over yet if he can be persuaded to accompany her to the millinery department.

Bragging on your friends is just calling attention to their good judgment in selecting you.

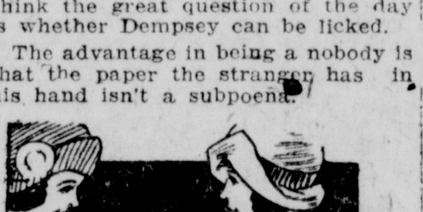
Intuition is the quality that enables a woman to know what her husband is pouting about this time.

Germany may be in better fix than anybody supposed, but anybody can have our marks at par.

It isn't so difficult to keep a girl clean and sensible if you can begin by selecting the right parents.

The happiest people are those who think the great question of the day is whether Dempsey can be licked.

The advantage in being a nobody is that the paper the stranger has in his hand isn't a subpoena.



If it has the appearance of food, but doesn't contain anything worth eating, girls like it.

A man may confess that this children are imperfect, but it isn't wise to criticise his favorite brand of cigarette.

It seems a foolish thing to say, but since the country went dry it has floated a great many more bond issues.

At times there seems to be some relationship between the degree of a husband's jealousy and the degree of his baldness.

Gus Beschorner of Lincoln, gave three addresses in Grand Island Friday. He spoke to the student body of Grand Island college at convocation and later addressed the economics class of the same school. At noon he spoke before the Kiwanis club, describing conditions in Russia as he found them during 1922, when he served as a relief worker in the Volga district.

Miller and Paine Window Is Broken

A corner of a plate glass window in the Miller and Paine department store, was smashed Saturday morning when a wax figure being removed from the window accidentally fell against it.

An Alleged Beer Runner Found Dead

CHICAGO, March 22. — (A. P.) — Mystery surrounding the death last night of Joseph W. Coleman, alleged beer runner, was partly dispelled today when surgeons determined a small hole in his head had been made by a fall instead of a bullet as at first supposed.

SEVERAL INJURED.

ILLNESS OF BOTH WAS VERY SUDDEN

Mrs. Marshall Discovered Unconscious On the Following Morning.

Lew Marshall, though still very seriously ill following a mastoid operation only a week ago, today is doing as well as can be expected in view of the shock of Mrs. Marshall's death and the long difficult trip from Lauderdale, Fla. He is at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Dorgan and under the care of Dr. E. E. Foster of New Bedford, Miss., also a winter resident of Fort Lauderdale. Dr. Foster made the trip from the south with Mr. Marshall.

Mr. Marshall first became ill on Monday of last week when playing a game of golf with Mr. Dorgan. Acute inflammation of the ear quickly developed causing inflammation of the mastoid. Following a consultation of doctors it was deemed necessary to operate. The operation was performed by Dr. Foster in the local hospital of Fort Lauderdale. Mrs. Marshall had apparently been in splendid health and with Mrs. Dorgan was calling on friends while the men were playing golf. Tuesday morning she was discovered in a semi-conscious condition by Mr. and Mrs. Dorgan. Bronchial pneumonia developed and she died the following Sunday at 3 o'clock. Her condition was not regarded serious at first and her death was a great shock to her group of friends in the south as well as her Lincoln friends. Her physicians were Dr. Scott Edwards and Dr. Maxwell of Fort Lauderdale and she was given every care and attention. It was not until Monday that Mr. Marshall could be told of his wife's death.

The death of Mrs. Marshall and the serious illness of Mr. Marshall is a sad ending to a particularly happy winter in the south which Mr. and Mrs. Marshall and Mr. and Mrs. Dorgan had spent in Fort Lauderdale with the same little group of winter sojourners who have met there for several years. The friendship with [illegible] and Mrs. Foster, who remained in Fort Lauderdale, dates back to three years ago when they met in Florida and have continued to meet there for each of the succeeding winters. Dr. Foster was a specialist in New Bedford for a number of years, but has now retired from active practice and divided the time between the south and his eastern home. He will remain here until Mr. Marshall is well on the road to recovery.

"Mr. Marshall suffered a relapse yesterday and had a bad night, but his condition this morning is improved and no complications have developed," Dr. Foster stated Saturday.

City Briefs

Approves Sewage Plan.— The sanitary division o fthe state health bureau has approved plans submitted by the village of Howells for a sewage disposal plant somewhat similar to the one constructed and now in operation by the Lincoln sanitary district, though on a considerably smaller scale. There are to be sedimentation and digestion tanks, a sludge bed, and provision for discharging the liquid sewage after it has been treater. Sprinkling filters may be installed at a later time.

Submits Estimate. — The Lincoln City hospital board of directors has filed with the city clerk for approval by the council the fourth estimate for work done on the new building. The estimate is for electric wiring done by the Schricker Electrical Co., and is for $1,598. It has been approved by the city engineer and the architect.

Attends Dinner At Omaha.—City Commissioner A. P. Cowgill left Saturday morning for Omaha where he will attend a dinner at 6 o'clock at the quarters of Brigadier General Dorey at Fort Omaha. The dinner will be one of many held in every section of the United States by graduates of West Point. Mr. Cowgill said that the largest dinner would be held at the Hotel Astor in New York.

Want Alley Paved—A petition was filed Saturday asking that the alley between A and B streets from Nineteenth to Twentieth streets be paved.

SEVEN WOUNDED.

SEVILLE, Spain, March 22. — Seven Spanish soldier were wounded in an explosion here today.

LARSON IS FORCED OUT BY NEW RULE

Could Have Retained Job If He Had No Primary Opponent.

After starting work in February as a dairy inspector for the state and continuing on its payroll for several weeks at $120 a month and traveling expenses, L. A. Larson of Wellfleet has resigned and is no longer connected with Nebraska's administrative machinery. His retirement is due to a rule promulgated by Governor Bryan some time ago that no state employe in a department under his control who becomes a candidate for office and who has opposition in the primary shall continue to hold his position.

Mr. Larson has filed for the democratic nomination for land commissioner, and has accepted a nominating petition also for the progressive primary. He has a democratic oppoent, Warren Riggs of Arcadia.

The governor's rule which compelled Mr. Larson to quit his state job was intended to prevent those in the state's employ having any advantage over other persons running against them in the primaries. An inspector travels constantly and meets a great many people, which would naturally help his candidacy as against someone who holds no public position and has to pay his own way when he goes out on a campaign trip.

Agriculture Secretary Shumway talked with Governor Bryan about Larson's case and the conclusion was reached that he should resign, under the existing circumstanees. If he had had no primary antagonist, it would have been different. Larson is the second man in the agriculture department to give up his place in order to run for an elective office. Herman Diers of Gresham tendered his resignation a couple of months ago, before filing for congress in the Fourth district.

The position vacated by Larson will not be filled at this time, Secretary Shumway says, but the department will get along with the inspectors it now has. There is one other man doing dairy inspection work.

SUGGESTS SAFETY PLAN TO COUNCIL

Asks City to Take First Action at Twenty-Seventh and Randolph Crossing.

In a communication to Mayor F. C. Zehrung and the members of the city council, J. H. Markel, president of the Automobile club, Saturday suggested to the city administration that a boulevard stop be established for all traffic at Twenty-seventh and Randolph streets. Mr. Markel said that if the city would take the steps necessary to create a boulevard at the crossing, which is considered one of the most dangerous in the city, the Automobile club would pay the expense of placing the necessary signs.

Commenting on Mr. Markel's letter, Mayor Zehrung said he was heartily in favor of taking some action as suggested by the auto club president. He pointed out that one way of handling the situation would be to paint a white stripe across each street with the word "stop' in letters, also in white, so placed that autoists could see it easily in the day time and at night.

The mayor pointed out, however, that the suggestion is a question that concerns the street department, but added that he did not think there would be any trouble about a satisfactory understanding being reached.

The mayor said the members of the council have been considering establishing boulevard stops at dangerous intersections for some time.

Let Contract for Printing Report of Railway Commission

Four hundred cloth-bound and 400 paper bound copies of the Nebraska railway commission's annual report for 1923, making a book of approximately 600 pages, will be printed by the York Blank Book Co. at the price of $1.89 a page, under a contract awarded to it Saturday by State Purchasing Agent Farris, as the lowest among seven bidders on the work.

Should additional copies be desired the company will furnish them at 55 cents apiece for cloth binding and 35 cents for paper.

The next lowest bid was that of the Nebraska Farmer, Lincoln, at $1.95 a page. The Hammond Printing Co., Fremont, submitted the highest figure, which was $3.30. Other firms which filed propositions with the purchasing agent were the Kline Publishing Co., and the American Printing Co., both of Lincoln; Claflin Printing Co., University Place; and Burr Publishing Co., Aurora.

CHAPTER XLVI.

Donald Muir loved her! That was the statement Winifred Scott repeated to herself so often that the sentence ceased to have meaning.

He had told her he loved her. That in itself was wonderful. It was her last conscious thought that night and it was in her mind every hour of the following day.

Yet, after all, she reflected, this fact could not work any immediate revolution in her life. As she had thrilled at his declaration of affection, she had fancied that a new existence wa sopeningfi before her—that she returned his affection. Now in the light of the prosaic day she was not sure that she did love him enough to wish to marry him. To be engaged was one thing. That would mean attentions from him,—lots of good times with him, and a sense of being grown-up. But settling down in marriage did not appeal to her. She had not yet seen life. And, unless she was certain that she loved him, Donald would not consent to a bethrothal.

He was a queer man. She could not doubt that he cared deeply for her, yet he was quite willing to leave her perfectly free until she knew her own mind. Now, if it had been Richard!——

She smiled as she appreciated the difference between the two men. Richard, were he her lover would be fearful lest she might care for some one else. He would probably write poetry, or say things so beautiful that they would move her heart to affection. No, it would not be a difficult matter to fall in love with Richard. Yet, of course, she cared more for her guardian than for the young reformer.

She assured herself of this again when Rankin's name was announced that evening. She had not heard from Donald today. It was like him to refrain from thrusting himself upon her thoughts after last evenin's revelations. He would preefr that she take time to think over their conversation, untrammeled by his influence.

It had been a rather stupid day. The thrill produced by Donald's declaration had subsided. It had left her with a desire for a new sensation. She was relieved when Richard arrived.

"I am delighted to see you!" she exclaimed as she shook hands with him. "I have been bored. I am glad you came."

"So am I," he smiled. Yet she fancied a slight constraint in his manner. She supposed it was because of their chance encounter of last evening. She must explain that episode. Yesterday morning she had resented the idea of doing this. Now in Richard's magnetic presence it seemed noly just that she should make some explanation to him.

"Let us sit here by the window," she suggested. Then as he took a chair near hers, she said:

"I am sure you were surprised at seeming me among the giddy crowd last night, weren't you?"

He flushed. "Why, yes—and no! You have been so kind and gracious in your interest in the side of life in which I am interested that I have sometimes forgotten that you yourself are a part of the other side. Yet when I saw you last night I realized suddenly that you were just where you belonged."

"One may belong there and yet be interested in the other half," she declared.

"Yes," he admitted. "But few are."

"You are mistaken, Richard," she urged. "And I have something to tell you that will prove it."

"Ah?"

He was loking at her eagerly, yet with a certain air of anxiety. It was as if he were desirous to hear what she was was about to tell him, but, at the same time, apprehensive as to its purport.

She smiled at him whimsically. She would enjoy to the full the anticipation of imparting good news.

"When I explain, will you acknowledge that you have misjudged one well-to-do person?" she queried teasingly.

"Yes, if I have," he said.

"I hope you do not count me among the 'well-to-do' people just because I would with one of them last night," she laughed.

"You may be one of the well-to do," he said. "That does not mean that you are as heartless as successful business men are. But—what were you going to tell me that would change my mind about rich folk."

"Just this," leaning towards him and watching his face. "You need wait no longer before starting your magazine—or whatever it is you are longing to do for your poor men. For you can count on a loan of five thousand dollars immediately."

(To Be Continued Monday.)

"This sermon is served up for young people," said Gypsy Simon Smith, Friday night, to the largest evening audience he has so far addressed.

"It is just a series of stories," but behind them is my sermon." The story of his very early boyhood, when, at nine years of age, he ran away from his forest home to the great city of London was full of thrilling incidents and had a satisfying ending as he told of the kindness of the man who picked him up in the street where he had been knocked down by a wagon, and returned him to his home. That disobedience must be punished was impressed upon him his first day of school when he did not fulfill to the letter the command of his teacher to release a field mouse which he had taken with him as a companion. The lesson learned that day was never forgotten.

"Don't forget the first commandment, young folks. 'Honor thy father and mother.' I promised my dying father that I would help my mother take care of my younger brothers, so instead of learning to read and write, I had to get out and learn how to earn bread for us to eat. But the greatest joy in this life is what you get through serving others. We are suffering today from too much drug store complexion and not enough home connection." He pleaded with the parents to themselves be careful how they spend their time and energies if they would have their children grow up pure and wholesome.

"Life is made up of three stages, hatching, matching and snatching," said the speaker, and we can all be careful about the second. Why say, 'A boy must sow his wild oats,' or why have two standards of morality? No man has a right to marry a pure girl unless he has a clean record."

By request, one of the solos sung Sunday, "He Never Has Broken a Promise, Not One," was repeated at the close of the sermon. Dr. Aitken announced that there would be no service Saturday night.

'Jack Straw' Put On With Success by High School Junior Class

"Jack Straw," by W. S. Maughan, as presented by the junior class of Lincoln high Friday evening, was hailed by a large audience as one of the most successful comedies ever seen there.

Not only was the character work by students taking leading parts brilliantly done, but the action by those in minor roles and the general completeness in details of scenery showed careful direction.

Lois Harris, as a virago in the role of Mrs. Parker-Jennings, won applause, and Alfred Poska, as the brow-beaten husband, played that part with finesse. The leading role, Jack Straw, was taken by Dan Smith, who carried the dignity and ease which that character demanded with well calculated poise.

Lady Wanley, Elizabeth Burnham; Ambrose Holland, Arthur Ziemer; head waiter, Don Underwood; second waiter, Leonard Dill; Jack Straw, Dan Smith; Mr. Wither, Reginald Miller; Mrs. Wither, Elizabeth Wilson; Rosie Abbott, Wilma Brooks; Rev. Lewis Abbott, Marion DeVilbiss; Count Von Bremer, Ralph Gustafson; Mrs. Parker-Jennings. Lois Harris Mr. Parker-Jennings, Alfred Poska, Ethel Parker-Jennings, Ruth Zurbrigen; Vincent Parker-Jennings, Perry Morton; Marquis of Serlo, Emerson Smith; footman, Winslow Wills; flower girl, Joy Mickel; hotel guests, Helen Hansen, Elizabeth Raugh, Helen Walt, Steven Sterns, Evelyn Hansen, Evelyn Lindeman, Charles Bruce, Susan Lau, John McGreer.

Kirschenbaum is Struck by Car But Not Badly Injured

Mike Kirschenbaum, 1705 S street, was struck by an automobile driven by R. L. Ducharme, 2123 South Seventeenth street, while cutting across N street between Fifteenth and Sixteenth Saturday morning, according to police information.

RAILROAD TO BE FORECLOSED UPON

(Special to The Star.)

TABLE ROCK, Neb., March 22.—County Treasurer M. L. Flannagin has issued a distress warrant for unpaid taxes of the Kansas City and Northwestern railroad, passing through the west part of Pawnee county, and has delivered the same to Sheriff Avery. The warrant is to cover taxes on the road which have not been paid for several years.

The warrant is not collectable at the present time, because of the litigation pending, but it serves as a necessary step toward foreclosure, which will be undertaken by County Attorney E. F. Witte. The total amount of taxes and interest due the county is over $33,000. The road has not been in operation for a number of years and various unsuccessful efforts have been made to put it back on its feet.

First Radio Groom Native Nebraskan

(Special to The Star.)

FREMONT, Neb., March 22.—Otto Taulsen, reported in Chicago dispatches to have wedded Miss Georgia Brolley of Wildwood, Ill., at a "radio wedding," is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Tlausen of Hooper, Neb., and is a Nebraska byo, having spent his boyhood in this county. The wedding march for the marriage ceremony in Wildwood was received by radio from WDAP. Taulsen is now a teller in a Chicago bank.

Blind Piano Tuner Injured by Fall

(Special to The Star.)

FREMONT, Neb., March, 22.—J. H. Hokamp, blind piano tuner, who has attracted much attention on account of his remarkable ability to walk unaided to homes and business places in any part of the city, was seriously injured Friday, when he fell into a coal pit through an open grating in the sidewalk opposite the store of Frank Hanlon, member of the park board, on Broad street. Hokamp suffered a strained back and fractured ribs.

McAdoo Visits His Friend Stephens

(Special to The Star.)

FREMONT, Neb., March 22.—William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, and director-general of the U. S. railway administration, stopped in Fremont briefly for a visit with his friend, D. V. Stephens, former congressman. Mr. McAdoo was on his way from Washington, D. C., to his home in Los Angeles. He telegraphed ahead for Mr. Stephens to meet him at the depot.

Girl Psychic Fined For Fortune Telling

NEW YORK, MCarch 22.—(A. P.) Eugene Dennis, 18-year-old psychic of Atchison, Kas., whose clairvoyant powers have been demonstrated before scientific organizations and high police officials here, was found guilty of fortune telling by a magistrate yesterday. Her mother, Mrs. Mary Dennis, was also found guilty. They were convicted on the testimony of Mrs. Mary W. Foley who charged the the girl demanded $25 for "locating" her runaway boy, declaring him to have gone to Los Angeles.

The boy later was found in Pittsburgh.

COOLIDGE HOPES FOR FARMER AID

President Holds Conference With Republican House Leaders.

(Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, March 22.—President Coolidge, at a conference last night with republican house leaders expressed the desire to have some form of farm relief legislation enacted before the close of the present session of congress.

The legislative situation generally was discussed and Mr. Coolidge's callers said they were convinced that congress could adjourn before the June conventions.

The president was told that the house would rush action on appropriation bills, dispose of the Johnson immigration bill and before the end of the session take up a measure providing for a readjustment of salaries of postal employes.

Participating were Representative Longworth, the party leaders in the house, Chairman Madden of the appropriations committee, and Snell of the rules committee and members of the steering committee.

Preparatory to the meeting the president conferred for nearly an hour with Senator Curtis of Kansas, the assistant republican leader of the senate, and Chairman Smoot of the senate finance committee. He discussed matters with Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, the republican senate leader, Thursday.

Through these discussions he has obtained a general survey of the legislative situation. He feels that the house has made fair progress with the appropriation bills but he has emphasized that there are other measures which should be disposed of regardless of the investigations now being held.

Further conferences with senate party leaders are expected to be held at the white house in an effort to speed up the legislative program in that branch of congress.

Take Moulden for Lifting Chickens

(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., March 22.—John Moulden, 24, who refuses to give his address, was arrested Friday by Sheriff Salling on the charge of stealing chickens from John Harlan, a farmer living south of the city. Moulden has been driving through the country in an Overland car, and is said to have sold the hens taken from the Harlan farm to a poultry dealer at Holmesville, who furnished the sheriff the clue which led to the arrest of Moulden, after the fowls had been sold in Beatrice.

Two Students in Oratory Contest

(Special to The Star.)

TABLE ROCK, Neb., March 22.—Representatives of the Table Rock and Pawnee City high schools will have part in the national oratorical contest which is being conducted among high school students on some phase of the constitution. Each high school in the county was asked to enter a representative in the county contest which will be held at Table Rock Wednesday evening, March 26. Only two entries were made. Miss Wanda Trout will compete for the Table Rock high school, and Harold Bosley will represent the Pawnee City high school.

MOVES TO SIOUX CITY.

(Special to The Star.)

FREMONT, Neb., March 22.—Hjalmar Anderson, who has been in the jewelry business here for nearly 20 years, will locate at Sioux City, having bought an interest in a store there. Mr. Anderson will continue to operate his Fremont store, maintaining his present corps of assistants, but will move with his family to Sioux City.

POOL HALL BURNS.

(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., March 22.—The pool hall owned by James Hathaway at Powell, Neb., was destroyed by fire from unknown origin. The loss will probably reach $2,500, with $1,500 insurance.

AURORA RETAINS DOREMUS.

AURORA, Neb., March 22.—Some time ago the school board of Auburn extended a very flattering offer to Supt. J. A. Doremus asking him to return to that city. The Aurora school board, however, refused to accept Mr. Doremus' resignation, he being under a contract for a three year term.

BIDS APPROVED.

PAWHUSKA, Okla., March 22.—(A. P.)—The Osage Indian council has approved all bids except one, entered at the sale of oil land leases which were disposed of for more than $1,500,000.

WEAK, RUN DOWN AFTER SICKNESS

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Mrs. Dube Well and Strong

E. Hartford, Conn.—"After a severe sickness I was so weak that I could not do my housework, so my mother told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The first bottle helped me so much that I took six more bottles and felt fine. I have just given birth to a nice baby girl and am feeling strong and well. So different from the way I felt before. I am taking the Vegetable Compound right along while nursing. The baby seems to be in good health, and my friends say they see a big change for the better in me."—Mrs. EUGENE DUBE, 59 Woodbrdge St., E. Hartford, Connecticut.

The Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine to bring back health and strength. Many mothers have found this true, as did Mrs. Dube. There are women everywhere who know by experience the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

RAILROAD TO BE FORECLOSED UPON

(Special to The Star.)

TABLE ROCK, Neb., March 22.—County Treasurer M. L. Flannagin has issued a distress warrant for unpaid taxes of the Kansas City and Northwestern railroad, passing through the west part of Pawnee county, and has delivered the same to Sheriff Avery. The warrant is to cover taxes on the road which have not been paid for several years.

The warrant is not collectable at the present time, because of the litigation pending, but it serves as a necessary step toward foreclosure, which will be undertaken by County Attorney E. F. Witte. The total amount of taxes and interest due the county is over $33,000. The road has not been in operation for a number of years and various unsuccessful efforts have been made to put it back on its feet.

First Radio Groom Native Nebraskan

(Special to The Star.)

FREMONT, Neb., March 22.—Otto Taulsen, reported in Chicago dispatches to have wedded Miss Georgia Brolley of Wildwood, Ill., at a "radio wedding," is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Tlausen of Hooper, Neb., and is a Nebraska byo, having spent his boyhood in this county. The wedding march for the marriage ceremony in Wildwood was received by radio from WDAP. Taulsen is now a teller in a Chicago bank.

Blind Piano Tuner Injured by Fall

(Special to The Star.)

FREMONT, Neb., March 22.—J. H. Hokamp, blind piano tuner, who has attracted much attention on account of his remarkable ability to walk unaided to homes and business places in any part of the city, was seriously injured Friday, when he fell into a coal pit through an open grating in the sidewalk opposite the store of Frank Hanlon, member of the park board, on Broad street. Hokamp suffered a strained back and fractured ribs.

McAdoo Visits His Friend Stephens

(Special to The Star.)

FREMONT. Neb., March 22.—William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, and director-general of the U. S. railway administration, stopped in Fremont briefly for a visit with his friend, D. V. Stephens, former congressman. Mr. McAdoo was on his way from Washington, D. C., to his home in Los Angeles. He telegraphed ahead for Mr. Stephens to meet him at the depot.

Girl Psychic Fined For Fortune Telling

NEW YORK, MCarch 22.—(A. P.) Eugene Dennis, 18-year-old psychic of Atchison, Kas., whose clairvoyant powers have been demonstrated before scientific organizations and high police officials here, was found guilty of fortune telling by a magistrate yesterday. Her mother, Mrs. Mary Dennis, was also found guilty. They were convicted on the testimony of Mrs. Mary W. Foley who charged the the girl demanded $25 for "locating" her runaway boy, declaring him to have gone to Los Angeles.

The boy later was found in Pittsburgh.

COOLIDGE HOPES FOR FARMER AID

(Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, March 22.—President Coolidge, at a conference last night with republican house leaders expressed the desire to have some form of farm relief legislation enacted before the close of the present session of congress.

The legislative situation generally was discussed and Mr. Coolidge's callers said they were convinced that congress could adjourn before the June conventions.

The president was told that the house would rush action on appropriation bills, dispose of the Johnson immigration bill and before the end of the session take up a measure providing for a readjustment of salaries of postal employes.

Participating were Representative Longworth, the party leaders in the house, Chairman Madden of the appropriations committee, and Snell of the rules committee and members of the steering committee.

Preparatory to the meeting the president conferred for nearly an hour with Senator Curtis of Kansas, the assistant republican leader of the senate, and Chairman Smoot of the senate finance committee. He discussed matters with Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, the republican senate leader, Thursday.

Through these discussions he has obtained a general survey of the legislative situation. He feels that the house has made fair progress with the appropriation bills but he has emphasized that there are other measures which should be disposed of regardless of the investigations now being held.

Further conferences with senate party leaders are expected to be held at the white house in an effort to speed up the legislative program in that branch of congress.

Take Moulden for Lifting Chickens

(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., March 22.—John Moulden, 24, who refuses to give his address, was arrested Friday by Sheriff Sailing on the charge of stealing chickens from John Harlan, a farmer living south of the city. Moulden has been driving through the country in an Overland car, and is said to have sold the hens taken from the Harlan farm to a poultry dealer at Holmesville, who furnished the sheriff the clue which led to the arrest of Moulden, after the fowls had been sold in Beatrice.

Two Students in Oratory Contest

(Special to The Star.)

TABLE ROCK, Neb., March 22.—Representatives of the Table Rock and Pawnee City high schools will have part in the national oratorical contest which is being conducted among high school students on some phase of the constitution. Each high school in the county was asked to enter a representative in the county contest which will be held at Table Rock Wednesday evening, March 26. Only two entries were made. Miss Wanda Trout will compete for the Table Rock high school, and Harold Bosley will represent the Pawnee City high school.

MOVES TO SIOUX CITY.

(Special to The Star.)

FREMONT, Neb., March 22.—Hjalmar Anderson, who has been in the jewelry business here for nearly 20 years, will locate at Sioux City, having bought an interest in a store there. Mr. Anderson will continue to operate his Fremont store, maintaining his present corps of assistants, but will move with his family to Sioux City.

POOL HALL BURNS.

(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., March 22.—The pool hall owned by James Hathaway at Powell, Neb., was destroyed by fire from unknown origin. The loss will probably reach $2,500, with $1,500 insurance.

AURORA RETAINS DOREMUS.

AURORA, Neb., March 22.—Some time ago the school board of Auburn extended a very flattering offer to Supt. J. A. Doremus asking him to return to that city. The Aurora school board, however, refused to accept Mr. Doremus' resignation, he being under a contract for a three year term.

BIDS APPROVED.

PAWHUSKA, Okla., March 22.—(A. P.)—The Osage Indian council has approved all bids except one, entered at the sale of oil land leases which were disposed of for more than $1,500,000.

MARKET QUOTATIONS

LIVE STOCK MARKET

OMAHA, Neb., March 22

CATTLE—Receipts 100. None of the cattle received were offered and the market was nominally steady. The week's receipts of early 35,000 head are the largest in two months but prices showed a good advance up to Wednesday and while there was some reaction on the close steers are still 25c to 50c higher for the week while cows and heifers are mostly 25c higher; stockers and feeders are unchanged.

HOGS—Receipts 11,000. Supplies of only fair proportions combined with higher trend at other markets tended to give local trade a strong active tone this morning. Shipper demand was urgent and a fair part of the bulk of the trade was put at prices 5 to 10c, mostly 10c higher than Friday. The packer market was also active at prices 5 to 10c higher over yesterday. Bulk of sales was $7 05@7 35 with early top $7 35. Under only moderate receipts and good demand from all quarters prices [illegible] closing full [illegible] higher than last Saturday.

Bulk 21 to 300 pound butchers $7 20@7 35; top $7 35.

Saturday's Representative Sales

No.	Av.	Dk.	Price	No.	Av.	Dk.	Price
[illegible]	253	[illegible]	$6 90	80	19[illegible]	40	$6 90
[illegible]	1[illegible]		7 00	8[illegible]	[illegible]	40	7 10

18	194		[illegible]	3	3		30
9	[illegible]8	10	7 35

SHEEP—Receipts 1,300. Nothing was on sale this morning, the day's arrivals being direct. Only fair supplies and a broad demand lifted fat lamb prices onto new higher ground for the year this week. The full advance however was not held although closing prices show a 25 to 50c upturn from last Saturday. Fluctuations in the sheep market were narrow and prices little changed for the week. Sheep advanced sharply, values on the close being 50 to 75c higher for the six day period.

Kansas City Livestock

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW.

(Associated Press)

NEW YORK, March 22—Dun's today said:

The action of [illegible] in [illegible] quarters [illegible] that general buying policy has not changed [illegible] the results of [illegible] and that there is no [illegible] excess of demand [illegible] not only reflects the continued disinclination [illegible] to [illegible] but [illegible] purchases to immediate or near needs. It is also indicated that more sellers are making concessions in an effort to get [illegible] orders. Competition is sharper in several directions [illegible] some lines of steel [illegible] and there is a narrower margin than usual between price and cost of production in cotton goods lines. Restraint on operations in that field with considerable mill machinery idle arises largely from doubts about future prices of the raw material while more is now heard of the restrictive effect of political uncertainties on business generally.

CAPTURE RUNNER

GALVESTON, Tex., March 22—(A. P.)—The gasoline launch Lens of Beaumont was captured by coast guards at the entrance to Galveston harbor last night with approximately 350 cases of foreign liquor on board.

Importance of Clean Oil

In filling the oil reservoir care should be exercised so no foreign substances get into the lubricating system. Tiny bits of waste sometimes work into the system and fill some of the smaller oil lines, shutting off the oil supply entirely.

To Rejuvenate Curtains

A thin coat of ether applied to the surface of celluloid windows and allowed to dry in the air will clean them and take out the finer hair scratches. The best that can be done with heavier scratches is to fill them with white shellac or varnish.

Causes Lack of Lubrication

One source of insufficient lubrication is sometimes found to be clogged grooves in the bushings. Sediment will accumulate in the grooves which are intended to carry off the lubrication oil and cut off the supply. An excess of graphite will often produce this effect.

SIX MONTHS IN JAIL HIS WAY OF FIGHTING LIQUOR

Judge Walter C. Lindley.

Six months' jail sentences and thousand dollar fines are the weapons used by Judge Walter C. Lindley of Danville, Ill., who occupies the bench in the United States district court, in breaking up the booze traffic. Judge Lindley, who struck terror to Chicago bootleggers in February while he was on the bench in that city, will hear the Williamson County, Ill., liquor trials, when they start Monday, March 24. What will happen in the 200 odd cases is indicated by the sentences already handed out in the numerous guilty pleas already entered in district court by Williamson county defendants.

BOBBED BANDIT STILL AT WORK

(Associated Press)

NEW YORK, March 22—Brooklyn's bobbed haired girl bandit called on Manhattan again Friday. Her visit convinced police that Mrs. Alfred Guimares, alias Betty Santos, of Riverside Drive, whom they had arrested in a tailor shop robbery, was not the girl they have sought for months.

A demure looking young woman—with reddish hair bobbed—asked for round steak in the Trieste meat market on Ninth avenue.

"I think you've a nice piece in the ice box," she said. The clerk entered the box to look and the customer promptly locked him in. Then she drew a pistol from beneath her costly fur coat and commanded the remaining clerk to punch that cash register for all that's in it.

Instead the clerk dropped unconscious. Miss Bandit got $15. As she slipped outside and off into the stream of pedestrians a tall dark man clicked the padlock on the door imprisoning the clerks.

Mrs. Guimares, whose husband now is in Atlanta penitentiary for fraudulent use of the mails, was the closest friend to Dorothy "Dot" Keenan, the model whose murder a year ago remains unsolved, was in the meantime held in $7,000 bail charged with attempted robbery of a tailor shop Thursday night and of being in possession of an alleged stolen limousine.

Detective Sergeant Edward Mullins, in charge of the investigation, said today that Mrs. Guimares had proved ownership of the $7,000 fur coat and had produced a receipt for $600 paid as an initial payment on the automobile which was seized at the time of her arrest.

It was at first thought both coat and car had been stolen.

State Will Carry On Health Work Among Indians

Maternity and infancy work among the people of Winnebago and Omaha Indian tribes living within and adjacent to their respective reservations in Thurston county is to be started soon under the personal supervision of Mrs. Addie Boucher, a full blooded Winnebago woman who has been appointed to assist the state bureau of child hygiene in administering Sheppard Towner activities supported jointly by the state and federal governments.

Mrs. Boucher's home is at Winnebago but she has been taking a course of instruction for several years in the Illinois training school for nurses at Chicago. Having just been graduated from that institution she is ready to take up the task of teaching Indian mothers the modern methods of caring for their children. She is expected to be in Lincoln within a few days.

She will be a field nurse dividing her attention between the two tribal communities in Thurston county. This is the first time that any such work has ever been done among the Indians in Nebraska. If conditions permit Mrs. Boucher will later be assigned to work among other tribes occupying reservations in Nebraska.

Mrs. Boucher has a thorough academic education having been sent east when she was nine years old and obtained her schooling there. She is now in middle life.

MISS STINSON STRIKES BACK AT DAUGHERTY

to go to get information. Miss Stinson said she refused to give any information. Miss Stinson said she refused to give any information to anybody until after she talked with Senator Wheeler.

For six months before his death Jess Smith had been in fear, Miss Stinson said, and the last evening they had together he spent mostly in telling "what not to tell and what bank books and papers to destroy."

Says Smith Emmeshed

Some of Daugherty's statements, she said, were "gossip, incompetent and malicious." She mentioned this, she said, because Jess Smith was "emmeshed in unsavory deals through his great loyalty to an unscrupulous man."

Referring to Mr. Daugherty's statement that she registered at a Cleveland hotel with A. L. Fink as man and wife, Miss Stinson said Fink telephoned her February 18 of a "big deal" she might be interested in and he made reservations at the Hollenden for her.

Miss Stinson said she and Fink had dinner together in her room to talk over reorganization of a rubber company and also Teapot Dome and the general oil situation. When told by Fink he had registered her under a fictitious name she said she was much incensed.

Declaring Fink had left her room about 11 o'clock, Miss Stinson said that the attorney general's charge that she had occupied the room with Fink or any other man was "utterly false."

Later she said Fink told her they were both under arrest for "registering" under fictitious names and they were headed for the bars unless she promised to say nothing damaging to Harry Daugherty. She referred to the attorney general's charges as a "frame up."

"I hate to abuse confidence," said Miss Stinson. "I am doing it to show you that Jess Smith was enmeshed and entangled."

"Enmeshed and entangled by whom?"

"By the man to whom he held his great loyalty," Miss Stinson went on. "The man who is using his great power to terrorize and intimidate witnesses."

"Who is the man?" Senator Ashurst put in.

"Harry Daugherty," she said.

Says Being Followed

In controlled but tearful language she said she was "being followed" and that her telephone conversations were being listened to.

Senator Jones, republican, Washington, asked Miss Stinson for a specific deal in which Jess Smith had mentioned Mr. Daugherty's name and she said he had in connection with whisky deals. He also told the "whole story" of the Chicago convention, she said.

In discussing whisky deals Smith told her specifically, said Miss Stinson, that it was only through Mr. Daugherty's influence that they could be put through.

Miss Stinson said Jake Hamon told her of a deal at the Chicago convention. Both Smith and Hamon told her, she said, Hamon was to have a cabinet position. Daugherty got word, Miss Stinson said Smith told her, that they were "double crossing him" and he (Daugherty) went to the Chicago hotel conference at 2 a. m. which agreed on Harding as the nominee and by "strong arm" methods arranged to have Harding backed for the nomination.

Smith told her, Miss Stinson said, he feared Mr. Daugherty himself. She told of an incident at the "shack" in Ohio when Mr. Daugherty swore at and abused shamefully Jess Smith. Smith went to a hardware store and bought a gun, she said, and had decided to kill himself.

Senator Wheeler produced a telegram received by Frank A. Vanderlip from R. N. McFarland, an auditor, saying Jess Smith's safe deposit box in Ohio contained securities worth between $200,000 and $300,000.

SUGHROUE WILL STAY IN RACE

thinking that these were not representative petitions signed by bona fide progressives but an inspection of them must have convinced him that they were.

"Mr. Taylor no doubt, came to the conclusion that he was not representing the membership of the progressive party in his attempt to prevent my name going upon the ballot.

"The question was whether the progressives themselves should have the right to select the candidate on their own ticket or should be deprived of that opportunity. I want to commend Mr. Taylor for reaching the same conclusion as the other progressives that in order to get results they must support candidates who have records of activity in promoting progressive measures and principles.

"I have been supporting such measures and principles for many years having started to do so long before the progressive party was organized and when some of the present midroaders had not yet espoused them. As governor I have been putting in my time fighting for progressive legislation while they are spending their time fighting with other progressives and thus making it more difficult to secure such legislation."

Woman Who Inspired Well Known Song Dies at Brooklyn Hospital

(Associated Press)

NEW YORK, March 22 — Alone in a Brooklyn rooming house, Mrs. Harriet Danks, who inspired "Silver Threads Among the Gold," found release Wednesday night from a life in which sentiment and reality were strangely juggled.

The woman, 82 years old, died estranged from her children by the very song she had inspired.

"Silver Threads Among the Gold" was written by her husband, Hart P. Danks, who also died alone in a Philadelphia lodging house in 1903. He was then estranged from his wife to whom, in 1874, he composed the love song which swept the country.

After Danks' death law suits over royalties from the song brought the estrangement of Mrs. Danks from her children—Albert V. Danks, Gertrude Danks and Mrs. Alberta Danks Fulder, who since has died.

put in. He testified he did not know it was dangerous to do this when the light was on. As soon as the hose was connected and the pump began working there was a burst of flame and Bacen received severe burns. The court decision says that the employe at the filling station should have known better even if the driver did not and that his action was negligent.

Ingoldsby Bail Forfeiture Reduced

John Hawbaker and other sureties for James G. V. Ingoldsby, convict from Otoe county serving in the state penitentiary for the crime of forgery, will lose only $100 on a $400 bail bonds which they signed in his behalf and which was declared forfeited when he failed to show up for trial at the time fixed. He was subsequently rearrested in Texas, brought back to Nebraska, convicted on a different charge. His bondsmen appealed from the bail forfeiture on the ground that the county had not returned him for trial on the original charge. The high bench decides that the county should be reimbursed for the actual expense of bringing him back, which was about $100, and it relieves the sureties from paying any more than that amount.

Affirms Booze Conviction

Another Otoe county defendant, John C. Haarman, convicted on two counts for unlawful possession and transportation of intoxicating liquor, must pay the $200 fine imposed upon him and stand the loss of the automobile which was ordered confiscated and sold. In reviewing the case the superior tribunal holds that the evidence was sufficient to sustain the conviction. He had driven into Unadilla with the liquor in his car and was arrested shortly afterward. The court rules that there was nothing improper in trying him on both counts at the same time.

$6,000 Alienation Judgment Stands

Edith F. Hope, divorced wife of Arthur C. Twarling, not only secured a divorce and $4,000 alimony from him in Polk county but afterward sued his parents, John F. and Anna S. Twarling, for damages caused by alienating her husband's affections and was given judgment against them for $6,000 more. Mrs. Twarling, sr., appealed though her husband did not. No error is found by the supreme court and the damage judgment is affirmed. The alimony was not an issue in this appeal.

Omaha Not Liable for Royalties

Reversing the district court of Douglas county in its judgment allowing $2,118 in royalties to William Hutton and William Jorgensen, two former employes of the city of Omaha, for over 1,000 concrete storm sewer inlets of a particular design installed by the city on which the plaintiffs secured a patent, the supreme court finds that they are not entitled to such special payment inasmuch as they made use of the full facilities of the municipal administrative machinery in experimenting and perfecting the invention. They had demanded $2 royalty on each inlet. Their patent right to the invention is confirmed but it is held that they could not collect royalties from the city without a special agreement on its part to pay them.

Eight and a half months pay claimed by Frances E. Ford against Boyd county for salary as clerk of the county court during that period in 1921 is found to be due her and the district court judgment allowing her $563 including interest and costs is affirmed. She was employed in January at $720 a year or $60 a month and her employment was never revoked by the county board but it refused to allow or pay her salary after April 14. Her suit was to collect the salary due her for the remainder of the year.

Hotel Not Liable to Guest

Jesse W. Stewart, who fell 40 or 50 feet to the pavement and suffered severe injuries while trying to escape through a window at the time the Savoy hotel in Omaha took fire several years ago, cannot collect damages from the proprietor, Harry Weiner. In the first trial a jury allowed Stewart $12,500 which the trial judge reduced to $7,500. On appeal the supreme court reversed the case and ordered a retrial. The next time the jury found in favor of the defendant. Stewart's appeal is rejected by the high bench and the suit is ordered dismissed on the theory that a hotel keeper is not responsible for the safety of his guests when things happen which are not due to the negligence of himself or his employes.

MARKET QUOTATIONS

OMAHA, Neb., March 22.

CATTLE—Receipts, 100. None of the cattle received were on sale and the market was nominally steady. The week's receipt sof nearly 38,000 head, are the largestin two months, but prices showed a good advance up to Wednesday, and while there was some reaction on the close, steers are still stronger for the week, while cows and heifers are mostly 25c higher. Stockers and feeders are unchanged.

HOGS—Receipts, 11,000. Supplies of only fair proportion, combined with higher trend at other markets, tended to give local trade a strong active tone this morning. Shipper demand was urgent and a fair outlet to thisbranch of the trade was noted at prices 5 to 10c, mostly 10c, higher than Friday. The packer market was also active at prices 5 to 10c higher over yesterday. Bulk of sales was $7.05@7.35; with early top $7.35. Under only moderate receipts and a good demand fraom all quarters, prices held their own this week, closing fully 25c higher tha nlast Saturday.

Bulk 210 to 300 pound butchers, $7.20@7.35; top $7.35.

Saturday's Representative Sales.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW.

(Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, March 22.—Dunn's today said:

Thes action of prices in different quarters show that the general buying policy has not changed. Lacking the stimulus of a vigorous demand, various markets are easing and there is a wider excess of decline in wholesale quotations. The current trend not only reflects the continued disinclination of many interests to extend purchases beyond immediate or nearby needs, but also indicates that more sellers are making concessions in an effort to get new orders. Competition is sharper in several directions, including some branches of steel manufacture and there is a narrower margin than usual between price and cost of production in cotton goods lines. Restraint on operations in that field, with considerable mill machinery idle, arises largely from doubts about future prices of the raw material, while more is now heard of the restrictive effect of political uncertainties on business generally.

Weekly bank clearings $7,592,147,000.

CAPTURE RUNNER..

GALVESTON, Tex., March 22.—(A. P.)—The gasoline launch Lens of Beaumont, was captured by coast guards at the entrance to Galveston harbor last night, with approximately 350 cases of foreign liquor on board.

Importance of Clean Oil.

In filing the oil reservoir care should be exercised so no foreign substances get into the lubricating system. Tiny bits of waste sometimes work into the system and fill some of the smaller oil tines, shutting off the oil supply entirely.

To Rejuvenate Curtains.

Athin coat of ether applied to the surface of celluloid windows and allowed to dry in the air will clean them and take out the finer hair scratches. The best that can be done with heavier scratches is to fill them with white shellac or varnish.

Causes Lack of Lubrication.

One source of insufficient lubrication is sometimes found to be clogged grooves in the bushings. Sediment will accumulate in the grooves which are intended to carry off the lubrication oil and cut off the supply. An excess of graphite will often produce this effect.

SIX MONTHS IN JAIL HIS WAY OF FIGHTING LIQUOR

Judge Walter C. Lindley.

Six months' jail sentences and thousand dollar fines are the weapons used by Judge Walter C. Lindley of Danville, Ill., who occupies the bench in the United States district court, in breaking up the booze traffic. Judge Lindley, who struck terror to Chicago bootleggers in February while he was on the bench in that city, will hear the Williamson County, Ill., liquor trials, when they start Monday, March 24. What will happen in the 200 odd cases is indicated by the sentences already handed out in the numerous guilty pleas already entered in district court by Williamson county defendants.

BOBBED BANDIT STILL AT WORK

(Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, March 22.—Brooklyn's bobbed haired girl bandit called on Manhattan again Friday. Her visit convinced police that Mrs. Alfred Guimares, alias "Betty Santos of Riverside Drive," whom they had arrested in a tailor shop robbery, was not the girl they have sought for months.

A demure looking young woman—with reddish hair, bobbed—asked for round steak in the Trieste meat market on Ninth avenue.

"I think you've a nice piece in the ice box," she said. The clerk entered the box to look and the customer promptly locked him in. Then she drew a pistol from beneath her costly fur coat and commanded the remaining clerk to "punch that cash register for all that's in it."

Instead the clerk dropped unconscious. Miss Bandit got $15. As she slipped outside and off into the stream of pedestrians, a tall dark man clicked the padlock on the door, imprisoning the clerks.

Mrs. Guimares, whose husband now is in Atlanta penitentiary for fradulent use of the mails, was the closest friend to Dorothy "Dot" Keenan, the model whose murder a year ago remains unsolved, was in the meantime held in $7,000 bail charged with attempted robbery of a tailor shop Thursday night and of being in possession of an alleged stolen limousine.

Detective Sergeant Edward Mullins, in charge of the investigation said today that Mrs. Guimares had proved ownership of the $7,000 fur coat and had produced a receipt for $600 paid as an initial payment on the automobile which was seized at the time of her arrest.

It was at first thoug ht both coat and car had been stolen.

State Will Carry On Health Work Among Indians

Maternity and infancy work among the people of Winnebago and Omaha Indian tribes, living within and adjacent to their respective reservations in Thurston county, is to be started soon under the personal supervision of Mrs. Addie Boucher, a full-blooded Winnebago woman, who has been appointed to assist the state bureau of child hygiene in administering Sheppard-Towner activities supported jointly by the state and federal governments.

Mrs. Boucher's home is at Winnebag, but she has been taking a course of instruction for several years in the Illinois training school for nurses, at Chicago. Having just been graduated from that institution, she is ready to take up the task of teaching Indian mothers the modern methods of caring for their children. She is expected to be in Lincoln within a few days.

She will be a field nurse, dividing her attention between the two tribal communities in Thurston county. This is the first time that any such work has ever been done among the Indians in Nebraska. If conditions permit, Mrs. Boucher will later be assigned to work among other tribes occupying reservations in Nebraska.

Mrs. Boucher has a thorough academic education, having been sent east when she was nine years old and obtained her schooling there. She is now in middle life.

MISS STINSON STRIKES BACK AT DAUGHERTY

to go to get information. Miss Stinson said she refused to give any information. Miss Stinson said she refused to give any information to anybody until after she talked with Senator Wheeler.

For six months befor ehis death, Jess Smith had been "in fear," Miss Stinson said, and the last evening they had together he spent mostly in telling "what not to tell and what bank books and papers to destroy."

Says Smith Emmeshed.

Some of Daugherty's statements, she said, were "gossip, incompetent and malicious." She mentioned this, she said, because Jess Smith was "emmeshed in unsavory deals through his great loyalty to an unscrupulous man."

Referring to Mr. Daugherty's statement that she registered at a Cleveland hotel with A. L. Fink, as man and wife, Miss Stinson said Fink telephoned her February 18 of a "big deal" she might be interested in, and he made reservations at the Hollenden for her.

Miss Stinson said she and Fink had dinner together in her room to talk over reorganization of a rubber company and also Teapot Dome, and the "general oil situation." When told by Fink he had registered her under a fictitious name she said she was much incensed.

Declaring Fink had left her room about 11 o'clock, Miss Stinson said that the attorney general's charge that she had occupied the room with Fink or any other man was "utterly false."

Later, she said, Fink told her they were both under arrest for "registering' 'under fictitious names," and they were "headed for the bars unless she promised to say nothing damaging to Harry Daugherty." She referred to the attorney general's charges as a "frame up."

"I hate to abuse confidence," said Miss Stinson. "I am doing it to show you that Jess Smith was enmeshed and entangled."

"Enmeshed and entangled by whom?"

"By the man to whom he held his great loyalty," Miss Stinson went on. "The man who is using his great power to terrorize and intimidate witnesses."

"Who is the man?" Senator Ashurst put in.

"Harry Daugherty,' 'she said.

Says Being Followed.

In controlled, but tearful language, she said she was "being followed" and that her telephone conversations were "being listened to."

Senator Jones, republican, Washington, asked Miss Stinson for a specific "deal" in which Jess Smith had mentioned Mr. Daugherty's name and she said he had in connection with whisky deals." He also told the "whole story" of the Chicago convention, she said.

In discussing whisky deals Smith told her specifically, said Miss Stinson, that it was "only through Mr. Daugherty's influence" that they could be put through.

Miss Stinson said Jake Hamon told her of a "deal" at the Chicago convention. Both Smith and Hamon told her, she said, Hamon was to have a cabinet position. Daugherty got word, Miss Stinson said Smith told her, that "they" were "double crossing him," and he, (Daugherty) went to the Chicago hotel conference at 2 a. m., which agreed on Harding as the nominee and by "strong arm" methods arranged to have Harding backed for the nomination.

Smith told her, Miss Stinson said, he feared Mr. Daugherty himself. She told of an incident at the "shack" in Ohio when Mr. Daugherty "swore at and abused shamefully" Jess Smith. Smith went to a hardware store and bought a gun, she said, and had decided to kill himself.

Senator Wheeler produced a telegram received by Frank A. Vanderlip from R. N. McFarland, an auditor, saying Jess Smith's safe deposit box in Ohio contained securities worth between $200,000 and $300,000.

thinking that these were not representative petitions signed by bona fide progressives, but an inspection of them must have convinced him that they were.

"Mr. Taylor, no doubt, came to the conclusion that he was not representing the membership of the progressive party in his attempt to prevent my name going upon the ballot.

"The question was whether the progressives themselves should have the right to select the candidate on their own ticket or should be deprived of that opportunity. I want to commend Mr. Taylor for reaching the same conclusion as the other progressives, that in order to get results they must support candidates who have records of activity in promoting progressive measures and principles.

"I have been supporting such measures and principles for many years, having started to do so long before the progressive party was organized and when some of the present midroaders had not yet espoused them. As governor I have been putting in my time fighting for progressive legislation, while they are spending their time fighting with other progressives and thus making it more difficult to secure such legislation."

(Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, March 22. — Alone in a Brooklyn rooming house, Mrs. Harriet Danks, who inspired "Silver Threads Among the Gold," found release Wednesday night from a life in which sentiment and reality were strangely juggled.

The woman, 82 years old, died estranged from her children by the very song she had inspired.

"Silver Threads Among the Gold" was written by her husband, Hart P. Danks, who also died alone in a Philadelphia lodging house in 1903. He was then estranged from his wife, to whom, in 1874, he composed the love song which swept the country.

After Danks' death, law suits over royalties from the song brought the estrangement of Mrs. Danks from her children—Albert V. Danks, Gertrude Danks and Mrs. Alberta Danks Puilder, who since has died.

put in. He testified he did not know it was dangerous to do this when the light was on. As soon as the hose was connected and the pump began working, there was a burst of flame and Bacon received severe burns. The court decision says that the employe at the filling station should have known better, even if the driver did not, and that his action was negligent.

Ingoldsby Bail Forfeiture Reduced.

John Hawbaker and other sureties for James G. V. Ingoldsby, convict from Otoe county serving in the state penitentiary for the crime of forgery, will lose only $100 on a $400 bail bonds which they signed in his behalf and which was declared forfeited when he failed to show up for trial at the time fixed. He was subsequently rearrested in Texas, brought back to Nebraska, convicted on a different charge. His bondsmen appealed from the bail forfeiture on the ground that the county had not returned him for trial on the original charge. The high bench decides that the county should be reimbursed for the actual expense of bringing him back, which was about $100, and it relieves the sureties from paying any more than that amount.

Affirms Booze Conviction.

Another Otoe county defendant John C. Haarman, convicted on two counts for unlawful possession and transportation of intoxicating liquor, must pay the $200 fine imposed upon him and stand the loss of the automobile, which was ordered confiscated and sold. In reviewing the case, the superior tribunal holds that the evidence was sufficient to sustain the conviction. He had driven into Unadilla with the liquor in his car and was arrested shortly afterward. The court rules that there was nothing improper in trying him on both counts at the same time.

$6,000 Alienation Judgment Stands.

Edith F. Hope, divorced wife of Arthur C. Twarling, not only secured a divorce and $4,000 alimony from him in Polk county, but afterward sued his parents, John F. and Anna S. Twarling, for damages caused by alienating her husband's affections, and was given judgment against them for $6,000 more. Mrs. Twarling, sr., appealed, though her husband did not. No error is found by the supreme court and the damage judgment is affirmed. The alimony was not an issue in this appeal.

Omaha Not Liable for Royalties

Reversing the district court of Douglas county in its judgment allowing $2,118 in royalties to William Hutton and William Jorgensen, two former employes of the city of Omaha for over 1,000 concrete storm sewer inlets of a particular design installed by the city, on which the plaintiffs secured a patent, the supreme court finds that they are not entitled to such special payment, inasmuch as they made use of the full facilities of the municipal administratice machinery in experimenting and perfecting the invention. They had demanded $2 royalty on each inlet. Their patent right to the invention is confirmed, but it is held that they could not collect royalties from the city without a special agreement on its part to pay them.

Eight and a half months pay claimed by Frances E. Ford against Boyd county for salary as clerk of the county court during that period in 1921 is found to be due her, and the district court judgment allowing her $563, including interest and costs, is affirmed. She was employed in January at $720 a year, or $60 a month, and her employment was never revoked by the county board, but it refused to allow or pay her salary after April 14. Her suit was to collect the salary due her for the remainder of the year.

Hotel Not Liable to Guest.

Jesse W. Stewart, who fell 40 or 50 feet to the pavement and suffered severe injuries, while trying to escape through a window at the time the Savoy hotel in Omaha took fire several years ago, cannot collect damages from the proprietor, Harrry Weiner. In the first trial a jury allowed Stewat $12,500, which the trial judge reduced to $7,500. On appeal, the supreme court reversed the case and ordered a retrial. The next time the jury found in favor of the defendant. Stewart's appeal is rejected by the high bench and the suit is ordered dismissed, on the theory that a hotel keeper is not responsible for the safety of his guests when things happen which are not due to the negligence of himself or his employes.

LIFE AND CHARACTER READING.

Some of the people born under this sign are very inattentive, and will interrupt a speaker in a conversation with the most irrelevant remarks, plainly showing that they have not under stood a word of what had been said.

These people are apt to talk too much, and have a tedious habit of asking questions. When united in marriage to those who object to giving an account of what they do it is liable to be an unhappy affair.

The governing planet of this date is Jupiter and the birthstone is a moonstone.

NOTICE OF SCHOOL ELECTION.

Notice is hereby given to the Qualified Electors of the School District of the City of Lincoln in the County of Lancaster, in the State of Nebraska that—

The Board of Education of the School District of the City of Lincoln in the County of Lancaster, in the State of Nebraska at a meeting regularly held on January 28, 1924, by a two-thirds vote adopted the following resolution:

"Be it Resolved, by the Board of Education of the School District of the City of Lincoln in the County of Lancaster in the State of Nebraska that it is the sense of this Board that the annual expenditures of such district beginning with the year which commences July 1, 1924 should be raised upon a basis of mill levy upon the actual value of the taxable property in said district instead of by a lump sum as now provided.

Be it further Resolved that, pursuant to section 6630 Compiled Statutes of Nebraska for 1922 as amended by Chapter 65 Session Laws of Nebraska for 1923, this Board of Education submit to the qualified electors of said district at the State Primary Election of Nebraska to be held April 8, 1924 a proposition to raise the funds for said School District for all purposes on such mill levy basis, beginning with the school year that commences July 1, 1924, said mill levy not to exceed in any one year, for all purposes, 15 mills on the dollar of the actual value of all taxable property in such district; that said proposition to be submitted be substantially as follows:

Shall the Board of Education of the School District of the City of Lincoln, in the County of Lancaster in the State of Nebraska, beginning with the school year that commences July 1, 1924 raise the amount of annual expenditures of such district for all purposes by mill levy instead of by gross sum, and shall such Board of Education be permitted to expend annually for all purposes, including all funds, a maximum of 15 mills on the dollar of the actual value of all taxable property in such district, and shall the County Commissioners of Lancaster County, Nebraska, on receiving the annual estimate of said Board of Education as provided by Section 6629 Compiled Statutes of Nebraska for 1922, beginning with the school year that commences July 1, 1924 cause to be levied the number of mills stated in such estimate, but not exceeding 15 mills on the dollar of the actual value of all taxable property in said district?

Be it further resolved that the Secretary of this Board see that proper notice of such election is given in the manner provided by law and that he make the necessary arrangements for such election including the preparation of a suitable ballot and the legal receptacles therefor, and polling places."

In compliance with said resolution the foregoing proposition will be submitted to the qualified electors of said school district at the State Primary Election to be held April 8, 1924. All qualified electors of said School District may vote upon said proposition at the regular polling places within said district as provided for said State Primary Election, and during the hours provided by law for such Primary Election. Absent voters may vote as provided by law. The ballot of said election shall have written or printed thereon, the following:—

"Official Ballot, State Primary Election, April 8, 1924.
School District Ticket.
Mill Levy Proposition to be Voted upon."

and shall contain the foregoing proposition with the following:—

Vote FOR or AGAINST.

( ) I vote FOR said proposed Mill Levy.

( ) I vote AGAINST said proposed Mill Levy.

By Order of the Board of Education, January 28, 1924.

J. G. LUDLAM, Secretary.

LIFE AND CHARACTER READING.

Some of the people born under this sign are very inattentive, and will interrupt a speaker in a conversation with the most irrelevant remarks, plainly showing that they have not under stood a word of what had been said.

These people are apt to talk too much, and have a tedious habit of asking questions. When united in marriage to those who object to giving an account of what they do, it is liable to be an unhappy affair.

The governing planet of this date is Jupiter, and the birthstone is a moonstone. Watch The Star Want Ads today if you desire a new position with better finances attached. You will be rewarded for your patience.

NOTICE OF SCHOOL ELECTION.

Notice is hereby given to the Qualified Electors of the School District of the City of Lincoln in the County of Lancaster, in the State of Nebraska that—

The Board of Education of the School District of the City of Lincoln in the County of Lancaster, in the State of Nebraska at a meeting regularly held on January 28, 1924, by a two-thirds vote adopted the following resolution:

"Be it Resolved, by the Board of Education of the School District of the City of Lincoln in the County of Lancaster in the State of Nebraska that it is the sense of this Board that the annual expenditures of such district beginning with the year which commences July 1, 1924 should be raised upon a basis of mill levy upon the actual value of the taxable property in said district instead of by a lump sum as now provided.

Be it further Resolved that, pursuant to section 6630 Compiled Statutes of Nebraska for 1922 as amended by Chapter 65 Session Laws of Nebraska for 1923, this Board of Education submit to the qualified electors of said district at the State Primary Election of Nebraska to be held April 8, 1924 a proposition to raise the funds for said School District for all purposes on such mill levy basis, beginning with the school year that commences July 1, 1924, said mill levy not to exceed in any one year, for all purposes, 15 mills on the dollar of the actual value of all taxable property in such district; that said proposition to be submitted be substantially as follows:

Shall the Board of Education of the School District of the City of Lincoln, in the County of Lancaster in the State of Nebraska, beginning with the school year that commences July 1, 1924 raise the amount of annual expenditures of such district for all purposes by mill levy instead of by gross sum, and shall such Board of Education be permitted to expend annually for all purposes, including all funds, a maximum of 15 mills on the dollar of the actual value of all taxable property in such district, and shall the County Commissioners of Lancaster County, Nebraska, on receiving the annual estimate of said Board of Education as provided by Section 6629 Compiled Statutes of Nebraska for 1922, beginning with the school year that commences July 1, 1924 cause to be levied the number of mills stated in such estimate, but not exceeding 15 mills on the dollar of the actual value of all taxable property in said district?

Be it further resolved that the Secretary of this Board see that proper notice of such election is given in the manner provided by law and that he make the necessary arrangements for such election including the preparation of a suitable ballot and the legal receptacles therefor, and polling places."

In compliance with said resolution the foregoing proposition will be submitted to the qualified electors of said school district at the State Primary Election to be held April 8, 1924. All qualified electors of said School District may vote upon said proposition at the regular polling places within said district as provided for said State Primary Election, and during the hours provided by law for such Primary Election. Absent voters may vote as provided by law. The ballot of said election shall have written or printed thereon, the following:—

"Official Ballot, State Primary Election, April 8, 1924.
School District Ticket.
Mill Levy Proposition to be Voted upon."

and shall contain the foregoing proposition with the following:—

Vote FOR or AGAINST.

( ) I vote FOR said proposed Mill Levy.

( ) I vote AGAINST said proposed Mill Levy.

By Order of the Board of Education. January 28, 1924.

LYNCH KNOCKED OFF HIS THRONE

Rapid Fire Left Jab Potent Factor in Victory of Jewish Scrapper.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, March 22.—A pound of flesh, duly exacted, made Shylock an immortal and last night at Madison Square Garden, it aided in transforming one Abe Goldstein from quite an ordinary young man to bantamweight champion of the world at large.

Goldstein unfrocked Joe Lynch, the reigning titleholder, winning the decision by a margin so wide as to be almost ludicrous. Lynch was only a pale, anemic shadow of the champion that was and could neither box nor hit and had he a ball and chain on either foot his speed could have been no less.

He had left both strength and condition on the scales of the boxing commission headquarters that afternoon.

Abe Fought Fine Fight.

Contrary to usual deportment, Abe fought almost with effrontery last. It was his greatest effort in five years of ring appearance and, appropriately enough, it gained him the highest honors within the gift of his division. What might have happened had Lynch been able to make the bantamweight limit of 118 pounds with ease and facility is another story and has no place here.

Suffice it to say that Lynch was a full pound overweight when, minus lunch, he got on the scales at 3 o'clock yesterday. Enter here with stealth and a bright idea, Willie Lewis, who is only the manner of Goldstein, but so smart in a fistic sense as to be almost unpleasant about it.

Goldstein's Pilot Foxy.

"I won't claim your forfeit, Joe," quoth William. "Come back in two hours and weigh again."

The forfeit amounted to $1,250. It is barely possible Mr. Lewis figured that further weight reduction by Lynch would be worth more to him, Lewis, than paltry, sordid dollars. Anyway Joe Lynch walked, ran, starved and was subjected to the weakening process of a dry rub for two hours in order to make weight.

Just what this effort took away from the fighter only Lynch himself can know. After the bout, the former champion, was quoted as saying that never again would he fight in the bantamweight class.

Lynch Through as Bantam.

We don't know as we blame him. It may be that Lynch is through anyhow. It may have been that he culdn't have beaten Goldstein last night in any case, for Abe fought like a champion to the manner born. But only a weakened Lynch could have lost fourteen out of fifteen rounds, been saved by the bell in the second and ninth, and failed in the tenth to follow up a right cross that brought Goldstein to his level and victory for a brief moment within reach.

Lynch Decisively Whipped.

(Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, March 22.—Abe Goldstein, veteran product of the east side fistic school, is the new bantamweight champion of the world. He gained the title, which he had been seeking for more than a year, by decisively whipping and dethroning Joe Lynch last night in a 15-round match at Madison Square Garden.

Lynch, apparently but a shell of the fighter who won, lost and then regained the 118-pound crown within a few years, was a beaten boxer from start to finish. His exhibition was one of the poorest any titleholder has given in many years.

A withering, relentless left jab to the chin, varied with a short hook to the ribs and a smashing right cross to the jaw that tottered the champion several times, won the battle for Goldstein. The challenger was the aggressor in every round.

Goldstein's first defense of his new laurels may be in a match against Bud Taylor of Terre Haute, Ind. The Queensboro Athletic club of Long Island City is seeking the bout.

Last Night's Fights.

At Sacramento, Calif. — Pancho Villa, Manila, world's flyweight champion, decisively outpointed George Lee, Chinese-American pugilist of Sacramento, four rounds. Pete Sarmiento, Manila, won decision over Tommy O'Leary, Sacramento, four rounds.

At Des Moines—Roscoe Hall, boxing instructor at Iowa university, drew with Jack Sealice, Boston, eight rounds; Bobby Jubbs, North Des Moines, outpointed Young McMain, six rounds; Battling Krause, Fargo, N. D., won decision over Mike Rozgall, Omaha, six rounds; Henry Jones, Des Moines, outpointed Jack Nelson, Des Moines, six rounds.

At Casper, Wyo.—Bobby Corbett, Colorado Springs, gained decision over Al Webster, Billings, Mont., twelve rounds; Joe (Wop) Kelly, Pueblo, won decision over Young Sol, Casper, ten rounds.

At Grand Rapids, Mich.—Jack Renault, Canadian heavyweight champion, defeated Captain Bob Roper, Chicago, ten rounds.

Fight Bugs of Omaha Plan For Special Train

Fight fans of Omaha are taking such notice of the Hudkins-Bige glove wrangle, dated for next Tuesday night in Lincoln, that they are reputed to be planning making the trip to the capital city on a special train. Today's World-Herald says:

"A special train may be run to Lincoln next Tuesday to accommodate Omaha ring fans who wish to witness the Erwin Bige-Ace Hudkins state lightweight championship bout in the capital city.

"Clink Clair, who is handling the Omaha tickets, has sixty reservations for the fight. He obtained eighty tickets two days ago and expects to dispose of all of them. If there is a demand for more, a special train probably will be run."

Left Jab Has Real Value.

The superior reach possessed by Bige and the persistent left-jabbing tactics on which the Omaha boxer will depend in the approaching mix with the Lincoln boy are well calculated to provoke worry in the Hudkins camp.

Hudkins is credited with having the edge in sheer ability to sock, but Ace must get in close to do his socking, while Bige, with height, reach and jabbing ability in his favor, undoubtedly plans to make Hudkins wage a long range battle.

Ace has had two whirls at Bige, losing the decision in the first encounter and getting nothing better than a draw in the second. It is assumed that Hudkins' steady improvement may be a point in his favor, yet it is not at all certain that the Lincoln glovester has gone ahead any faster than his Omaha rival.

The dope reads, at any rate, that the Tuesday fray will pit the Hudkins punch against the Bige left jab. Who should win? Roll your own guess.

LINCOLN QUINTS WIN FIRST ROUND

Trio of Capital City Teams Grab Off Victories In "Y" Tourney.

SATURDAY PROGRAM.

3:30 p. m.—Norfolk vs. "Y" Triangles.
4:15 p. m.—Omaha "Y" vs. Lincoln "Y."
5 p. m.—First M. E. vs. Grand Island M. E.
7:30 p. m.—Finals association class.
8:15 p. m.—Finals church class. (Second M. E. vs. winner First M. E.—Grand Island.)

Lincoln teams had little difficulty in weathering first round competition in the annual state Y. M. C. A. tournament, held at the Lincoln association Friday evening.

The "Y" Triangles grabbed a 10-7 lead during the first half of the game with the Grand Island "Y" quintet and won the contest 17 to 10. Whalen, Brochu and Overton led the scoring for the Triangles, while Mandeville and Colwell were high point men for the Third Citys.

Lincoln "Y" cagesters disposed of Brainard, 18 to 10. The capital city tossers held the Brainard five to three baskets.

In a church class game, Second M. E. won from Raymond M. E., 31 to 14. Ralph Buechner, with four field goals, was high point maker for the Second Methodists. Scores:

Paddock Aiming At New Century Record

DES MOINES, Ia., March 22. — Charles Paddock of the University of Southern California, world's champion 100-yard sprinter, will show his form in a special century race to be staged at the Drake university relay meet here April 25 and 26, according to announcement by Athletic Director Wilson of Drake. This will be Paddock's first outdoor race in his effort to win a place on the American Olympic team.

Although he ranks as an amateur, Paddock is not eligible for collegiate competition, having completed his college course. Drake relay officials, therefore, will select four or five star sprinters to run against the Californian in a special 100-yard event.

In a letter to Director Wilson, Paddock declared that he is rapidly rounding into condition and that he hopes to set a mark of 9 2-10 seconds for the century during this year.

SCATTERS MAPLES FOR RECORD MARK

Chicago Bowler Tears Into Ten-Pins For Singles Score of 739.

CHICAGO, March 22.—B. Fox and F. Kublic of Milwaukee rolled 1,276, and into a tie with H. Dean and L. Martin of St. Louis for tenth place in the A. B. C. doubles by way of rounding out the program signalized last night by the manufacture of a new singles record.

A. Ludvigson's new singles mark of 739, passing the other world record, made during the current bowling congress, by seven pins, was the day's most noteworthy performance. Ludvigson is a Chicago bowler. His scores were 247, 237 and 255.

Louisville and Indianapolis fives rolled well in the night showing, but did not get among the leaders.

Leadership in the five-man team event of the tournament is threatened in today's play. The St. Francis Hotels of St. Paul and Page's Dairy, Toledo, O., considered among the strongest entries, will compete. Bowlers from Council Bluffs, Sioux City, Ia., and Omaha will be in action today.

The "high five" of the four events:

Five-Man Teams:

Herb's Indians, Cleveland, 3,044; Mineralites, Chicago, 3,041; Pollack Carunas, Buffalo, 2,999; Arrow Oils, No. 2, Cleveland, 2,975; Durkee Motors, Kansas City, 2,972.

Doubles.

Singles.

All-Events.

Austrian Expert Retains Lead in Chess Tourney

NEW YORK, March 22.—Dr. Tartakower of Austria leads the international chess masters' tournament, which begins its fifth round today, despite his draw yesterday with Maroczy.

Bogoljubiw, by defeating Reti, pulled up to a tie with Alekhine when the Russian was held to a draw by Capablanca, the world's champion, who is in fourth place.

Sport Sparks.

BY LES CONKLIN.

The week in sports was comparatively dull. No baseball stars threatened to quit club, not a single sport writer spread report that Eddie Collins was to be traded, and only three boxing referees were shot.

Greatest surprise occurred when big league manager predicted his club would finish second, not first. Generally all sixteen of 'em cable joyful report to old folks at home that team will cop pennant as sure as taxes.

Ninety-five per cent of promising rookies were canned, but everybody knew that would happen a month ago.

Sport in Spain consisted of marathon dancing contest. Girls wore out 9,883 pairs of shoes and 1,490 partners. Winners collected $25,000 in prizes and $50,000 in hospital bills.

There were quite a few trades. New York farmer traded his wife for a horse and horse died after finishing one day's work. Two Connecticut women swapped husbands and both claim they got stung.

Inside Golf.

BY CHESTER HORTON.

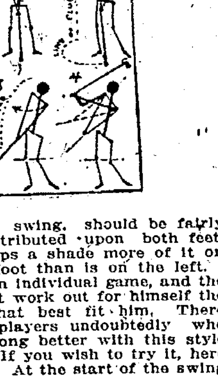
While I teach golfers to shift all the weight to the right foot at the beginning of the swing, letting the left shoulder drop a trifle, some teachers hold that the weight, at the top of the swing, should be fairly evenly distributed upon both feet, with perhaps a shade more of it on the right foot than is on the left.



Golf is an individual game, and the golfer must work out for himself the methods that best fit him. There are some players undoubtedly who will get along better with this style of swing. If you wish to try it, here is the way. At the start of the swing give your body a push, with the left toe, toward the right. Hold the left shoulder to its fixed position. Keep the clubhead close to the ground. Turn as if you intended to hit a ball to the right of you instead of in front. Then, after you have turned, elevate the club with the left arm, keeping this arm straight. Let your right hip move out some, with the weight going automatically a trifle more to the right foot. As the club is elevated shove the left shoulder still further around. Don't break your left wrist until it is forced to break at the top. If you can twist your shoulders far enough around at the top you will have, in this swing, the full up-right swing, which is always the best swing for those who can make the pivot it calls for.

Time Ripe to Call Halt on Tinkering With Golf Rules

BY FRANK G. MENKE.

(Copyright 1924 by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

They will be calling it "outdoor ping-pong" very shortly if some of the critics, fault-finders, reformers, boiler-makers and journeymen plumbers, who want to tinker with the game, are successful in putting through their thousand and one amendments even partially.

Long before Chris Columbus and his Spanish playmates discovered New York, Chicago and way stations, golf was a game. In the sweep of time since then, it endured, it prospered and it developed into a sport which knows more devotees than any in the entire history of the world.

The rules of the game, as present constituted, have made golf interesting and fascinating and genuinely loved by millions—and still more millions. Yet for some reason, wholly inexplicable, there are a few persons so discontented with golf as it is, that they are eager to so change it to a point where it will become little more than arm and leg exercise for its legions of enthusiasts.

A Silly Suggestion.

The suggestion that the size of the cup be increased from 4 inches to 6 inches is asinine. If such a thing comes about even the world's worst dub could negotiate almost any course UNDER PAR. At least 50 per cent of golf play is on the green. On a 72 par course, no more than 36 shots are made off the green. That leaves 36 for green play under existing 4 inch cup rules. If the cup were increased in size, the chances are that the putting process would be cut nearly in half. Therefore, the man who now takes 36 putts on 18 greens would be able to do his work in from 18 to 24 shots.

And that would give him 54 to 60 on a 72 par course.

Increasing the size of the cup not merely would make necessary complete changes in parity on every golf course in the United States, but would entail tremendous expense.

There would be, first of all, the cost of increasing the size of the holes, the purchase of new size cups, and a change, perhaps, in flag poles. In many cases, entire greens, or at least, big section of them would have to be rebuilt, because some green are now constitutel so that any slight change in the size or the location of the hole would throw the entire green out of true.

Putting Calls for Skill.

Driving and approaching is a difficult part of the game of golf, but it is not so difficult, not so much a test of skill, as is work with the putter. It is on the green where games are won and lost. If the size of the hole were increased, sinking a putt no longer would be freighted with such a necessity for skill—and the real foundation of the fascination for the game of golf would totter.

A year or so ago officials of the game decided to standardize the golf ball. It was decided that the 1.62 ball was the ideal for all purposes. The assumption was that everybody henceforth would be happy and a pleasant time would be had by all.

But walls and moans and shrieks quickly began to fracture the ozone. The ball was all wrong. It was too heavy, had too great a carry and was generally blah!

Propose Larger Ball.

So they're talking of making the ball larger but lighter.

Those who have vocalized concerning the "small cup" or the "heavy ball" or about one thing or another, also have stepped forward and found considerable and increasing fault with the layout of many of the courses. Some wish them made longer; others want them made shorter.

It seems almost time for the golfing officials who have the best interests of the game at heart and who have helped make the game the glorious sport of today, to turn to the malcontents, the reformers and the like and murmur:

"G. T. H."

Yankee Catcher Has Broken Rib

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 22.—The New York Yankee camp has been struck by a casualty wave. Wallie Schang, veteran catcher, will be unable to practice for more than a week because of a broken rib, and Babe Ruth was unable to don his uniform yesterday because of an attack of "walking influenza." The home run king, however expected to get back in action today.

Third Sacker For the White Sox Poles Hit Which Breaks Up Game.

(Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, March 22.—Wayland Dean, recruit pitcher with the New York Giants and one of the greatest pitchers in the American association last season, received his first jolt of the season yesterday when he was pitted against Urban "Red" Faber, veteran ace of the Chicago White Sox twirling staff, who made his maiden start of the season.

Dean, who was purchased by the Grants from Louisville for $50,000 last winter, had pitched 12 innings in practice games at Sarasota without allowing a man to reach first base. When he faced the White Sox at Winterhaven yesterday he was greeted with two singles in the first inning. The White Sox attack continued with the veteran Eddie Collins poling three hits.

Willie Kamm, Comiskey's $100,000 beauty sought from the San Francisco club of the Pacific Coast league last season polled a hit which broke up the game in the tenth inning for a 5 to 4 victory.

Dean ranked second in the American association with a record of 3.27 earned runs a game, with 21 victories and ten defeat. Tom Sheehan of St. Paul topped the pitchers. Score by innings:

Plans Trip Over Falls In Automobile Tire

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., March 22.—Bobby Leach, who went over the horseshoe falls in a steel barrel January 25, 1911, has announced he is negotiating with a rubber company for the manufacture of a rubber ball in which he plans to make a trip over the falls early in June.

The ball will be of the thickness of an ordinary large automobile tire and will have a hammock inside on which he will recline, Leach said.

GIANT RECRUITS APPEAL TO PILOT

Muggsy McGraw Tickled Over Showing of Rookies at Sarasota Camp.

BY NORMAN E. BROWN.

SARASOTA, Fla., March 22.—Wires emanating from this land of garden trucking and Giant workouts have carried the stories concerning the brilliant playing of Joe Bradshaw, rookie pitcher from Toledo, and Fred Lindstrom, young infielder from the same club.

But the careers of these two kids make better reading than their exploits here. Many youngsters shine brilliantly in camp up to April 16, only to sputter and go out—or into the minors.

Bradshaw is a second Minor Brown, in so far as he has lost one of his fingers. But the accident which cost him the digit made him a pitcher instead of driving him from the box. The missing member was separated from his left hand, insead of his pitching paw, however, which may have something to do with his success in the box.

Started Behind the Plate.

Bradshaw started his career as a receiver. He might have been catching yet but for an injury to the middle finger of his left hand—the mitt hand of a backstop. This made it tough for Joe to control the big glove. He was still catching, however, when he entered service at Jackson barracks during the war. Then his team's pitcher was thrown into quarantine on the eve of a game in New Orleans nearby. Bradshaw essayed to pitch and won his game, 3 to 2. No more catching for Joe. And his work in the box so impressed the New Orleans club bosses they signed him to a contract for 1920.

They kept him part of the season and then gave him a ticket for Chattanooga. Joe had been considering an offer to jump the game and play independent ball and work for an oil company in Memphis, and the order to join the Chattanooga club decided the matter for him. He went to Memphis.

Now maybe Joe got an inkling of the publicity that was to be thrown on the oil business. Anyhow he changed his mind about an oil future last spring and obtained reinstatement. Chattanooga allowed him to go to Toledo. The tail-end outfit kept him all season, with the exception of a six-weeks' vacation with the Beaumont club, also a cellar outfit. Laboring in the Ohio and Texas basements, Joe managed to break even for the year with a total of 14 games won and 5 lost.

Is Really a Giant.

He looks every inch a pitcher—and speaking of inches he runs considerable to length. He is just about the biggest gent in the squad and boasts of about six feet three inches of pitching material. He has a world of stuff which looks good at this early date. He keeps cutting the corners of the plate nicely and has nerve aplenty.

As for Lindstrom.

Here is a chap who, two years ago, was playing baseball with a Chicago high school team. McGraw's scouts looked him over and were so impressed—and it's rather difficult to make an impression with the square-jawed, green whiskered gents prowling the bushes for big league material these day—that they talked McGraw into signing him. Jawn did and sent him to Toledo for a tryout. That was last season. Lindstrom hit .270 for the year and was hitting well over .300 when the season ended. And fast! The kid is like a streak of lightning on the bases and around second. He swiped 19 bases last year in front of a lot of crafty old catchers and wise old pitchers.

What of Lindstrom's Chances?

John McGraw, while banking on Travis Jackson to fill Dave Bancroft's shoes at short, is taking no chances. And he knows that Heinie Groh or Frankie Frisch may run afoul of some bad luck and be laid up. He has Fred McGuire, the Holy Cross cruising infielder, and another promising youth, Bill Terry. But he hasn't decided that neither of them can be spared. So it wouldn't surprise the onlookers here if Lindstrom earned at least a bench berth—and at the ender age of 18, when many kids are just finishing high school or looking for a berth with some minor league outfit.

PICTURES SOX AS HOPELESS TEAM

Scribe Avers Comiskey Club Again Doomed to Land In Second Division.

BY NICK FLATLEY.

WINTERHAVEN, Fla., March 22.—Misfortune seems to hover over the camp of the White Sox here, and the Comiskey crew, one of baseball's big disappointments last season, will finish well down in the scramble unless a few miracles occur.

The club is without an official manager and it is impossible to tell whether or not Frank Chance, signed for the job, will ever appear. He was reported at a sanitarium in his native California last week and the evidence out that way is that he has no intention of coming back to baseball. But the club authorities have it that he will show up eventually.

Meanwhile, Peppery John Evers is doing the directing—a manager without the official title. Johnny, it might be mentioned, is in better health than he has been for years, and is getting along very well with the boys. He might succeed this time if he is given the chance.

Pay of Regulars Reduced.

But the future for Evers and every one else on the club is a mystery right now. Nobody knows, and nobody seems to care, as the song has it. Two regular outfielders, Harry Hooper and Johnny Mostil, are holdouts. According to players' gossip, both were offered greatly reduced contracts and have decided to retire. Hapenny, a very good utility infielder, has also resigned for reasons supposed to be similar.

With the exception of a young pitcher and a couple of catchers, the club is exactly the same outfit that finished the season of 1923 and that outfit doesn't strike any particular fear in the hearts of other managers.

Four Veteran Hurlers.

Faber, Robertson, Leverette, Blankenship and Cvengros, are the veteran pitchers. The latter two have had enough experience to deliver this season.

Evers expects a whole lot from one of his kids, Young Lyons, picked up last fall from Baylor university in Texas. This young man has a lot of pitching craft and looks anything but a novice.

Douglas McWeeny, with the club part of last season, is now a finished performer and probably will break into the regular mound work.

Leon Cadore, the old Dodger, has his arm in good shape and promises to be a big help.

The inevitable Ray Schalk will do most of the Sox catching, as he has for the past thirteen seasons. Time does not seem to have affected him much.

Capable Infield.

The infield will be as it was, and a mighty good quartet it is with Sheely at first, the remarkable Eddie Collins at second base, McClellan at short and Kamm at third.

With the two holdouts out of the picture and Bib Falk being converted into a pitcher, the outfield jobs will fall to Bill Barrett, youngster; Maurice Archdeacon, the fastest runner in baseball, and the veteran Amos Strunk. Elsh and Ostegard remain for utility service.

The club is a mystery. It has as much potential pitching power as any club in the league, except the Yankees, but it has a bunch of veterans with no youthful horde to spur them on.

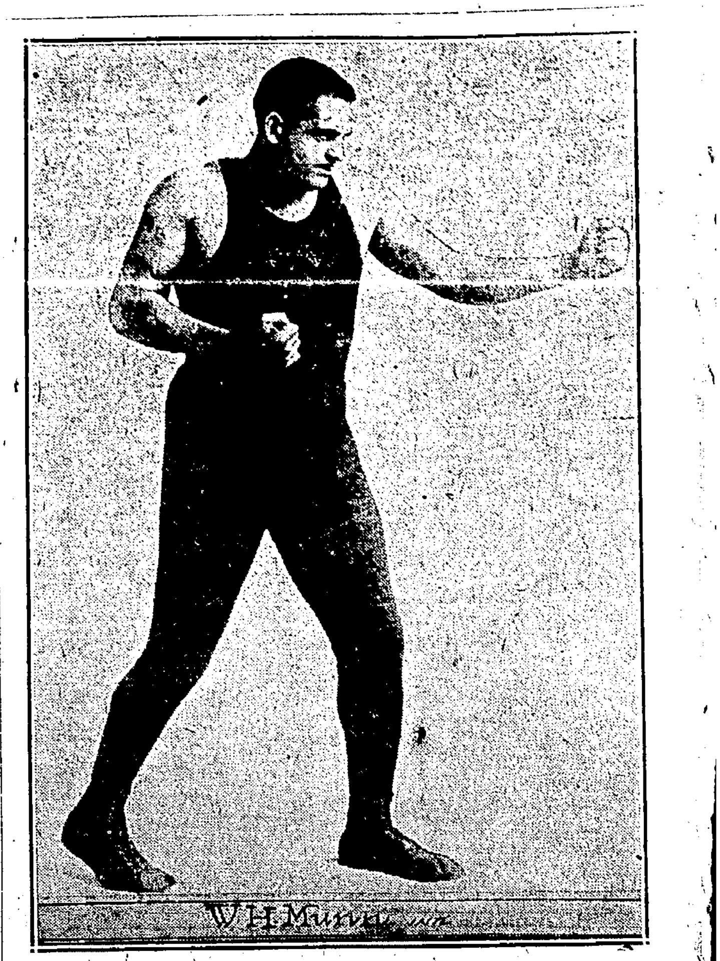
Fizzles In Fight Game, But Making Good As Grappler



When Wayne ("Big") Munn, ormer University of Nebraska football forward, broke into the glove sport several months ago it was generally conceded that he had plenty of size in his favor. Scaliny 275 pounds and measuring 6 feet 7 inches in his sox, "Big" Munn was rated as the huskiest specimen in Fistiana. But the former Husker had a weakness—a glass chin. After two opponents each much lighter than Munn, had located his weak spot and knocked him out, the big fellow decided he was in the wrong game, so he switched to the mat pastime. Since hanging out his shingle as a bone-crusher, Munn has been enjoying fine success. In a series of eight matches, contested in New York, Chicago and Kansas City, the former Cornhusker has flattened every opponent. Munn's next match is scheduled for Tuesday night in Kansas City.

Stagg Takes Slap At Old Fogy East

NEW YORK, March 22.—Amos Alonzo Stagg, veteran football coach of the University of Chicago, denounced the athletic policies of eastern universities, including Harvard, Yale and Princeton, in an address last night at the annual dinner of the New York association of Western conference universities.

Alluding to the "moss-back east" as a "doddering old fogy concerned entirely with funds and more funds," Mr. Stagg declared that the spirit of western universities "must cleave through the depressive cliques of Harvard, Yale and Princeton as the sun cleaves through fog." Stagg is a Yale alumnus, having graduated in 1888.

The western universities, with their "clean and wholesome" policies, he said, are turning gate receipts into all-university uses, in addition to building stadiums and paying the costs of trips.

Jack Denies Having Hand In Carp Bout

LOS ANGELES, March 22.—Jack Dempsey, who arrived at his Los Angeles home yesterday, was dividing his time today in establishing a training camp in the foothills and in making vigorous denials of rumors concerning his plans for the future.

The champion views the announcement of Luis Firpo that he contemplates retirement, as a "publicity stunt," and said that a return bout with Firpo probably would be his only engagement this year.

Dempsey denied rumors that he is interested financially in the proposed Carpentier-Gibbons bout.

Rapid Fire Left Jab Potent Factor in Victory of Jewish Scrapper.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, March 22.—A pound of flesh, duly exacted, made Shylock an immortal and last night at Madison Square Garden, it aided in transforming one Abe Goldstein from quite an ordinary young man to bantamweight champion of the world at large.

Goldstein unfrocked Joe Lynch, the reigning titleholder, winning the decision by a margin so wide as to be almost ludicrous. Lynch was only a pale, anemic shadow of the champion that was and could neither box nor hit and had he a ball and chain on either foot his speed could have been no less.

He had left both strength and condition on the scales of the boxing commission headquarters that afternoon.

Abe Fought Fine Fight.

Contrary to usual deportment, Abe fought almost with effrontery last. It was his greatest effort in five years of ring appearance and, appropriately enough, it gained him the highest honors within the gift of his division. What might have happened had Lynch been able to make the bantamweight limit of 118 pounds with ease and facility is another story and has no place here.

Suffice it to say that Lynch was a full pound overweight when, minus lunch, he got on the scales at 2 o'clock yesterday. Enter here with stealth and a bright idea, Willie Lewis, who is only the manner of Goldstein, but so smart in a fistic sense as to be almost unpleasant about it.

Goldstein's Pilot Foxy.

"I won't claim your forfeit, Joe," quoth William. "Come back in two hours and weigh again."

The forfeit amounted to $1,250. It is barely possible Mr. Lewis figured that further weight reduction by Lynch would be worth more to him, Lewis, than paltry, sordid dollars. Anyway Joe Lynch walked, ran, starved and was subjected to the weakening process of a dry rub for two hours in order to make weight.

Just what this effort took away from the fighter only Lynch himself can know. After the bout, the former champion, was quoted as saying that never again would he fight in the bantamweight class.

Lynch Through as Bantam.

We don't know as we blame him. It may be that Lynch is through anyhow. It may have been that he culdn't have beaten Goldstein last night in any case, for Abe fought like a champion to the manner born. But only a weakened Lynch could have lost fourteen out of fifteen rounds, been saved by the bell in the second and ninth, and failed in the tenth to follow up a right cross that brought Goldstein to his level and victory for a brief moment within reach.

Lynch Decisively Whipped.

(Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, March 22.—Abe Goldstein, veteran product of the east side fistic school, is the new bantamweight champion of the world He gained the title, which he had been seeking for more than a year, by decisively whipping and dethroning Joe Lynch last night in a 15-round match at Madison Square Garden.

Lynch, apparently but a shell of the fighter who won, lost and then regained the 118-pound crown within a few years, was a beaten boxer from start to finish. His exhibition was one of the poorest any titleholder has given in many years.

A withering, relentless left jab to the chin, varied with a short hook to the ribs and a smashing right cross to the jaw that tottered the champion several times, won the battle for Goldstein. The challenger was the aggressor in every round.

Goldstein's first defense of his new laurels may be in a match against Bud Taylor of Terre Haute, Ind. The Queensboro Athletic club of Long Island City is seeking the bout.

Last Night's Fights.

At Sacramento, Calif. — Pancho Villa, Manila, world's flyweight champion, decisively outpointed George Lee, Chinese-American pugilist of Sacramento, four rounds. Pete Sarmiento, Manila, won decision over Tommy O'Leary, Sacramento, four rounds.

At Des Moines—Roscoe Hall, boxing instructor at Iowa university, drew with Jack Sealice, Boston, eight rounds; Bobby Jubbs, North Des Moines, outpointed Young McMain, six rounds; Battling Krause, Fargo, N. D., won decision over Mike Rozgall, Omaha, six rounds; Henry Jones, Des Moines, outpointed Jack Nelson, Des Moines, six rounds.

At Casper, Wyo.—Bobby Corbett, Colorado Springs, gained decision over Al Webster, Billings, Mont., twelve rounds; Joe (Wop) Kelly, Pueblo, won decision over Young Sol, Casper, ten rounds.

At Grand Rapids, Mich.—Jack Renault, Canadian heavyweight champion, defeated Captain Bob Roper, Chicago, ten rounds.

Fight Bugs of Omaha Plan For Special Train

Fight fans of Omaha are taking such notice of the Hudkins-Bige glove wrangle, dated for next Tuesday night in Lincoln, that they are reputed to be planning making the trip to the capital city on a special train. Today's World-Herald says:

"A special train may be run to Lincoln next Tuesday to accommodate Omaha ring fans who wish to witness the Erwin Bige-Ace Hudkins state lightweight championship bout in the capital city.

"Clink Clair, who is handling the Omaha tickets, has sixty reservations for the fight. He obtained eighty tickets two days ago and expects to dispose of all of them. If there is a demand for more, a special train probably will be run."

Left Jab Has Real Value.

The superior reach possessed by Bige and the persistent left-jabbing tactics on which the Omaha boxer will depend in the approaching mix with the Lincoln boy are well calculated to provoke worry in the Hudkins camp.

Hudkins is credited with having the edge in sheer ability to sock, but Ace must get in close to do his socking, while Bige, with height, reach and jabbing ability in his favor, undoubtedly plans to make Hudkins wage a long range battle.

Ace has had two whirls at Bige, losing the decision in the first encounter and getting nothing better than a draw in the second. It is assumed that Hudkins' steady improvement may be a point in his favor, yet it is not at all certain that the Lincoln glovester has gone ahead any faster than his Omaha rival.

The dope reads, at any rate, that the Tuesday fray will pit the Hudkins punch against the Bige left jab. Who should win? Roll your own guess.

LINCOLN QUINTS WIN FIRST ROUND

Trio of Capital City Teams Grab Off Victories In "Y" Tourney.

SATURDAY PROGRAM.

3:30 p. m.—Norfolk vs. "Y" Triangles.
4:15 p. m.—Omaha "Y" vs. Lincoln "Y."
5 p. m.—First M. E. vs. Grand Island M. E.
7:30 p. m.—Finals association class.
8:15 p. m.—Finals church class. (Second M. E. vs. winner First M. E. —Grand Island.)

Lincoln teams had little difficulty in weathering first round competition in the annual state Y. M. C. A. tournament, held at the Lincoln association Friday evening.

The "Y" Triangles grabbed a 10-7 lead during the first half of the game with the Grand Island "Y" quintet and won the contest 17 to 10. Whalen, Brochu and Overton led the scoring for the Triangles, while Mandeville and Colwell were high point men for the Third Citys.

Lincoln "Y" cagesters disposed of Brainard, 18 to 10. The capital city tossers held the Brainard five to three baskets.

In a church class game, Second M. E. won from Raymond M. E., 31 to 14. Ralph Buechner, with four field goals, was high point maker for the Second Methodists. Scores:

Paddock Aiming At New Century Record

DES MOINES, Ia., March 22. — Charles Paddock of the University of Southern California, world's champion 100-yard sprinter, will show his form in a special century race to be staged at the Drake university relay meet here April 25 and 26, according to announcement by Athletic Director Wilson of Drake. This will be Paddock's first outdoor race in his effort to win a place on the American Olympic team.

Although he ranks as an amateur, Paddock is not eligible for collegiate competition, having completed his college course. Drake relay officials, therefore, will select four or five star sprinters to run against the Californian in a special 100-yard event.

In a letter to Director Wilson, Paddock declared that he is rapidly rounding into condition and that he hopes to set a mark of 9 2-10 seconds for the century during this year.

SCATTERS MAPLES FOR RECORD MARK

Chicago Bowler Tears Into Ten-Pins For Singles Score of 739.

CHICAGO, March 22.—B. Fox and F. Kublic of Milwaukee rolled 1,276, and into a tie with H. Dean and L. Martin of St. Louis for tenth place in the A. B. C. doubles by way of rounding out the program signalized last night by the manufacture of a new singles record.

A. Ludvigson's new singles mark of 739, passing the other world record, made during the current bowling congress, by seven pins, was the day's most noteworthy performance. Ludvigson is a Chicago bowler. His scores were 247, 237 and 255.

Louisville and Indianapolis fives rolled well in the night showing, but did not get among the leaders.

Leadership in the five-man team event of the tournament is threatened in today's play. The St. Francis Hotels of St. Paul and Page's Dairy, Toledo, O., considered among the strongest entries, will compete. Bowlers from Council Bluffs, Sioux City, Ia., and Omaha will be in action today.

The "high five" of the four events:

Five-Man Teams:

Herb's Indians, Cleveland, 3,044; Mineralites, Chicago, 3,041; Pollack Carunas, Buffalo, 2,999; Arrow Oils, No. 2, Cleveland, 2,975; Durkee Motors, Kansas City, 2,972.

Doubles.

Singles.

Austrian Expert Retains Lead in Chess Tourney

NEW YORK, March 22.—Dr. Tartakower of Austria leads the international chess masters' tournament, which begins its fifth round today, despite his draw yesterday with Maroczy.

Bogoljubiw, by defeating Reti, pulled up to a tie with Alekhine when the Russian was held to a draw by Capablanca, the world's champion, who is in fourth place.

Sport Sparks.

BY LES CONKLIN.

The week in sports was comparatively dull. No baseball stars threatened to quit club, not a single sport writer spread report that Eddie Collins was to be traded, and only three boxing referees were shot.

Greatest surprise occurred when big league manager predicted his club would finish second, not first. Generally all sixteen of 'em cable joyful report to old folks at home that team will cop pennant as sure as taxes.

Ninety-five per cent of promising rookies were canned, but everybody knew that would happen a month ago.

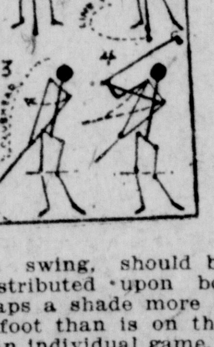
Sport in Spain consisted of marathon dancing contest. Girls wore out 9,883 pairs of shoes and 1,490 partners. Winners collected $25,000 in prizes and $50,000 in hospital bills.

There were quite a few trades. New York farmer traded his wife for a horse and horse died after finishing one day's work. Two Connecticut women swapped husbands and both claim they got stung.

Inside Golf.

BY CHESTER HORTON.
Maker of 51 golf champions.
"Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

While I teach golfers to shift all the weight to the right foot at the beginning of the swing, letting the left shoulder drop a trifle, some teachers hold that the weight, at the top of the swing, should be fairly evenly distributed upon both feet, with perhaps a shade more of it on the right foot than is on the left.



Golf is an individual game, and the golfer must work out for himself the methods that best fit him. There are some players undoubtedly who will get along better with this style of swing. If you wish to try it, here is the way At the start of the swing give your body a push, with the left toe, toward the right. Hold the left shoulder to its fixed position. Keep the clubhead close to the ground. Turn as if you intended to hit a ball to the right of you instead of in front. Then, after you have turned, elevate the club with the left arm, keeping this arm straight. Let your right hip move out some, with the weight going automatically a trifle more to the right foot. As the club is elevated shove the left shoulder still further around. Don't break your left wrist until it is forced to break at the top. If you can twist your shoulders far enough around at the top you will have, in this swing, the full up-right swing, which is always the best swing for those who can make the pivot it calls for.

Time Ripe to Call Halt on Tinkering With Golf Rules

BY FRANK G. MENKE.
(Copyright 1924 by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Some folks call it "goff," others pronounce it "golluff," while skeptics say "guff" and let it go at that.

They will be calling it "outdoor ping-pong" very shortly if some of the critics, fault-finders, reformers, boiler-makers and journeymen plumbers, who want to tinker with the game, are successful in putting through their thousand and one amendments even partially.

Long before Chris Columbus and his Spanish playmates discovered New York, Chicago and way stations, golf was a game. In the sweep of time since then, it endured, it prospered and it developed into a sport which knows more devotees than any in the entire history of the world.

The rules of the game, as present constituted, have made golf interesting and fascinating and genuinely loved by millions—and still more millions. Yet for some reason, wholly inexplicable, there are a few persons so discontented with golf as it is, that they are eager to so change it to a point where it will become little more than arm and leg exercise for its legions of enthusiasts.

A Silly Suggestion.

The suggestion that the size of the cup be increased from 4 inches to 6 inches is asinine. If such a thing comes about even the world's worst dub could negotiate almost any course UNDER PAR. At least 50 per cent of golf play is on the green. On a 72 par course, no more than 36 shots are made off the green. That leaves 36 for green play under existing 4 inch cup rules. If the cup were increased in size, the chances are that the putting process would be cut nearly in half. Therefore, the man who now takes 36 putts on 18 greens would be able to do his work in from 18 to 24 shots.

And that would give him 54 to 60 on a 72 par course.

Increasing the size of the cup not merely would make necessary complete changes in parity on every golf course in the United States, but would entail tremendous expense.

There would be, first of all, the cost of increasing the size of the holes, the purchase of new size cups, and a change, perhaps, in flag poles. In many cases, entire greens, or at least, big section of them would have to be rebuilt, because some green are now constitutel so that any slight change in the size or the location of the hole would throw the entire green out of true.

Putting Calls for Skill.

Driving and approaching is a difficult part of the game of golf, but it is not so difficult, not so much a test of skill, as is work with the putter. It is on the green where games are won and lost. If the size of the hole were increased, sinking a putt no longer would be freighted with such a necessity for skill—and the real foundation of the fascination for the game of golf would totter.

A year or so ago officials of the game decided to standardize the golf ball. It was decided that the 1.62 ball was the ideal for all purposes. The assumption was that everybody henceforth would be happy and a pleasant time would be had by all.

But wails and moans and shrieks quickly began to fracture the ozone. The ball was all wrong. It was too heavy, had too great a carry and was generally blah!

Propose Larger Ball.

So they're talking of making the ball larger but lighter.

Those who have vocalized concerning the "small cup" or the "heavy ball" or about one thing or another, also have stepped forward and found considerable and increasing fault with the layout of many of the courses. Some wish them made longer; others want them made shorter.

It seems almost time for the golfing officials who have the best interests of the game at heart and who have helped make the game the glorious sport of today, to turn to the malcontents, the reformers and the like and murmur:

"G. T. H."

Yankee Catcher Has Broken Rib

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 22. —The New York Yankee camp has been struck by a casualty wave. Wallie Schang, veteran catcher, will be unable to practice for more than a week because of a broken rib, and Babe Ruth was unable to don his uniform yesterday because of an attack of "walking influenza." The home run king, however expected to get back in action today.

Third Sacker For the White Sox Poles Hit Which Breaks Up Game.

(Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, March 22.—Wayland Dean, recruit pitcher with the New York Giants and one of the greatest pitchers in the American association last season, received his first jolt of the season yesterday when he was pitted against Urban "Red" Faber, veteran ace of the Chicago White Sox twirling staff, who made his maiden start of the season.

Dean, who was purchased by the Giants from Louisville for $50,000 last winter, had pitched 12 innings in practice games at Sarasota without allowing a man to reach first base. When he faced the White Sox at Winterhaven yesterday he was greeted with two singles in the first inning. The White Sox attack continued with the veteran Eddie Collins poling three hits.

Willie Kamm, Comiskey's $100,000 beauty sought from the San Francisco club of the Pacific Coast league last season polled a hit which broke up the game in the tenth inning for a 5 to 4 victory.

Dean ranked second in the American association with a record of 3.27 earned runs a game, with 21 victories and ten defeat. Tom Sheehan of St. Paul topped the pitchers. Score by innings:

Plans Trip Over Falls In Automobile Tire

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., March 22. —Bobby Leach, who went over the horseshoe falls in a steel barrel January 25, 1911, has announced he is negotiating with a rubber company for the manufacture of a rubber ball in which he plans to make a trip over the falls early in June.

The ball will be of the thickness of an ordinary large automobile tire and will have a hammock inside on which he will recline, Leach said.

GIANT RECRUITS APPEAL TO PILOT

BY NORMAN E. BROWN.

SARASOTA, Fla., March 22.—Wires emanating from this land of garden trucking and Giant workouts have carried the stories concerning the brilliant playing of Joe Bradshaw, rookie pitcher from Toledo, and Fred Lindstrom, young infielder from the same club.

But the careers of these two kids make better reading than their exploits here. Many youngsters shine brilliantly in camp up to April 16, only to sputter and go out—or into the minors.

Bradshaw is a second Minor Brown, in so far as he has lost one of his fingers. But the accident which cost him the digit made him a pitcher instead of driving him from the box. The missing member was separated from his left hand, insead of his pitching paw, however, which may have something to do with his success in the box.

Started Behind the Plate.

Bradshaw started his career as a receiver. He might have been catching yet but for an injury to the middle finger of his left hand—the mitt hand of a backstop. This made it tough for Joe to control the big glove. He was still catching, however, when he entered service at Jackson barracks during the war. Then his team's pitcher was thrown into quarantine on the eve of a game in New Orleans nearby. Bradshaw essayed to pitch and won his game, 3 to 2. No more catching for Joe. And his work in the box so impressed the New Orleans club bosses they signed him to a contract for 1920.

They kept him part of the season and then gave him a ticket for Chattanooga. Joe had been considering an offer to jump the game and play independent ball and work for an oil company in Memphis, and the order to join the Chattanooga club decided the matter for him. He went to Memphis.

Now maybe Joe got an inkling of the publicity that was to be thrown on the oil business. Anyhow he changed his mind about an oil future last spring and obtained reinstatement. Chattanooga allowed him to go to Toledo. The tail-end outfit kept him all season, with the exception of a six-weeks' vacation with the Beaumont club, also a cellar outfit. Laboring in the Ohio and Texas basements, Joe managed to break even for the year with a total of 14 games won and 5 lost.

Is Really a Giant.

He looks every inch a pitcher—and speaking of inches he runs considerable to length. He is just about the biggest gent in the squad and boasts of about six feet three inches of pitching material. He has a world of stuff which looks good at this early date. He keeps cutting the corners of the plate nicely and has nerve aplenty.

As for Lindstrom.

Here is a chap who, two years ago, was playing baseball with a Chicago high school team. McGraw's scouts looked him over and were so impressed—and it's rather difficult to make an impression with the square-jawed, green whiskered gents prowling the bushes for big league material these day—that they talked McGraw into signing him. Jawn did and sent him to Toledo for a tryout. That was last season. Lindstrom hit .270 for the year and was hitting well over .300 when the season ended. And fast! The kid is like a streak of lightning on the bases and around second. He swiped 19 bases last year in front of a lot of crafty old catchers and wise old pitchers.

What of Lindstrom's Chances?

John McGraw, while banking on Travis Jackson to fill Dave Bancroft's shoes at short, is taking no chances. And he knows that Heinie Groh or Frankie Frisch may run afoul of some bad luck and be laid up. He has Fred McGuire, the Holy Cross cruising infielder, and another promising youth, Bill Terry. But he hasn't decided that neither of them can be spared. So it wouldn't surprise the onlookers here if Lindstrom earned at least a bench berth—and at the ender age of 18, when many kids are just finishing high school or looking for a berth with some minor league outfit.

PICTURES SOX AS HOPELESS TEAM

BY NICK FLATLEY.

WINTERHAVEN, Fla., March 22. —Misfortune seems to hover over the camp of the White Sox here, and the Comiskey crew, one of baseball's big disappointments last season, will finish well down in the scramble unless a few miracles occur.

The club is without an official manager and it is impossible to tell whether or not Frank Chance, signed for the job, will ever appear. He was reported at a sanitarium in his native California last week and the evidence out that way is that he has no intention of coming back to baseball. But the club authorities have it that he will show up eventually.

Meanwhile, Peppery John Evers is doing the directing—a manager without the official title. Johnny, it might be mentioned, is in better health than he has been for years, and is getting along very well with the boys. He might succeed this time if he is given the chance.

Pay of Regulars Reduced.

But the future for Evers and every one else on the club is a mystery right now. Nobody knows, and nobody seems to care, as the song has it. Two regular outfielders, Harry Hooper and Johnny Mostil, are holdouts. According to players' gossip, both were offered greatly reduced contracts and have decided to retire. Hapenny, a very good utility infielder, has also resigned for reasons supposed to be similar.

With the exception of a young pitcher and a couple of catchers, the club is exactly the same outfit that finished the season of 1923 and that outfit doesn't strike any particular fear in the hearts of other managers.

Four Veteran Hurlers.

Faber, Robertson, Leverette, Blankenship and Cvengros are the veteran pitchers. The latter two have had enough experience to deliver this season.

Evers expects a whole lot from one of his kids, Young Lyons, picked up last fall from Baylor university in Texas. This young man has a lot of pitching craft and looks anything but a novice.

Douglas McWeeny, with the club part of last season, is now a finished performer and probably will break into the regular mound work.

Leon Cadore, the old Dodger, has his arm in good shape and promises to be a big help.

The inevitable Ray Schalk will do most of the Sox catching, as he has for the past thirteen seasons. Time does not seem to have affected him much.

Capable Infield.

The infield will be as it was, and a mighty good quartet it is with Sheely at first, the remarkable Eddie Collins at second base, McClellan at short and Kamm at third.

With the two holdouts out of the picture and Bib Falk being converted into a pitcher, the outfield jobs will fall to Bill Barrett, youngster; Maurice Archdeacon, the fastest runner in baseball, and the veteran Amos Strunk. Elsh and Ostegard remain for utility service.

The club is a mystery. It has as much potential pitching power as any club in the league, except the Yankees, but it has a bunch of veterans with no youthful horde to spur them on.

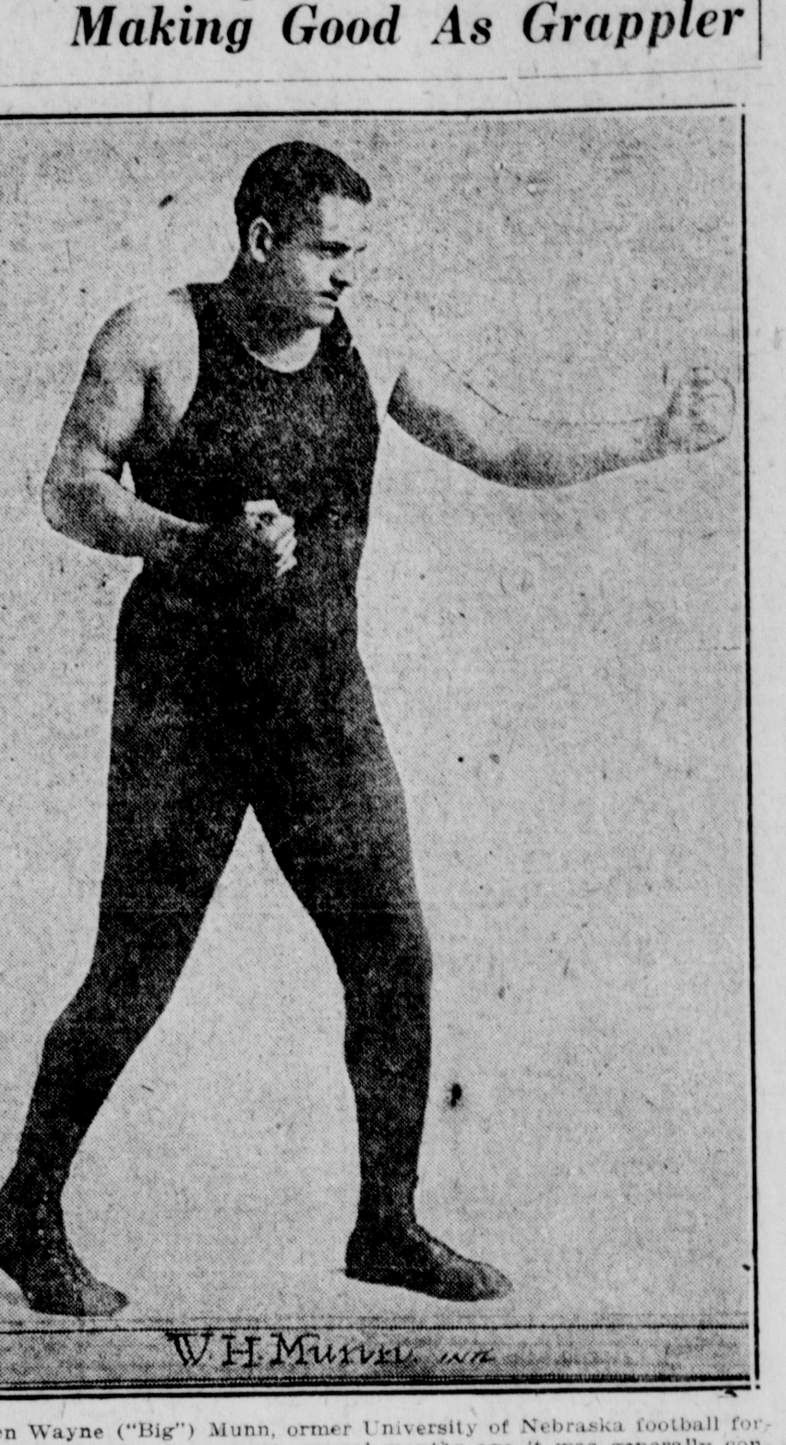
Fizzles In Fight Game, But Making Good As Grappler



When Wayne ("Big") Munn, ormer University of Nebraska football forward, broke into the glove sport several months ago it was generally conceded that he had plenty of size in his favor. Scaliny 275 pounds and measuring 6 feet 7 inches in his sox, "Big" Munn was rated as the huskiest specimen in Fistiana. But the former Husker had a weakness—a glass chin. After two opponents each much lighter than Munn, had located his weak spot and knocked him out ,the big fellow decided he was in the wrong game, so he switched to the mat pastime. Since hanging out his shingle as a bone-crusher, Munn has been enjoying fine success. In a series of eight matches, contested in New York, Chicago and Kansas City, the former Cornhusker has flattened every opponent. Munn's next match is scheduled for Tuesday night in Kansas City.

Stagg Takes Slap At Old Fogy East

NEW YORK, March 22.—Amos Alonzo Stagg, veteran football coach of the University of Chicago, denounced the athletic policies of eastern universities, including Harvard, Yale and Princeton, in an address last night at the annual dinner of the New York association of Western conference universities.

Alluding to the "moss-back east" as a "doddering old fogy concerned entirely with funds and more funds," Mr. Stagg declared that the spirit of western universities "must cleave through the depressive cliques of Harvard, Yale and Princeton as the sun cleaves through fog." Stagg is a Yale alumnus, having graduated in 1888.

The western universities, with their "clean and wholesome" policies, he said, are turning gate receipts into all-university uses, in addition to building stadiums and paying the costs of trips.

Jack Denies Having Hand In Carp Bout

LOS ANGELES, March 22. — Jack Dempsey, who arrived at his Los Angeles home yesterday, was dividing his time today in establishing a training camp in the foothills and in making vigorous denials of rumors concerning his plans for the future

The champion views the announcement of Luis Firpo that he contemplates retirement, as a "publicity stunt" and said that a return bout with Firpo probably would be his only engagement this year.

Dempsey denied rumors that he is interested financially in the proposed Carpentier-Gibbons bout.

Chink and Filipino In 4-Round Draw

(Associated Press.)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., March 22. — Pancho Villa of Manila, flyweight champion of the world, and George Lee, Chinese of Sacramento, fought a fast four-round draw here last night, in the opinion of a majority of newspaper men at the ringside. Because Lee outweighed the chempion twelve pounds, the bout was a no-decision affair.
